Executives Learn to Listen At Institute in Kerrville

KERRVILLE, Tex., (AP) — For centuries people have been going to school to learn to speak. Now they're studying to listen.

Listening was one of the prime subjects of an institute held here in January attended by 15 superintendents of major business firms.

Guy B. Arthur Sr., of Toccoa, Ga., employ opinion survey firm, said studies show an executive spends nearly half his communications time in listening, 30 per cent in talking, 16 in reading and 9 in writing.

"Good leadership is rooted in skillful listening," Arthur said.

Here are some of his tips: Listen attentively and put the speaker at ease by showing interest in what he is saying. Smile and nod frequently as signposts that you are listening.

Encourage the speaker with questions when talk lags, or even to get the conversation under way. Get the speaker's key thoughts and try to put them together to form a pattern, which will help you anticipate what he is going to say next.

Use empathy—putting yourself in his shoes—and avoid sympathy since emotional involvements block any efforts of helping a speaker with his problems.

Don't take notes unless your speaker asks you to jot down certain facts.

Look for hidden meanings—watching out for tricky words—and listen for what the speaker is not saying. Often it's more important what a man doesn't say about a controversial subject than the flow of words he uses to cover up his real feeling.

Write down 50 words at the conclusion of each interview and evaluate the conversation.

Keep yourself out of the conversation. The man who is speaking is the man with the problem and you can't help him until you find out what the problem is and what he wants you to do.

Ike to Set Keynote For Republican

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP)— President Eisenhower apparently will sound the keynote of the Republican National Convention opening July 25 in Chicago.

Although Eisenhower is not likely to take over the duties of temporary chairman, who usually delivers the keynote speech, Republicans generally expect the President to set the tone for their campaign in a major address. GOP National Chairman Thorton B. Morton said it has been left up to Eisenhower to decide which day he wishes to speak.

"The President will have a major part in the convention," Morton said. "His speech may well furnish the keynote for the convention."

NSA Offers New Program This Summer

Three new summer programs for college students to Paris, Florence and Vienna have recently been announced by the West Coast Office of the National Student Assn.

The groups in the European cities will have an opportunity to combine language studies with a study of the literature, music, politics, history, agriculture, architecture, economics and theater of the country. The students will also travel for several weeks within the country of study. They will live with families and will meet with members of local governments, religious leaders, educators and artists.

After a six week stay in one country, a trip is arranged for the group to another European country of interest. The French group will visit Italy, the Italian group will visit France and the Austrian group will visit Italy and France.

The NSA "Study-Travel" groups gives a student an opportunity of really getting to know one country, and an opportunity to study a foreign language in the native country. The language classes will be arranged on the beginning intermediate and advanced level.

The total cost of the all-summer program is $795 which includes trans-Atlantic transportation and all expenses in Europe. The NSA is a non-profit educational organization serving the American student community.

Eisenhower's appearance would be calculated to give a life to a convention that may lack crowd and television appeal because of the absence of any contest for the party's top nomination. Vice President Richard M. Nixon is almost certain to be named to head the ticket.

Some Republicans have been worried about the contract between their potentially cut-and-dried affair in Chicago and the dramatic battles Democrats may put on in Los Angeles two weeks earlier.

Nixon himself is not unmindful of this. He will welcome Eisenhower's appearance not only as a temporary stimulant to the Republicans but because there is every indication the President will strongly endorse Nixon as a candidate.

Morton said the convention arrangements committee will wait until late in April before canvassing the field of potential convention officers.

Although Morton did not comment, there were reports in other quarters that the national chairman and Nixon hope Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller might be persuaded to accept a more active role than that of head of the New York delegation.

Rockefeller, however, apparently has given no encouragement to any such plans. He quit as a potential rival for the top nomination with the statement that those who controlled the convention didn't want a contest. He hasn't praised Nixon since.

Nixon, who is regarded as likely to have the final say in the matter, has indicated he wants Robert A. Taft Jr., son of the late Ohio senator, placed in an important convention job.
