Dr. Ernest Yeager, professor of chemistry at Western Reserve University, has scheduled two talks in this area next Tuesday.

At 3:15 p.m., he will speak informally to the faculty and graduate students of the Baylor Department of Chemistry on the topic of fuel cell research. Then at 7:45 p.m., he will address the local section of the American Chemical Society in Room 110 of the Science Hall at Baylor University. His topic will be, "Fundamental Applications for Ultrasonic Waves in Chemistry."

Yeager, who was born in Orange, N. J. in 1924, received a B.A. degree from New Jersey State Teachers College in 1945 and M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from Western Reserve in 1946 and 1948.

Yeager, who holds membership in many technical and honorary societies, is Technical Director of the Ultrasonic Research Laboratory at Western Reserve in addition to holding a professorship in chemistry. In 1955, he received the Technical Award of Cleveland Technical Societies Council and the Biennial Award of the Accountant Society of America in 1946.

His present research interests center around applications for ultrasonic waves in chemistry, electrochemistry (electrode processes and electrolytes) and emission and absorption spectroscopy.

After Shooting Scrape

Gunman Faces Charges

By JOE BENHAM

SAN MARCOS (AP)—A burly, heavily-armed taxi driver who shot an elderly fellow driver and then held off lawmen for two hours with gunfire Tuesday faces assault to murder charges today.

Sandy-haired, red-faced Rugel Rowland, 30, waived examining trial before Justice of the Peace W. G. Callihan, who ordered him held without bail pending a medical examination.

Used Tear Gas

Three team gas shells drove Rowland from the apartment above the bus station where he fled after firing a 45-caliber bullet into the stomach of Robert Burt, 62, at an adjoining taxi stand.

Burt, father of 12, was reported in fair condition following surgery.

Rowland fired 18 times into the walls of the stucco building and several times through the windows.

Father Flees

Two of the shots forced his father, Harlan Rowland, to flee after he stepped beneath a window to try to talk his son into surrendering. The elder Rowland said his son recovered recently from a nervous breakdown.

Officers held their fire while waiting for Texas Rangers to bring tear gas from Austin, 28 miles north of here.

Hundreds of spectators poured into the business district of this South Central Texas college town, crowding near the building despite shots fired by Rowland from a 30-caliber Army carbine and a pair of .45-caliber pistols.

Rowland tossed the pistols ahead of him as he crawled, tears streaming down his face, into a tiny porch outside the apartment after the Rangers fired the gas through a window.

Officers found the carbine and a pair of toy pistols inside the three-room flat.

No Reason

Witnesses, Rowland's family and officers could give no reason for the shooting. When newsmen tried to question Rowland, Hays County Sheriff Jack Gary snapped, "Just leave him alone."

"I think he's mentally sick," Gary said. He said Rowland signed a statement admitting the shooting. Newsmen were not allowed to witness the signing or read the statement.

Another driver, 60-year-old Virgil Inglet, said he had his back turned to Rowland and Burt when he heard Rowland say, "I understand you've used my name in vain." A pistol shot followed.

Inglet said he left through the back door of the one-room stand and ran to a beauty shop which occupies part of the bus station building. He called police and an ambulance.

Bader Named To Serve With Geoscientist Group

Dr. Richard G. Bader of the Department of Oceanography and Meteorology will participate as one of the visiting scientists in the American Geological Institute Visiting Geoscientists Program this year.

The Institute is conducting the program for the second straight year with the aid of a grant from the National Science Foundation. Outstanding scientists from various fields of specialization in the geosciences have been selected by an AGI advisory committee to participate in the 1960 program, Robert C. Stephenson, executive director, Washington, D. C., announces.

The program is aimed primarily at aiding the smaller departments of geology and geophysics in colleges and universities throughout the United States.

The objectives of the Visiting Geoscientist Program are to awaken interest of promising students in the future careers in the "geo" sciences—geology and geophysics—and to encourage these students to pursue an adequate course of academic preparation in the basic sciences as well as the geosciences in career preparation; to stimulate college faculties in the geosciences to better instruction and to help them become better informed on research and developments in the field of the visitor's specialization; to improve the understanding and appreciation of the geosciences on the campus and in the community.
