

Letters To The Editor

The Battalion welcomes letters to the editor but reserves the right to edit letters for brevity, clearness and accuracy. Short letters stand a better chance for publication since space is at a premium. Unsigned letters will not be published.

Editor,
The Battalion:
 As a Corps sophomore, I should like to express my overwhelming personal support of the trends taking place in the Corps of Cadets this year. The freshman who feels despondent because "Ole Army" is no more should realize that he is getting something the classes for at least a few years before him were never allowed to experience—a more reasonable, brotherly and civilized atmosphere. And, thus, one more conducive to top scholastic achievement.

Credit for most of these changes must go to the sane attitude adopted by the Class of '60 and '61—that purposes for disciplinary training must be evaluated, revised and made to balance with the student's goal of an education. But, at the same time, seeing to it that the advantages of A&M's unique military training are not sacrificed.

The adage that "I did it last year, so you have to do it now" is reasoning of the most infantile proportions. And the leaders of the Corps recognize it and are endeavoring to institute fair play and sensible discipline throughout the cadets' lives by means of standard operating procedures. Upperclassmen who wish to gain the respect and obedience of classes below them should adhere to these standard procedures, for how can a man logically command respect for authority when he has none himself? A man's subordinates tend to reflect him—a prime reason for setting a good example.

With all pulling together, we can make A&M an even greater school than it is today.

Among the Faculty and Staff

Dairy Science Prof Native of Russia

By ALAN PAYNE
 Battalion Staff Writer

Probably no faculty member at A&M has a more interesting background than Isaac I. Peters, an associate professor of dairy science, a native of Russia.

Peters was born in Russia 49 years ago and has since lived in Canada, Michigan, Iowa and Texas. He came to Texas and A&M in 1950 as an assistant professor of dairy science. He was made associate professor in 1952.

Peters attended secondary schools in both Russia and Canada before receiving his bachelor's degree from the University of Manitoba in Canada. He received his master's degree from Michigan State University and his doctor's degree from Iowa State University.

Since the completion of his formal education, Peters has written 25 articles on original research with milk and milk products. He is presently concerned with a research project involving the manufacture of cheese from homogenized milk.

Peters first came to the United States in 1942 and, except for a year in Canada in 1944, has been here since. During the war, he served as a postal censor.

Peters is a member of the Mennonite Church and the College Station Kiwanis Club.

He married the former Maurine Grace Champlin in 1948. The couple now has three children, Marion Catherine, Manley Champlin and Patricia Jean, and lives at 308 Park Place, College Station.

Indonesia, which has 83 million people scattered through more than 3,000 islands, is a nation where at least 40 languages are spoken.
