

Out at Home

Senior co-captain Gary Herrington tags freshman Felix Burton out at homeplate during baseball practice yesterday at Kyle Field. Herrington leads the Aggie sluggers in conference batting at the plate and is an All-Southwest Conference catcher. The Aggies play SMU at College Station Friday and Saturday.

CPORT SLANT

To paraphrase Hamlet, "To make up a game or not to make up a game is no longer a question." Coach Tom Chandler resolved that problem yesterday.

The whole discussion to date has centered around whether or not the Farmers will make up their rained out tilts with Baylor and Rice unless it has some direct bearing on the final Southwest Conference standings.

It seems the conference has two rules that deals with our quandary

If the missed game is a single game it will not be made up if it does not interfere with the stand-

If the game was part of a series, and the game missed was the first game of the series, a double header can be played.

Rule No. 1 deals with the Baylor tussle that was postponed, but the two Rice-Aggie games pose something of a A&M was originally scheduled to play Rice a single game at College Station April 4, but the Aggies, having no home game for Spring Sports Day, asked the Owls if they would mind changing their April 18 game at Houston with the April 4 contest in order for the Ags to have a home game for the sports day. The game scheduled for the 18th was part of a two-game series that was to be played in Houston. Rice agreed to play one game in Houston (April 17) and one game in College Station (April 18) and play the April 4 game in Houston.

Everything would be fine now except the Farmers played the game on the 4th and didn't play either one of the series' games.

Technically now the Farmers could ask Rice to play a double header before the season ended to make up for the Dimunitive J. B. Carroll, the horns. Against the Steers, he games missed, but Chandler says such a thing would not

Chandler believes that the first game of the series was played the 4th and the game rained out the 17th was the single game that does not have to be made up.

Confused? You don't have to be. Just forget about the whole thing and read The Battalion to find out when the tiplied in Coach Jim Myers' spring Maroon-White intrasquad game. season and a .410 percentage in chase. The Ags are currently one Aggies play and how they stand in the conference.

The Aggie coach does think that perhaps he can schedto a 10-4 season record and a league leading Steers. But nature ule a double header with Rice after the season ends, if the 4-2 conference mark. In addition, has not been favorable as the last games have no bearing on the final standings. If they do the 132-pound jack-of-all trades three loop tilts have been rained the conference will solve the problem for him and schedule the missed tilts. "Coach Chandler has us in a
