

The Little League Corner

By RUSSELL BROWN

The American League South, College Station's Little League representative, is off to a racing start in the 1959 season. After eight games the Red Sox and the White Sox are deadlocked with identical 3-1 records. They lead the third place Senators by one game as the Sens boast a 2-2 count. The Orioles are off on the wrong foot, losing all four of their starts.

Action began Monday, June 1 with the Red Sox downing the Senators, 5-3 behind the pitching of Randy Hall and the hitting of Hubert Hearne. In the second game the White Sox edged the Orioles in seven innings, 10-9. The following Wednesday the Red Sox continued their winning ways with a 14-13 squeaker over the Orioles as Hearne hit his third and fourth homers of the campaign. In the nightcap the Senators stopped the White Sox behind Walter Varvel, 8-1.

Friday saw the Senators trample the Orioles, 22-0 with Larry Godfrey pitching a one-hitter. Varvel pounded out two homers in the

Over 12,000 Visit A&M During May

Commencement, Parents' Weekend and other scheduled activities during May attracted more than 12,000 visitors to the A&M campus, P. L. Downs Jr., official College greeter, announced recently.

An estimated 10,000 persons visited the campus for graduation and commissioning programs and for events of Parents' Weekend.

Attendance at conferences, short courses, class reunions and other scheduled meetings during May totaled 2,089, Downs reported.

During the period from June 1, 1958, to June 1, 1959, more than 60,000 persons visited the campus for Parents' Day, Commencement, Military Day, conferences, class reunions and other scheduled meetings.

The college had 592,276 visitors on the campus for scheduled meetings and activities during the 10-year period that ended June 1, 1959.

contest. In the second tilt the Red Sox dropped their first of the season, 14-7 when the White Sox picked up 12 runs in the fifth inning.

Monday's action saw the White Sox beat the Orioles, 14-2 and the Red Sox downed the Senators. Hall pitched another two-hitter in setting down the Sens.

Wednesday's action found the White Sox battling the Senators and the Orioles against the Red Sox. Friday's play will see the Red Sox and the White Sox and the Orioles going against the Senators.

Tishler, Landiss Participate in Meet

Dr. Carl E. Tishler and Dr. Carl W. Landiss of A&M are participating in the Conference on Teacher Education at the University of Texas, today through Saturday.

Tishler is professor and head of the Department of Health and Physical Education and Landiss is a professor of health and education.

The conference, which is sponsored by the Texas Assn. for Health, Physical Education and Recreation, will include discussions on the standards of teacher education and teacher certification in the field of physical education, health education and coaching.

Landiss is a member of the conference steering committee.

Lectures, Surgical Exhibitions Featured at Veterinarian Meet

Lectures by some of the top men in the field of veterinary medicine and clinical and surgical demonstration on closed circuit television were the outstanding features of the 12th Annual Conference for Veterinarians held here last Thursday and Friday.

More than 200 veterinarians from throughout Texas and neighboring states attended the conference to get first hand knowledge of technological changes and other developments in the field of veterinary medicine.

Experts in their particular fields of veterinary medicine from Michigan State University, Oklahoma State University, Washington, D. C. and Springfield, Mo., were brought to the campus to tell what is being done in veterinary medicine in other parts of the nation.

Outstanding veterinarians of Texas spoke on various phases of the veterinary medicine profession.

The program was rounded out by staff members from the School of Veterinary Medicine, A&M, who described the development of new techniques, new treatments and new diagnostic procedures.

Price Welcomes

Dr. A. A. Price, dean of the School of Veterinary Medicine, A&M, welcomed the visiting veterinarians at the opening general session.

A series of technical sessions followed with lectures by Dr. Lester Johnson, large animal clinician at Oklahoma State University; Dr. Wade O. Brinker, head of the Department of Surgery and Medicine, College of Veterinary Medicine, Michigan State University, and Dr. W. C. Banks, professor of veterinary medicine and surgery, A&M.

The Thursday afternoon program began with a talk on hospital management and its importance to a successful veterinary practice by Dr. F. D. Gentry, an outstanding small animal practitioner from Springfield, Mo.

A panel on poultry diseases was conducted by Dr. L. C. Grumbles, professor and head of the Department of Veterinary Microbiology; Dr. A. I. Flowers and Dr. R. W. Moore, assistant professors of veterinary microbiology, all of A&M, and Dr. Lloyd M. Reedy, widely known poultry practitioner from Dallas.

Hutchison Gives Report

A report on how extension service is designed to help people help themselves through education was given at the banquet session by Dr. John E. Hutchison, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Education through extension has had a part in improving the efficiency of farmers and this improved efficiency makes it possible today for people to purchase more products from less hours of labor," Dr. Hutchison declared.

He said the ultimate aim of extension is not just the conservation and development of the natural resources that support the agricultural industry, but to build an educational program on the interests which people have that will conserve and develop human resources as well.

Traxler, Rose Return to A&M

Dr. Aaron Rose, director of the Texas Engineering Experiment Station and Dr. R. N. Traxler, research engineer in the asphalt division, Texas Transportat on Institute, have returned from the recent World Conference on Petroleum which they attended in New York City.

During the trip they also conferred with officials of industry in the interest of research.

Gertrude is the Teutonic word for spear maiden.
