Board Elects New Officers, Discusses Building Program

The election of J. B. (Dick) Hervey as new president of the A&M Consolidated School Board highlighted a special board meeting Monday night.

Dr. Johnny Rogers was elected board vice-president, John E. Longley was elected secretary and Mit Williams was chosen assistant secretary.

New trustees, Herb Thompson and Longley, were officially installed and plans for the high school and Lincoln school buildings were approved.

The board gave the green light to architects Page, Southerland & Page of San Antonio for construction of the planned buildings. Proposed target completion date for the high school building and Lincoln building is Nov. 1, 1960.

Target date for the new elementary school, still in the planning stage, is Feb. 1, 1961.

The board will meet in regular session next Monday night, April 25.

Science Visits In High Schools Will Continue

The Texas Academy of Science Visiting Scientists Program has been pronounced a huge success. Some 50 scientists from throughout Texas met with a panel of high school representatives in Austin recently to evaluate the program and it was unanimously agreed that the program should continue.

The program is designed to improve the status of science and mathematics education in the state by making available to high schools at no cost to them the services of professional scientists to discuss current knowledge in scientific fields. The program is financed by the National Science Foundation and is sponsored and administered by the Texas Academy of Science.

Attending from A&M were Dr. C. C. Doak, head of the Department of Biology; Dr. Richard J. Baldauf, head of the Department of Wildlife Management; Dr. R. E. Eads, of the Department of Chemistry; Dr. Joe S. Ham, of the Department of Physics; Dr. Jack Kent, of the Department of Mathematics; and Dr. Dale Leipper, head of the Department of Oceanography and Meteorology.

The meeting was called by Dr. Lafe Edmunds of the National Science Foundation and Dr. Addison Lee, program director, formerly of the A&M Department of Biology.

The A&M scientists have averaged four trips each to high schools of the state and several trips remain to be made.

Groneman Attends Art Conference

Chris H. Groneman, head of the Department of Industrial Education, is attending and participating in the American Industrial Arts Assn. annual convention meeting in Toronto, Canada, this week.

He will serve on a panel on which he will discuss national designs of industrial arts projects.

Syler Wins Second In National Level Essay Competition

James P. Syler, a senior in the School of Veterinary Medicine from San Angelo, has been notified that his essay was awarded second place in national competition.

The essay, "What Constitutes Ethical Publicity for the Practitioner," was entered in the Moss Essay Contest which is sponsored by the American Animal Hospital Assn.

The writers of the first and second place essays are invited to read their papers at the meeting of the American Animal Hospital Assn. and they are published in the proceedings of that association.

The "Southwestern Veterinarian," published by the students of Veterinary Medicine at A&M, will publish Syler's award winning essay in the summer edition.
