Kamm Tells of 'Awakening' In Junior College Meeting

The nation's universities and colleges are enjoying a new intellectual awakening, one of the main speakers said at A&M during the 16th annual Junior College Conference held Oct. 19-20.

Dr. Robert B. Kamm, dean of arts and sciences at Oklahoma State University, told the 72 college educators and administrators attending the session that greater concern is being shown for academic matters.

But this does not mean the trend is completely widespread. He said many schools of higher learning are confronted with "apathy" and even "hostility" to an academic atmosphere.

Kamm cited a need for a reconciliation of teachers and students on education objectives. Too often, educators strive for intellectual growth, while students want nothing more than vocational preparation.

Some teachers, he told the group, regard themselves more as scholars than as educators and they tend to lose contact with their pupils. To relieve the situation, they should work to orient students intellectually.

"The future of our nation rests

Ag Ed Student Awarded Grant

Arlis Odickes of Goliad, an agricultural education major at A&M has been awarded a $125 scholarship to be used during his last year in school.

The scholarship was provided by the A&M Collegiate Chapter of Future Farmers of America.

E. V. Walton, head of the Department of Agricultural Education at the college, said Odickes received the award on the basis of his academic achievements and school activities.

largely with our teachers," Kamm said.

The speaker said there is a big need for more teachers, statesmen, doctors, farmers who are highly skilled in their art. And to get them, gifted students' talent should be challenged and developed.

Kamm also said there is a new appreciation of teachers and the liberal arts are now playing a major role in the current intellectual awakening.

"There is an increased awareness among educators that with skill must be added wisdom," the speaker said.

Kamm urged that excellence in higher education is necessary for survival in the modern world.

"It has more meaning when we consider it with ultimate excellence," he said. Kamm is a former director of student personnel services at A&M.

Purpose of the conference was to promote closer working relationships between junior and senior colleges, according to Dr. C. H. Ransdell, association director of A&M's Basic Division and chairman of the conference.

Other speakers at the first day's session were Dr. Ross R. Middlemiss of St. Louis, Mo., mathematics professor at Washington University; Dr. Winfred Lehman, chairman of Germanic languages at the University of Texas, and Dr. Josephine McAmis, professor of chemistry at San Antonio College.

Although the system is relatively new in the United States, it has been studied and in use for some time in Europe.

United Nations Birth Observed In YMCA Friday

The birthday of the United Nations will be observed at Aggieldand with a meeting to be held Friday night at 7:30 on the second floor of the YMCA.

Dr. J. B. Abbott, professor in the Department of English, will give the birthday message at the meeting. There will be an election of officers and a social hour following Abbott's talk.

Both international and American students, including the general public, are invited to attend, according to J. Gordon Gay, general secretary of the YMCA. Saturday is the birthday of the U.N., but the meeting is being held Friday due to conflicting weekend activities, Gay said.

The world's longest tunnel, a 22 mile underwater bridge between the Japanese islands of Honshu and Hokkaido, will be undertaken by Japanese National Railways next year. Completion date is expected in 1968.
