Engineering Department Wins Award

Frank Lynch of Bryan, left, president of the A&M Student Branch of the American Society of Civil Engineers, represents the Department of Civil Engineering in receiving an award for the best open house display during the recent High School Career Day at the college. The department has won the award several times in the past.

Two Lutheran Aggies Attend Annual Washington Seminar

Gary Anderson, sophomore engineering major from Corpus Christi, and Don Vahrenkamp, sophomore architect major from Dallas, were among Lutheran students from 25 states that attended the 11th annual Washington Seminar for Lutheran Students April 10-13.

While in Washington, the 128 students had an opportunity to observe the federal government in operation, to discuss current issues, to clarify the responsibilities of Christian citizenship in a democracy and to appreciate the role of Christians in public life.

At the Pentagon, the students heard addresses on "The Role of the U. S. Armed Forces in World Affairs," "Missile and Space Programs," and "Character Guidance Programs in the Armed Forces."

During a visit to the State Department, officials described the citizen's role in foreign affairs, told of current progress toward disarmament, and outlined factors in the Berlin negotiations.

Missouri Synod participants included the Rev. Norman Temme, associate director of the Department of Public Relations in New York City, and Miss Olinda Roettger, Washington secretary of the Department of Public Relations. Students also heard Dr. Robert E. Van Deusen, Washington secretary of the Division of Public Relations of the National Lutheran Council, who discussed "The Christian Citizen in a Democracy," and Dr. Paul M. Orso, executive director of the Lutheran Inner Mission Society in the nation's capital, who spoke on "Christian Social Responsibility."

Held annually in the spring, the Washington Seminar is jointly sponsored by the Department of Public Relations of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod and the Division of Public Relations of the National Lutheran Council.

FAA Names New Aide at Easterwood

The Federal Aviation Agency announced today the appointment of Vernon L. Swendsen, formerly of Lubbock, to begin training as a flight service specialist at the College Station Flight Service Station at Easterwood Field.

Describing Swendsen's duties, William S. Hall, chief flight service specialist at Easterwood, said: "As a flight service specialist, Swendsen will be trained to furnish vital flight assistance to pilots. It will become his responsibility to accept and relay pilot flight plans, issue weather reports and relay messages between pilots and FAA air route traffic controllers. In emergency cases, flight service specialists initiate ground aid air search orders when an airplane is missing or overdue."

Upon completion of his training as a flight service specialist, Swendsen will become one of the many highly trained FAA employees in the United States. This experienced team of career specialists, along with the giant web of electronic air aids, makes up the more than 158,000 miles of safe air highways that are used by both military and civil aircraft.
