Things look really great for the Aggie basketball team and Coach Bob Rogers as the lanky athletes move onto the hardwood floor today to officially open the 1959-1960 bounce-ball season.

Heading the list of potential starters for the A&M cagers are three returning lettermen, Wayne Lawrence, Wilmer Cox and Kelly Chapman.

The towering Lawrence, a 6-7 player, missed half of the season last year after he suffered a leg injury against the Baylor Bears. This is one of the main reasons the Aggies finished in the second division.

Before his injury Lawrence was averaging 13 points per game and rounding out into a finished performer, then came the injury. His big contribution to the team had been his rebounding ability, which was averaging out around nine per game.

Cox was a defensive standout for the Cadets, and had his moments of glory when it came to shooting baskets, too. His favorite shot is a two-handed push that comes from around one of the end corners, nearest the basket. Arkansas made the mistake of letting him shoot from there and he pumped in around 20 points. Cox was third in team scoring with a 10.2 average per game.

Chapman, the junior college transfer who had laid out a couple of years before coming to A&M to play basketball, became eligible only in the spring semester. He was a slow starter, but finished at a roaring pace. Chapman stands at 6-3, but has such spring in his legs that he can jump with the best. He averaged 5.5 points per game, but in the final three tilts was scoring closer to 15.

The fabulous Stanley twins of Buna and Kilgore Junior College move onto the A&M basketball court for the first time this year. The two identical twins are like peas in a pod, they both stand 6-3, weigh the same 180 pounds, and have about the same record on the basketball court.

Pat carried a 20.8 scoring average his final season at Kilgore and averaged 14 rebounds, while Don had a 20.1 per game mark and 16 rebounds. Both made Junior College All-America.

Cox was their teammate for one year at Kilgore.

A third Junior College All-America athlete joins the Aggies this year, Wayne Annett of Paris Junior College. Annett is a 6½ foot player.

Two outstanding sophomores move up to the varsity this year and both are looking for starting post. Carroll Brouard, 6-5 and 195 pounds, is one of the brightest basketball players the Farmers have seen in years. As a freshman he averaged 19-20 points per game and was one of the top Fish rebounders. He has a falling-away shot that is almost impossible to guard, and is quick and agile on defense.

The other freshman is John Keller, who also stands at 6-5. Keller was the leading rebounder for the Frosh and one of the top three scorers.

Expected to give the Farmers help is returning letterman Elliot Craig and Roger Harvey. Harvey lettered at Aggie land in 1954-55 and 1955-56 before he left for the Army. Craig was a spot player for the Cadets last year, although he hit .500 from the floor.

The Aggies open the season December 1 against Centenary at College Station. The Freshmen also open at that date in White Coliseum.

Cadets Have Rugged Session; Injuries Weaken End Position

The Aggies moved outdoors for the first time this week and went slogging through a long, two and one half-hour practice that saw the Cadets get in Tuesday's contact work yesterday.

Tuesday's sessions were spent on the hardwood floors of White Coliseum while Monday was a day off for the Farmers so they could rest after their victory over the University of Houston Cougars.

Injuries continued to crop up in the Aggie camp with End Russell Hill limping off the field with a twisted ankle. The injury placed Hill on the doubtful list for Saturday's date with the TCU Horned Frogs, but the Aggies are hopeful he will respond to treatment and be ready for the first Southwest Conference tilt.

Jesse McGuire still continued on the injured list with a swollen knee, aggravated by the workout on the hard floors of the Coliseum. Whether he will be ready to play or not is a big question mark for the coaches.

Ralph Smith, the other weakside end with Hill, is the third seriously injured Cadet. He is sidelined with a hurt shoulder.

With both his first and second string weakside ends on the injured rolls Coach Jim Myers moved Junior Tom Moore up with the first string and shifted strong side end Richard Love over to bolster the position.

Myers was pleased with the work of Guard Wayne Frieling. "Frieling is running on the third team now," said Myers, "but if he keeps on like this he'll be sitting on the first team."

But overall the practice left the Aggie mentor unimpressed. "It was a very listless session," he said.

The Aggies will move through a light drill today and then board the plane Friday afternoon for the trip to Fort Worth and their game with the TCU Horned Frogs. The Cadets will hold a light practice session Friday in Fort Worth.

The TCU game will be the first Southwest Conference game of the year for the Cadets, while TCU has already met Arkansas and bowed down in defeat.

Intramurals

Corps championship run-offs were held last night in swimming and diving intramurals with two new records being broken in the 200-foot A and B breaststroke.

In the class A events Sq. 1 took top honors with 21 points, followed by Co. F-1, Co. H-2, Sq. 12, Sq. 7 and Sq. 9. Co. F-2 was top team with 24 points. They were followed by Sq. 10, Sq. 1, Sq. 6 and Sq. 14.

McChristian, Sq. 7, set the new class A breaststroke record with a 52.8 and Seagraves, Sq. 10 broke the old class B breaststroke record with a 50.2.

The class A diving honors were taken by Galindo of Puryear. He was followed by Johnson, Co. F-1; Reinhardt, Sq. 12; Long, Bizzell; McGinty, Co. G-2, and Powell, Co. E-1.

Class B diving was won by Gurlley, Sq. 1 and behind him was Humber, Co. G-2; Kelly, Sq. 7 and Smith, Composite H-2.

Jim Baily, brother of Cincinnati's catcher Ed Baily, was called up from Nashville after he won 10 of his last 12 decisions. He is a 6-foot-2 southpaw pitcher.
