

Bank School Plans Outlined

Program for the Texas Farm and Ranch Credit School for Bankers, to be held here, Nov. 28-30, was outlined at a meeting here Wednesday of the Bankers Advisory Committee of the TFRCSB.

Sam A. Rowe, vice president and agricultural officer of the Alvin State Bank, is chairman of the advisory committee. The school is sponsored by the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology.

Other committee members are Dooley Dawson, vice president, Bank of the Southwest, Houston; W. C. Schmeer, vice president, Texas Bank and Trust Co., Dallas; C. R. Heaton, vice president, The Peoples National Bank, Tyler; John E. Key, vice president The Lubbock National Bank, Lubbock; G. A. Logan, assistant vice president and agriculturalist, First National Bank of Waco; Sam C. Montgomery, vice president, National Bank of Commerce, San Antonio; W. L. Bego, assistant vice president, First National Bank, Goliad; W. P. Duren, president, Mills County State Bank, Goldthwaite; W. H. Kelly, president, Del Rio National Bank, Del Rio and Dr. J. Z. Rowe, agricultural economist, Federal Reserve Bank, Dallas.

Aggies On Mexico Trip

Ten student members of this group in the School of Agriculture are on the annual Sears-Roebuck Foundation Agricultural Tour to Mexico. The students, selected on the basis of top records in scholarship and leadership, left Saturday and return Sunday, June 19. Standing, left to right, are Cal Johnson of Dallas, southwest public relations director of the Sears Foundation; Paul

Littlefield Name Familiar at Texas

Back in the first years of the Southwest Conference the big name in track was Clyde Littlefield. He was hurdles champion and record holder.

Littlefield became coach of his alma mater, Texas, in 1921 and in the ensuing 40 years won 24 conference championships.

Littlefield has a chance of having three hurdlers on the 1960 Olympics team, which would be a high point in his illustrious career.

There had been reports Littlefield planned to retire this year. But the grand old man of Texas track and field said the other day that he didn't plan to step out until he felt he was of no further use. That could be a long time and you can bet that Littlefield will be the one making the decision. Texas would not want to ever do without Littlefield.

Anyway, Coach Littlefield has a sparkle in his eyes these days that resembles the sparkle of the long ago when he was winning races for the university. Eddie Southern, Ray Cunningham and Rex Wilson are the brightest yet.

Southern was in the 1956 Olympic games as a freshman. He was second in the 400-meter hurdles. He's working for a return to the big show and appears a strong contender. Cunningham and Wilson are sophomores who have hardened Littlefield back to his youth.

Cunningham has run the high hurdles in 13.8 and the low hurdles in 22.6. His 13.8 removed the oldest record in the Southwest Conference, the 13.9 set by Fred Wolcott of Rice in 1940.

Wilson is concentrating on the 400-meter hurdles. He has done 51.8 in this event, which indicates he can hope to contend for a place on the Olympics team.

The state's representation on the Olympics squad could be the largest in history. Two boys already have made it. One is Jay Arnette, the great University of Texas basketball player. The other is Humberto Barrera, the Texas Golden Gloves flyweight champion from Robstown. Barrera made the boxing team.

Ollan Cassell of University of Houston is a good bet for the 400-meter run and Bobby Morrow, who was Olympics sprint champion in 1956, still isn't out of consideration. Morrow, however, has shown little indication thus far that's he's one of the top three sprinters of the country. Injuries have handicapped Bobby and he also just hasn't appeared to have the competitive fire of past years.

Out in California Rafer Johnson is trying for the Olympics in the decathlon. He should make it and if so he'll be another Texan on Uncle Sammy's squad. Johnson hails from Texas.

Branson Returns From DuPont Work

Dr. Robert E. Branson, chairman of the Consumer Economics Section in the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology, has returned from Wilmington, Del., where he discussed co-operative market research with the E. I. Du Pont Co.

He said consumer acceptance and demand for higher protein white bread is being considered as a research project.

Ags On Duty

South Korea has awarded its second highest decoration, the Uchi Medal with gold star, to Brig. Gen. Raymond L. Murray, '35, ADC of the 3rd Marine Division, for outstanding service during the Korean War.

The presentation was made May 23 by Lt. Gen. Kim Dae Shik, commandant of the Korean Marine Corps, in ceremonies at ROK Marine headquarters in Seoul. Gen. Murray was in Korea for a planning conference.

The citation accompanying the medal praised the General for services rendered the Republic of Korea during its fight against invading Communist forces.

During the Korean conflict, Gen. Murray commanded the 5th Marines of the 1st Marine Division. He was in command of that regiment during the battle at Chosin Reservoir.

Prior to receiving the Uchi Medal, Gen. Murray was presented the key to Seoul by Mayor Chang Kee Yung. A scroll accompanying the key said simply: "From a grateful citizenry."
