Short of Last Year's

Aggie Campus Chest Totals $1,490 As Deadline Nears

Collections for the Aggie Campus Chest as of last night totaled $1,490, according to Marvin Schneider, chairman of the Student Senate Welfare Committee.

The major collections have been completed and Schneider said the collections are not quite as good as they were last year.

The goal is a dollar an Aggie. "Last year just under $2,000 was collected," Schneider said.

Members of the Welfare Com-tee said they still expect money to be turned from random places. The deadline to contribute is Friday.

Contributions to the Aggie Campus Chest started in the Corps last Saturday morning. Each military unit commander was responsible for the collection within his own unit. Money collected was turned over to Brigade or Wing staffs and then forwarded to Schneider or Wade Dover, a member of Schneider's committee.

On Monday and Tuesday of this week collections were taken in the civilian dorms. William H. Brown of Puryear and Roland Dommert of Walton are in charge of collections in civilian areas this year.

Results of the civilian collections, according to Schneider, show the civilians contributed less money this year compared with last year.

Final results of this year's collections will not be known until sometime Friday. Aggies can still contribute their money in receptacles located at the end of the coffee lines in the MSC, or by contacting any member of the Student Senate Welfare Committee.

Sixty per cent of this year's Aggie Campus Chest will be returned directly to the student body, Schneider said. In the past several checks have been sent to deserving Aggies or their families.

The remaining forty per cent goes to such deserving organizations as the World University Service, the Brazos County Tuberculosis Assn., the College Station Community Chest and the March of Dimes.

"The Welfare Committee wishes to express its appreciation to the CO's, the dorm presidents and the Civilian Student Council for their support," Schneider said.

Ambassador Says To Eliminate Force

The Hon. R. S. S. Gunewardene, Ambassador to Ceylon to the United States, told 140 student delegates at the Fifth Student Conference on National Affairs last night that human understanding and definitely not force should be the ruling factor in keeping peace in the world today.

Speaking in G. Rollie White Coliseum, Gunewardene, a founder-member of the Ceylon National Congress which led the country through the path of constitutional development to ultimate independence in 1948, stressed that America and Russia will control the destiny of mankind and it will be America's duty to convey the thoughts and ideologies of the founder of America to every country in the world.

"Human nature is the same whether you live in Asia, Europe or South America," he said. "The only change in human nature will occur through geographical and political ideologies."

Not 'Neutral'

He pointed out that Asian and African nations are not necessarily "neutral" just because they have not openly aligned themselves with the Communist and Free World blocks.

In a demanding tone the Ambassador asked why independent nations with sovereign powers commit themselves to ideology accepted by another society. "Customs, background, religion and form of government determine the acceptance or denial of commitments," he pointed out.

A Positive Approach

"The world must develop a positive approach to problems of today. This can be accomplished not by any one nation, but by all nations taking a stand for peace."

He said that a showdown is inevitable between the two ruling powers of the world today—Russia and the United States. That regardless of the number of countries of the Free World and the Communist World who stand with their respective sides, the final reckoning will be that of America and Russia.

A Talking War

"Personally, I prefer neither a cold war, nor a hot war, but rather a talking war," he said.

In closing Gunewardene said, "Your country and mine are both working for the preservation of independence, freedom and our way of life. Still the bulk of the burden lies in the hands of America, whose inspiration and guiding factor have led to a hope of peace in the world today."

Ike Shows U. S. Obligation to Disarm

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—President Eisenhower said today the United States is committed to a ceaseless search for genuine disarmament, but "weakness in arms often invites aggression or subversion or externally manipulated revolution."

"Controlled universal disarmament is the imperative of our time," Eisenhower told India's Parliament in what was probably the most important speech of his 22,000-mile peace journey.

"The demand for it by the hundreds of millions whose chief concern is the long future of themselves and their children will, I hope, become so universal and insistent that no man, no government can withstand it."

The President, still exhilarated by India's colossal welcome, addressed 600 members of Parliament in joint session after talking over world problems with Prime Minister Nehru for more than four hours. There was little question that Red China was a key topic.

In his address, Eisenhower made no direct mention of Nehru's troubles with the Peiping regime over disputed border territory. But he said the United States has built up adequate armed forces.

"They serve not only for ourself but our friends and allies who, like us, have perceived this danger," he added. "They so serve for defensive purposes only."

The danger Eisenhower had in mind was clearly that posed by international communism. He said a long series of harsh alarms had caused anxiety and suffering in the past decade.

"These alarms invariably had their source in the aggressive intentions of an alien philosophy backed by great military might," he said. "Faced with this fact, we in America have felt it necessary to make clear our own determination to resist aggression through the provision of adequate armed forces."

In an indirect slam at communism, Eisenhower said Americans and Indians think alike because

"you and we never boast that ours is the only way."

"We both seek the improvement and betterment of all our citizens by assuring that the state will serve and not master its own people, or any other people."
