Dean Page Receives Tribute

Special tribute was paid Thursday to Dr. John Boyd Page, Dean of the College and Graduate School by President Earl Rudder. The tribute was made at the annual Faculty and Staff meeting. Page, who will assume new duties July 1 as Dean of the Graduate College at Iowa State University in Ames, Ia., joined the A&M faculty in 1950 as professor of agronomy and in 1955 was made head of the department. A year later he was appointed Dean of the Graduate School, and in 1957 was also named Dean of the College.

'Outstanding'

President Rudder, in recognizing Page for his outstanding contributions to the College, told the faculty and staff that "Dean Page is an outstanding scientist, administrator and scholar. His leaving will be a great loss to A&M."

"I want to express to you, Dean Page, our sincere regret at your leaving. It has been our privilege to be associated with a man of your talents."

"On behalf of the faculty, staff, administration and the student body, we wish for you and your family every success in your new life at Iowa State," President Rudder said.

While at A&M Page has done outstanding work in soils physics and soils chemistry. In 1953 he was national winner of the Stevenson Award for excellence for teaching and research in soils physics. He is the author of several technical articles on soils structures and compositions and their effects on plant growth.

Prior to coming to A&M Page served as an instructor at the University of California from 1939-

1936, his MS degree from the University of Missouri in 1937, and his PhD degree from Ohio State University in 1940.

Page is married and has two children. The Page's son, John, who attended A&M in 1957-58, will graduate in June with a degree in physics from the University of Utah. The daughter, Ann, who was a 1959 graduate of Stephen F. Austin High School in Bryan, is now a freshman at Brigham Young University.

SHARE YOUR WEALTH

We are not socialistic but we do believe you can share your wealth of knowledge with another Aggie by placing your old textbook on the market. (He might draw the same professor you had this semester!)

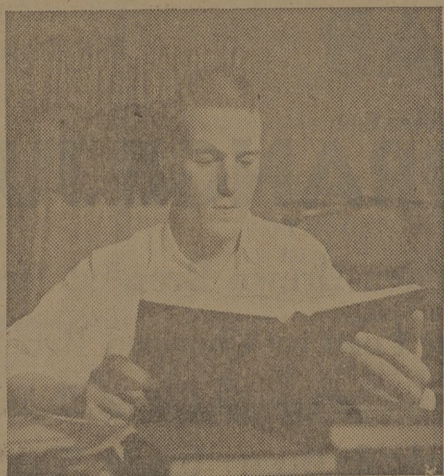

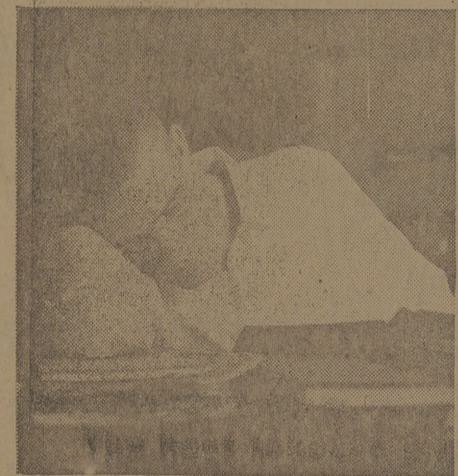

On second thought, perhaps you should keep that personally annotated copy. It might be worth its weight in gold to you sometime in the future.

On the other hand — if you are not interested in gold — and feel you have to lighten your payload on the long trek home—to MOM'S COOKING—we would welcome the opportunity to bid on the book.

Our offer will be the "FAIR MARKET VALUE" and par for the course.

Honored

These five retiring A&M professors were honored May 24 during the school's annual Spring Faculty and Staff Meeting. Recognized for their long and beneficial services to the college and the State of Texas were C. B. Godbey, professor and head of the Department of Genetics; Otis H. Miller, associate professor, Department of Journalism; Dr. Guy W. Adriance, professor and head of the Department of Horticulture; Dr. C. C. Doak, professor and head of the Department of Biology, and H. J. Reinhard of the Department of Entomology.

FACULTY, STAFF

R. O. Reid

Reid's college career was interrupted by military service in World War II and he returned to college to receive his BS degree from the University of Southern California and later the MS degree from Scripps Institute.

He divides his efforts between teaching and research and is a recognized authority in both.

R. J. Beamer

A native of Iowa and a graduate of Iowa State College, Beamer joined the faculty of A&M in 1954 after a wealth of practical experience in his field.

During his sojourn here, he has demonstrated skill as a veterinary surgeon.
