

Sigma Chi To Hold Initiation Banquet in MSC

The annual initiation banquet for the national honorary scientific society, Sigma Chi, will be held in the Memorial Student Center Ballroom Thursday, May 6 at 7:30 p.m.

The evening will begin with dinner and the initiation of the new candidates will follow immediately afterwards. Following the initiation, Dr. King Hubbard, petroleum geologist from Houston, will speak.

Graduate students working on their Ph. D. or men who already hold a Ph. D. in scientific fields are the only ones considered for candidates of the Sigma Chi Society.

This year 72 men were elected to become new Sigma Chi members.

Besides the Chapter at A&M, there are only two others in Texas. These are located at Galveston Medical School and Texas University.

Cooking with gas was not common before the 1870s.

guards student government and positions of leadership on the campus.

Following lunch Workshop II, "The Scope and Purpose of the Dormitory Council," will take place. The three groups will discuss this subject from various angles. Discussion group A will discuss ways to improve the dorm council's prestige and relations with housemaster, counselors and students. Discussion group B will discuss dormitory activities, parties, ideas and projects. Student government financing will be discussed by group C.

From 5 to 6 p.m. Saturday a panel discussion will take place with panel members consisting of Benjie A. Zinn, Director of Student Personnel Services; Robert O. Murray Jr., Director of Student Affairs; and Robert L. Melcher, Civilian Student Counselor. They will discuss students administrative relations and student personnel services.

Workshop III, "Civilian-Corps Relations," will be discussed from 7 to 8 p.m. Saturday.

Alton C. Linne Jr., Civilian Student Counselor, will deliver the closing address.

$500 Scholarship Open in Journalism

A $500 scholarship is going begging in the Department of Journalism.

The award is open to any student who will be classified as at least a junior next fall and is now majoring or will major in agriculture journalism, according to Donald D. Burchard, head of the Department of Journalism.

Burchard also pointed out that students who desire to combine their present degree program with agricultural journalism to secure two degrees would be eligible for the award.

Anyone interested should apply as soon as possible to the Department of Journalism office in Nagle Hall, said Burchard.

INGE ON DOUBLE SHIFT

NEW YORK (AP)—William Inge, prizewinning playwright who has previously specialized in moving character studies, is busy with a double shift of activities.

He is working on a novel and is also pondering a musical fantasy. The projected locale of the latter would be New Jersey, which would mark a switch from Inge's previous stage concentration on mid-western themes.

Marine Platoon Leader Candidates Describe Thicket March as 'Swampy'

By BOB SAILE
Battalion Staff Writer

Two Aggie Marine platoon leader candidates, Arthur Reynolds and Roger Darley, upheld the rough and ready tradition of the Marine Corps in the best leatherneck style when they took part in a recent 2-day march through the "Big Thicket" area of East Texas.

Reynolds, a junior from El Paso, and Darley, a Maroon Band freshman from San Antonio, participated in the 40-mile hike April 18 and 19 along with approximately 125 other members of the 6th Marine Infantry Battalion Reserve Unit. The non-tactical march carried the men through several miles of virtually virgin territory, according to Darley.

"There was nothing but swamp almost every inch of way, ranging from ankle to waist deep. We rarely found a dry spot," Darley said. The group shoved off on the trek from Daisetta at 9 on Saturday morning, April 18 with Bill Daniel, brother of Governor Price Daniel, and six local cowhands as guides. The route which the group was to follow to their destination, Grayburg, had been previously explored by Daniel, Reynolds said.

"We couldn't have made it

BUSY SEASON FOR QUAYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—British star Anthony Quayle returns to Broadway next for a musical comedy role and a brace of stirring dramatic assignments.

Quayle is to appear in "Viva Villa!" which will concern the career of Pancho Villa, Mexican desperado of 40 years ago. Prior to that, Quayle is appearing in Israel as Moses in "The Firstborn," a prior Broadway assignment, then goes to London to perform in Eugene O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey Into Night."

The bold-mining industry in and around Johannesburg, South Africa employs 383,000. Of these workers, more than a quarter million work underground.

through without guides or a definite course to follow," he added.

Men making the hike cooked meals from canned goods and rations which they packed themselves. Along with food, each man carried two canteens, a knife, a poncho, cooking utensils and a shelter half.

Saturday night's meal for the two men consisted of a wild boar, which Daniel had roped and killed that afternoon. Along with numerous wild boar, the group saw several snakes, mostly copperheads and water moccasins, according to Reynolds.

"The snakes didn't cause as much trouble as the ticks and mosquitoes, though," he commented.

At one time during the hike the "gyrenes" had to cross a creek by means of a rope which had been stretched to the opposite shore. The group often had to walk far out of its way in order to ford especially deep creeks and swampy areas, they said.

One point of interest for the two Aggies was a burned out cabin which they encountered the first day of the trip. They were informed ed that the cabin had previously been inhabited by a man who had robbed the bank in Daisetta. The local law officers had smoked the fugitive from his hideout, they were told.

The group reached its destination, Grayburg, about 4:30 Sunday afternoon. The unit had lost two photographers and a medical man during the course of the hike, who had to be taken back to Daisetta.

The hikers were treated to coffee and doughnuts after their arrival at Grayburg, according to Reynolds. The two men agreed that they couldn't remember anything that tasted as good as that coffee.

TRADE VACATIONS

NEW YORK (AP)—While several Broadway shows are on summer vacation, some cast members are indulging in busman's holidays.

Alan Shayne of "Jamaica," and three members of "The Visit," Vincent Gardenia, Joseph Leberman and Kent Montroy, are appearing in summer stock versions of other shows.
