Snow, Rain

Cold Air Mass Moves Into Texas

A bitter cold air mass pushed deep into Texas Thursday in the wake of snow and freezing rain that closed schools, disrupted traffic, and left thousands of homes and farms without heat and electricity.

Skies were clear in all except the southern part of the state early Thursday. But the U. S. Weather Bureau warned that skies would begin to cloud up again Friday with new snow flurries likely in the Panhandle by Friday night.

Mercury Drops

The mercury plummeted to 3 degrees above zero at Dalhart shortly before dawn Thursday and freezing weather extended as far south as Lufkin and Junction, College Station and Austin.

Other early morning lows included Amarillo 4 degrees, Childress 10, Lubbock 12, Wichita Falls, Abilene 19, Mineral Wells and Fort Worth 21, Dallas 22, Texarkana 23, San Angelo 24, Waco 26, Wink 29, Junction, Austin and College Station 30, and Lufkin 31. The highest pre-dawn reading was 51 at Brownsville.

Readings Repeated

The Weather Bureau said the low temperatures would be repeated Friday morning.

A crippling ice storm struck hard in East Texas Wednesday, the third day of freezing rain in the northern half of the state.

A heavy coating of ice, formed during 1.80 inches of freezing rain, split limbs from large trees and snapped power and phone lines in the Marshall area.

Rural Lows

The greatest suffering was in the rural areas of northeast Texas. The Rural Electrification Administration said that 93 per cent of its 5,300 customers in Harrison and Panola counties in Texas and adjacent sections of Louisiana were without power Wednesday.

Hallsville, Ore City and parts of Gilmer and Marshall were without power. Thousands shivered since the electric controls operating gas furnaces were knocked out.

Up to three inches of new snow fell in the Panhandle Wednesday and sleet storms struck at Henderson, Mesquite and other points.

Air Flight Cancelled

Six deaths and hundreds of minor accidents were blamed on the weather as ice-coated highways made traveling extremely dangerous. At Abilene air flight was cancelled and buses were up to four hours late arriving at that city.

Camera Group Plans Tour

Happy shooting will be the motto of the Memorial Student Center Camera Committee Saturday as they leave for Houston and Galveston on a two-day photography excursion.

Twelve committee members, along with Dr. Don Huss, faculty advisor, are planning to make the expense-paid tour, according to Billy Ray Smith, camera committee president.

According to Smith, the group will leave for Houston Saturday morning, where they will photograph professional models from a model agency, tour Hermann Park and take night shots of refineries and industry in Pasadena and Texas City.

That night the party will leave for Galveston, where they will spend the night in Hotel Galvez.

They plan to take beach shots Sunday and leave for A&M that evening.

The pictures will be taken in preparation for the first annual Southwestern Intercollegiate Photo Salon, to be held April 1-7, Smith said.

Krushchev's Tough Talks Hinge on Brink of Violation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev's increasingly tough talk about Berlin appeared today to put him on the brink of violating his Camp David promise that new talks should go forward without a Soviet deadline.

Diplomatic authorities who have followed Khrushchev's freewheeling comment during his Far Eastern trip said the Soviet leader clearly is trying to build up an atmosphere of threats in advance of the summit parley in Paris May 15. Khrushchev's more menacing tone, they reported, has been accompanied by a stronger anti-American line in the Soviet press during the past few weeks.

Favorite Theme

During his travels, Khrushchev's favorite theme has been to repeat that he will sign a separate peace treaty with Communist East Germany unless the Allies agree with the Soviet Union on an all-German treaty.

His November 1958 call for such a treaty and his demand that the Allies pull their troops out of West Berlin set off a new crisis. He appeared at the time to have set a six-month deadline, but later disclaimed any such intention and fixed no specific time for action.

In a farewell news conference in Indonesia Monday, however, Khrushchev tied the need for a Berlin settlement to the summit conference. He hinted strongly that he would make his advertised deal with East Germany if the talks fail.

No Violation

Technically, Khrushchev's language did not violate his Camp David pledge to President Eisenhower. But diplomatic authorities, even while making allowance for his usual propaganda, say he came mighty close.

At Camp David, Khrushchev lifted any ultimatum aspect out of his demand that the West agree to make West Berlin what he called a free city. He said the talks for a friendly settlement should be convened without a fixed deadline.

No Promise. . .

Eisenhower, on his part, promised that the Berlin discussions would not be prolonged indefinitely. But he made no promise to settle the bitter dispute during any set time or in any single conference.

Most Western diplomatic authorities, while concerned over Khrushchev's talk, believe he will stop short of specifically imposing any new deadline. They feel Khrushchev realizes that talk much tougher that he is using now may cause a new East-West crisis and persuade Eisenhower to pull out of the summit parley the Soviet leader has so eagerly sought.
