Judging Teams Capture Titles

The A&M Department of Animal Husbandry has produced three national champion senior judging teams in the short span of two consecutive years at the Collegiate Livestock Show.

These teams covered all five categories of livestock, wool, and grading fleeces, including beef cattle, swine, sheep, and poultry. Each team placed in the top three places in their respective divisions.

In 1957, the A&M team placed second in beef cattle and sixth in swine. In 1958, they repeated their success in beef cattle and took fifth in swine. In 1959, they claimed first place in beef cattle and fourth in swine.

Team members included: Donald Osbourn, Lee Holloway, Kenny Henderson, and Cliff Joyce in 1957; and Donald Osbourn, Larry Holloway, Kenny Henderson, and Cliff Joyce in 1958 and 1959.

The year 1959, then, was a triple triumph for Texas A&M, as the Judging Team went from second to first, and from fifth to fourth, both in beef cattle and swine.

W.K. Hendrix, chairman of the judging team, pointed out, "The students take pride in representing A&M and Texas. We are glad to be part of this winning tradition."

New Dorm, New Dining Hall

The newly dedicated Dormitory, also known as "Sorority Hall," will host the women's varsity basketball team in the coming season. The new dormitory is the largest of its kind in the South, providing additional accommodations for female students.

The dining hall, named "Rollie White Coliseum," is designed to accommodate up to 3,000 students simultaneously, providing ample space for meals and social gatherings.

A&M celebrates with a "Christmas in July" theme for the grand opening, with special decorations and festive activities planned for students and visitors alike.

Nutritional Science

The Department of Animal Husbandry offers a comprehensive curriculum in the Department of Military Science for advanced training, resulting in a Bachelor of Science in Animal Science with options in animal husbandry or nutrition.

Practical Work Period Problem

Army Juniors are faced with an unexpected challenge, as the recent floods have disrupted military operations in the region. The Practical Work Period, which focuses on the unexpected problems of warfare, is now under severe threat.

Osbourn, the high individual in all four categories of judging, stated, "The floods have caused significant delays in our training, but we remain dedicated to fulfilling our duties."
