

Worth Mentioning

By Johnny Johnson

Unlike most semesters, this one has started off with several important events that may have large effects upon the future of many semesters to come.

The two changes in Corps of Cadets policy announced Monday by Dean of Students James P. Hannigan, 85th District Court's Judge W. T. McDonald's ruling against the admission of female students to Texas A&M and the announcement of a decline in the number of first semester losses and an increase in the number of students for this semester over the enrollment last spring all were events of importance this week.

If the semester continues at the pace set by the first part of the first week, then indeed the Spring Semester of 1960 will be a monumental one for Texas A&M.

The reduction in the number of students transferring at the end of January and the increase in enrollment for this semester show that several changes instituted over the last two years are beginning to bear fruit.

As we have mentioned earlier the cooperation between students, student leaders and college administration people and faculty members is bearing fruit for Texas A&M.

If this same spirit of cooperation and progress continues, even more advancements for Texas A&M will be shown in the future.

The Animal Husbandry Wives Club will meet tonight at 7:30 at the home of Mrs. T. C. Cartwright, 211 Lee St.

Tuesday while Dean of Students James P. Hannigan, Director of the Department of Student Affairs Bennie A. Zinn and Manager of the College Physical Plants W. H. Badgett were checking damage done to barricades on Spence Street by vandals Monday night, they witnessed an amusing event.

A golfer was practicing tee shots on the golf course driving range and after hitting a shot went down the course to retrieve his ball. After a frantic search for the ball, he finally discovered it—in the storm sewer whose cover had been taken off by the Monday night vandals.

Air France is offering free movies to students Tuesday, Feb. 23, at 2 p.m. in Rooms 3-B and 3-C of the Memorial Student Center. The airline is offering a tour plan to students that includes three days in Paris, one day each in Naples, Rome and Capri and nine days in a Polytechnic student camp in Sicily. The plan costs $796.90 including round-trip air transportation from New York City to Sicily, including stopovers at the four cities.

An Aggie father who is an instructor in the Department of Religious Education, Arthur M. Smith, needs help. Following commissioning exercises Jan. 23 at which his son was commissioned, he left a movie camera case containing photographic equipment and papers belonging to Tom Puddy, manager of Guion Hall and a friend of Smith's on the steps of Guion Hall and someone took it.

Smith asks that anyone who knows anything of the case and its contents to please call him at either his office, VI 6-6411, or his home, VI 6-5051.

Colleges Talk Idea Of Honor System

Political internships, an honor system federation, and proposed curriculum changes were several changes in some American colleges and universities last week, according to the Intercollegiate Press.

Representatives from the United States Military Academy, the United States Naval Academy, the United States Merchant Marine Academy, Princeton University, the University of Virginia and Stevens Institute of Technology met on the campus of the Stevens Institute to work out the mechanics of setting up an advisory organization to help colleges set up honor systems. Twenty-seven colleges now have honor systems.

Bethany College, Bethany, W. Va., plans to initiate a new program in practical politics to supplement traditional courses in political science, beginning with the second semester in February. All Bethany students will be required to take a one-hour course under ex-governor C. William O'Neill of Ohio. This will be supplemented by seminars for advanced students.

A few select liberal arts and pre-professional students from Bethany College will have a chance for an eight-week practical political internship with party headquarters, legislators, various administrative offices and legislative reference bureaus.

Alma College of Alma, Mich., has created a new curriculum plan, beginning with the Class of 1963, that will increase hour requirements to 124 and, according to the Curriculum Committee report, "Will also serve to prevent students from carefully plotting their way toward graduation by the selection of only those courses which are in student opinion the least demanding." The committee objective will be reached with new senior comprehensive examinations that will cover the sciences, humanities and social sciences.

A proposed plan for gifted students has been suggested at the University of New Hampshire by its Special Committee on the Gifted Student. The general plan is to identify gifted students while they are still in New Hampshire high schools. Their expected mean is 140 I.Q. The committee expects about 40 students.

A new structure of fees which relates college costs to family financial resources will soon go into effect at Mary Baldwin College. The women's college in Staunton, Va., has set its base charge at $1,000 for room, board and services and plans to add a varying tuition charge ranging from zero to $1,000. The old system at $1,650 for boarding students will be abolished in favor of this new system.

Skidmore College at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., through its Student Curriculum Committee, has eliminated its "days of review" prior to final examinations, revamped the exam schedule, and has made it possible for students to have only one final a day during the final exam period. Under the new plan, students at this women's college will have the weekend to study and, in most cases, they will have one full free day during the exam period.

Amherst College is currently presenting a new course in science taught jointly by a philosopher and a physicist, dealing with the three great developments by which modern science, "has influenced the history of ideas and man's view of his place in the universe." These topics are relativity, the laws of thermodynamics, and the quantum concepts.

CHANGE IN COMMAND FT. HUACHUCA, Ariz. (AP)—An Arizona National Guardsman was planning to be married the day after active duty training ended at Ft. Huachuca. "How does it feel to be on the brink of marriage?" an officer asked. S4C James Westover of Yuma replied, "It's merely a matter of changing commanding officers."
