Size No Problem Here...

And the freshman squad boasts plenty of Quarterback Ken Walls, a 160-pound that. On the left is George Hogan, a 225- "giant". The Fish play the TCU Wogs a 280-pound griddler. Lost in the middle is here Thursday night.

Those Texas Longhorns are stampeding now and heading right for the Oklahoma corral. If the Sooners don't stop them the chances are slim for anyone to put a rope around the thundering herd. Thus far the Longhorns have crushed three intersectional opponents in as many weeks and they have yet to have a score made on them. Their smallest margin of victory has been 20 points scored against luckless Nebraska in the season opener.

Rated a strong No. 4 in the nation and closing in rapidly on third ranked Georgia Tech, the team that routed SMU in their first game of the season, the Steers stand alongside Arkansas as the only unbeaten Southwest Conference team.

The small Razorbacks jumped off into an early SWC lead by pulling a rabbit out of a hat and kicking a field goal to dump the once proud TCU Horned Frogs, 3-0.

Now Arkansas has to be rated as a top contender for the conference crown, along with Texas, SMU and TCU. The losses suffered by the latter two teams might just be an incentive for them to rise up and go the rest of the season undefeated. Someone in that crowd has to lose, and it's going to happen more than once.

Arkansas is a small team with exceptional speed. They beat the Frogs to the punch every time last Saturday. TCU was a bumbling giant against them, unable to whip up a touchdown drive.

Meanwhile in the lower echelons of the SWC race things are going well according to schedule. There has been the usual amount of upsets.

Baylor pulled the trick against

Colorado in their season opener but they quickly reverted to their normal team effort and now appear to be sliding back to their expected brand of play. They did put out a fine effort against the LSU Bengals and did an exceptional job in holding the score down to 22 points.

Rice looked like they might have some hidden, unknown strength when they faced LSU, but quickly faded in the second half to lose the game easily. Duke polished them off with little effort last week.

The Aggies might have a surprise or two in store for the conference leaders when they tangle later on in the season. They lost one they should have won when they tangled with Texas Tech, then bounced back and pulled the upset of the year next week when they trounced Michigan State. The Spartans showed how powerful they were the following week when they upended a favored Michigan eleven, the traditional rivals in the Big 10 conference.

A&M's showing against Mississippi Southern last Saturday in Mobile was rather lackluster, and the players themselves were quick to admit that they were just plain lucky to pull a victory out of that one.

If the previous game showings are any indication the Farmers should be up for their tilt this Saturday against the University of Houston Cougars in their first home game of the year.

They were cold against Tech, hot against Michigan, cold against Mississippi and now should go back to the fine form they exhibited against Michigan.

It would even things up for last year.

Jack Collins Tops Statistics; Milstead Total Offense Leader

New faces moved into the Southwest Conference statistics this week, with the upstart sophomores in the league taking over five out of nine positions.

Jack Collins, the speedy Longhorn back, was the most persistent, hogging three slots to himself and threatening veterans Charley Milstead, Don Meredith and Jack Spikes in two others.

Collins is the top scorer with three touchdowns for 18 points; the top punter with a 54.6 average and the leading rusher last week with 73 yards on 4 carries for a 18.3 yard per try average.

He threatens TCU's Spikes as the season's leading rusher with 196 yards, six behind Spikes. He is third in total offense behind Milstead and Meredith.

Meredith is the leading passer, but Milstead is the more accurate of the two. Dashing Don has completed 20 of 34 for 275 yards and a .588 completion average while Milstead has hit 15 of 23 for 210 yards and a .652 completion average.

Injuries Appear in Ag Camp; Milstead Injures Shoulder

Injuries cropped up in the Aggie camp yesterday where they hurt the most... quarterback and left halfback positions.

Charley Milstead, the Farmers star tailback and the present Southwest Conference total offense leader, was led from the practice field with his face grimaced with pain from an injured shoulder. The extent of his injury is not known as of yet, although he was X-rayed early this morning.

Before the day was finished Coach Jim Myers was not left with a left halfback on the field. All had gone in to the training table.

Starting halfback Jon Few re-injured his old ankle sprain while Jesse McGuire followed Milstead off the gridiron with an injured shoulder and Eddie Van Dyke a hurt back, an injury of past weeks. Robert Sanders was suffering from a sprained wrist.

Myers thought it was a good practice session, but the injuries definitely had him worried. "The way everybody is hurt," he said, "we may not have a starting eleven Saturday." He was referring to the Aggies lack of depth at every position.

The Aggie coach believes the Farmer's main trouble no longer lies in their scoring punch, or rather the lack of it. Fumbles have now begun to plague the team. Not the kind that comes from handoffs but the kind that occurs after a player is hit and falling.

The kicking game pleases him the most as does the passing which he labels "fair but effective". The defensive line has been something of a problem in the last several games, although they have given up only six points (three against Michigan were a field goal. "We can't give up 265 yards per game rushing and expect to win ball games," Myers said.

Aggie Kegler Bowls Record Breaking 297 at MSC Lanes

Scores of 297 sound pretty high to most bowlers, but "fish" Bob Tomlinson of Dallas racked up the fabulous score at the Memorial Student Center Bowling Lanes.

Tomlinson's score is the highest ever made at the MSC and beat the old record of 287 that was set in the summer of 1958.

The record score came as a result of a three game series that totaled 645, which is considered a very good score. Tomlinson's highest score for a three game series is 673 that he bowled at Lakewood Lanes in Dallas.

Last summer while in Dallas Tomlinson was the captain of three bowling teams that were taking part in league play.

Tomlinson said that he had never participated in league play until last summer, but had won several junior championships while in high school. He said that he usually did pretty well when he was bowling a handicap. His overall average is 181.

Aggies have been plentiful in Tomlinson's family. His grandfather and father graduated from A&M.

Tomlinson is a journalism major in Squadron 17 and says that he's about to get adjusted to this Aggie way of life.

Since coming to A&M Tomlinson has joined the MSC Bowling Committee and will probably be representing them in the various tournaments that they will enter this year. The first tournament will be held here Oct. 24. The Bowling Committee chooses its team by taking the ten highest scores from a series bowling by the members.

John M. Geiger, who is in charge of the MSC lanes, compared Tomlinson's average score and record score to some national scoring statistics and said that anyone who averages 181 is considered a class (A) bowler and anyone who breaks 200 is considered tops.
