High - Flying Aggies Drop Cougars, 67 - 49; Pat Stanley Holds Touted Phillips to 6 Points

What appeared to be a wild, raging Cougar from Houston turned out to be nothing more than a sassy cat as the Aggie basketball team humbled the proud University of Houston cagers, 67-49, for their third straight victory in White Coliseum last night before 3,300 hooting fans.

Hero of the night was Pat Stanley, half of the Stanley twins' bounce-ball act, who held the Cougars' 6-3 Gary Phillips to a meager six points, all of them via the charity toss route.

Phillips has gone into the game with a 26 points per game average, but Stanley, putting the pressure on the Houston sharpshooter, played the entire 40 minutes guarding Phillips who saw his shooting average go sliding down

Ags Trip Tigers, 86-47, Saturday

Friday night the Aggie basketball team, paced by Kelly Chapman, romped over the Trinity Tigers 86-47 before 3,000 fans in White Coliseum.

The Aggies jumped off to a quick eight point lead with six minutes gone in the game and were never headed by the die-hard Tigers.

Wilmer Cox was runnerup for the Farmers in the scoring department, turning in 13 points, his season high. Chapman scored 17 to cop high point honors and Pat Stanley scored 12 for third high man on the A&M team.

Don Hrebec was high point man for the Tigers with 15 points, followed by Bob Galkowski with 12. Earlier in the season the Tigers had downed A&M's SWC foe, Rice Institute at Houston.

the drain. Kentucky's contribution to the A&M basketball fortunes, Kelly Chapman, proved to be something of a hero himself, coming out in the second half to score 14 points and lead the Ags to victory. Chapman scored only two points in the first period, but his production in the second half upped his total to 45 points in three games and a 15 points per game average, the scoring leader for A&M.

The Aggies, playing on the theory that an opponent can't score unless he has the ball, held the Cougars to only seven points with more than 11 minutes gone in the game, while building up an eight point lead for themselves. At one point in that period the Cadets had a nine point margin, but a combination of shots by Bill Hathaway and Pete Markle narrowed the gap to three points at half-time, the scoreboard reading 27-24.

A&M had 37.9 per cent of their early in the second half and had a 10 point lead midway in the period. At one point in that half the Farmers held a 24 point lead. A&M made 37.9 per cent of their shots from the floor in the first half while the Cougars could manage only a 30.4 per cent in the same period.

The Farmers waxed hot in the second period and hit over 50 per cent of their shots, finishing the game with 44.1 per cent field goal average. Houston hit 28 per cent for the game.

Free throws were almost the Aggies' downfall in the first half, the Farmers hitting only five of 12 free shots. The Cougars meshed 10 of 12 in the same period. A&M's accuracy improved in the second half with the Cadets sinking 10 of 13.

Markle was the high point man for Houston, tying Chapman's total of 16 points. Markle was the only Cougar to score in double figures.

Besides Chapman, Wayne Annett and Carroll Broussard scored in the double figures, Annett hit-

Broussard Goes Up

Carroll Broussard (54), 6-5 sophomore from Port Arthur gets above the reaches of Houston's Bill Hathaway (43) who is 6-11. Looking on for Houston is Dan Palombizio (45) and Gary Phillips (55) and in the background is the Cadet's Wayne Lawrence. This was one of the many action filled plays as the Aggies went on to an easy 67-49 victory over the Cougars.

Aggies Have Poorest Record in SWC

Since 1915, when basketball officially began in the Southwest Conference, the Farmers have proved to be the losingest team in the league.

In over 44 years of basketball the Aggies have won 233 while losing 313, a .427 average.

The largest A&M conference win streak was 1920-23 when the Farmers won the SWC championship outright four times in a row.

But, they had to wait until 1951 before they won it again, and that time it was a three way tie with TCU and Texas.

Dick O'Neal of TCU has the most individual records in the conference, without A&M being able to claim even one.
