Naturopaths Denied In Appeals Ruling

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Texas naturopaths lost another battle in New Orleans Wednesday when the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals tossed out their appeal against Texas laws which forbid the practice of naturopathy.

The circuit court noted that the U. S. Supreme Court earlier this month upheld Texas laws on the subject.

The New Orleans court said the Supreme Court ruling settled the issue and there was no point in the circuit court ruling on the appeal of the naturopaths.

Naturopaths claim to cure with natural measures, without drugs or surgery.

Disc Jockey Quits, He Was Ashamed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A disc jockey who accepted $9,955 from record companies over a three-year period says he quit because "I was ashamed of myself. I was ashamed of the industry."

The story told by Norman Prescott of Boston was released by the House subcommittee on Legislative Oversight which continues behind closed doors today its hearings on payola.

The subcommittee arranged to hear from Don Masters, disc jockey and record librarian at Boston station WHIL. There was no explanation of why he would be heard in secret.

Two other witnesses were heard behind closed doors Wednesday because of health reasons. They were Harry Carter, president and treasurer of Music Suppliers, Inc., a Boston Record distributing firm, and Samuel H. Clark, former owner of music suppliers and now president of Am-Par Corp., a subsidiary of American Broadcasting Co.-Paramount Theatres, Inc., of New York.

Both Music Suppliers and Am-Par have been cited in payola complaints filed by the Federal Trade Commission.

The subcommittee released Wednesday testimony given Feb. 8 by Prescott, who said he walked out last July from his job as disc jockey on Boston Station WBZ.

Accidents Kill More Youths

Accidents today kill more college-age youths than all other causes combined, Dan Webster of the National Safety Council at Chicago told members of the third Conference on College and University Safety for Texas held here Wednesday and Thursday.

Webster, who is staff representative of the school and college division of the council, said the situation could become worse before any significant improvement is made.

He said the medical profession is predicting that this decade will be a healthy one as far as disease and physiological ailments are concerned, but deaths and injuries from accidents probably will be greater in proportion.

The session was sponsored by the A&M College System Accident Prevention Committee and the Texas Safety Association, with emphasis on safety at colleges and universities.

John W. Hill, personnel and safety director for the A&M System and program chairman, said the conference is promoted to encourage safety activities that will meet the needs of students and staff in the areas of traffic safety and safety in places of study, work and living.

Stressing this theme, Webster said students have a big stake in college safety programs. Avoiding curtailment of their activities will require co-operation in making many student functions safer than they have been. This applies especially to automobiles, rallies, parties, etc., he said.

The speaker cited the no-accident record of the A. and M. bonfire in 1959, due to action by a student safety group.

Webster called for a basic safety course for all college students which would give them an understanding of accident problems now and in the future.

Brad Smith of Austin, director of the governor's Highway Safety Commission, said automobiles have been greatly improved and Texas is building some of the best highways in the Western Hemisphere.

"But when it comes to improving drivers, we've gone almost nowhere," he said. "The net result is a lack of proper attitude in allowing driver behavior to be determined solely by his daring or his particular desire at a particular moment."

It is only fair, however, to note some progress, Smith told the conference. Colleges and universities in Texas are starting at the top and are providing capable driver training instructors. Work is starting at the bottom by putting driver training in as many high schools as possible.

"Gov. Price Daniel has given driver education in public schools top priority in his traffic program for Texas," Smith said.

The brighter side of safety was discussed by Dr. Lee Wilborn, assistant commissioner for instruction of the Texas Education Agency at Austin. He is also vice chairman for schools and colleges for the Texas Safety Association.

Dr. Wilborn said extensive safety teamwork is now in operation, beginning with the governor and then the Texas Safety Association, elementary and secondary schools, colleges, industry and the business world.

"A good job is being done," he said. "As fast as our population is growing and the way we are moving, if we didn't have this effort, our accident losses would really be staggering."

Another speaker, John Morris, safety co-ordinator for the University of Illinois and campus safety association chairman, said the following objectives should be set by any group or individual working in college on university safety:

Fire safety in student residences; safety in school buildings, especially places of assembly; safety in school work operations and in new construction; adoption of standard

President Earl Rudder gave an address of welcome at the conference. In addition to Hill, men presiding at the session were Dr.
