

Worth Mentioning

By Johnny Johnson

The U. S. Army currently has an interesting display set up in the Memorial Student Center. The display shows the nose cone in which the two monkeys, Able and Baker, made their flight into outer space and also has a projector that shows scenes of the Army's missile program.

In front of the MSC a Nike missile is on display. I must admit, though, the missile looks out of place with the Christmas decorations which proclaim the coming of the "peace of earth, good will toward men" season.

The College Station Lions Club is selling Christmas trees at East Gate. The club is also selling pine cones, ornaments, icicles and lights.

The sale provides an excellent opportunity for people of the community to purchase their Christmas decorations and at the same time help support several of the worthy projects carried on throughout the year by Lions Club.

SCONA V has loaded the campus with college student visitors. The Men of Aggie land really have an excellent opportunity to show off their college to these visitors.

Civilian sophomores and juniors are reminded that those whose surnames begin with L through R will have their pictures for the Aggie land '60 taken at the Aggie land Studio today.

Monday and Tuesday those whose surnames begin with S through Z will have their pictures made.

Magazines for patients at the Veteran's Hospital at Temple are still needed, according to Bennie.

A. Zinn, director of the Department of Student Affairs.

Students with magazines for which they have no further use can do a good turn for the patients at the hospital by taking the magazines to the Housing Office in the basement of the YMCA as soon as possible.

It is highly discouraging to note that grades are down this year. With the emphasis on study conditions in the Corps, perhaps the fault lies elsewhere.

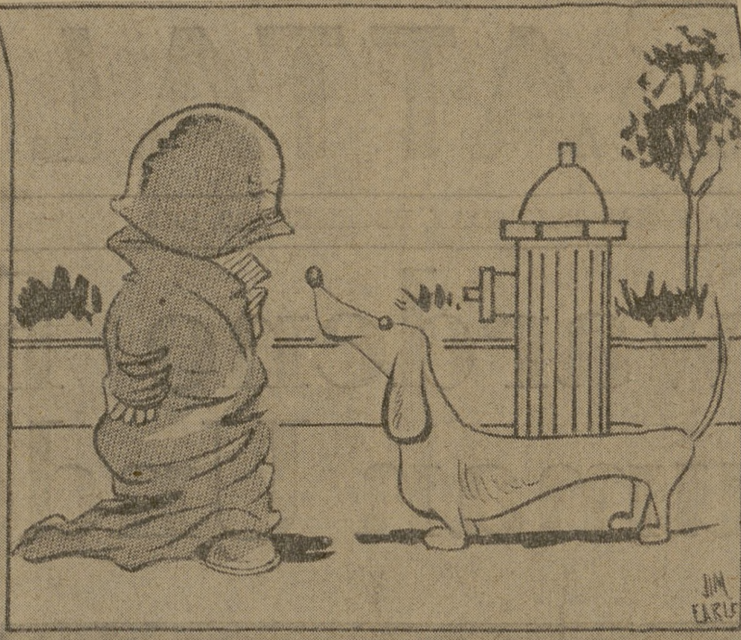

Clifford Lane, '59, is trying to form a student chamber of commerce. The organization would function similar to city chamber of commerce in promoting Texas A&M. Anyone interested in such a program should contact Lane. The Battalion will keep its readers posted on developments in the formation of this group.

Lane, who was also partly responsible for the safety talks and lectures to Corps freshmen prior to work on the Bonfire, also told me that the Student Safety Society would soon have figures compiled on accidents during the Bonfire.

The society deserves a large measure of thanks for the work during Bonfire work.

Staff Men Present Research Papers

Research papers were presented by A&M staff men at the recent meeting of Southwest Region of the American Chemical Society, held in Baton Rouge, La. Attending from the Department of Chemistry were Dr. A. W. Jache, Dr. R. H. Patton, Dr. H. K. Zimmerman, Dr. Hans Weidmann and Dr. R. A. Zingaro, all of whom presented papers. J. B. Beckham represented the A&M-Baylor section of the society.

James R. Bradley, a staff member of the industrial economics division of the Texas Engineering Experiment Station since 1951, has been appointed acting head of that division of the station.

He succeeds L. S. Paine, who is now specializing in research dealing with community industrial development.

Bradley is an A&M graduate who was formerly employed in the marketing section of the Magnolia Petroleum Company at Dallas and as a lecturer in finance for the night college of Southern Methodist University.
