

Checking Bass Fry Size

Dr. Kirk Strawn, left, and Dr. Richard J. Baldaug, both of the Department of Wildlife Management, check on bass fry size at the State Fish Hatchery in San Marcos. The A&M professors are doing work at the San Marcos hatchery this summer on the effect of temperature during hatching on the number of bones of fish. They are doing the work under contract with the Texas Game and Fish Commission. The results of their experiments will be to allow researchers to identify fish hatched under the temperature conditions when they grow older by the number of their bones. Up until now no suitable method of marking young fish has been found. (Photo Courtesy of The San Marcos Record.)

Intramural Golf Tourney Set

Registration is now under way for the Intramural Golf Tournament to be held on the A&M Golf Course July 9-10, according to W. L. Penberthy, summer intramurals director. The medal play tournament is open to all summer school students and will consist of two 18-hole rounds, one for qualifying on Saturday, July 9, and the medal play, Sunday, July 10, said Penberthy. After the qualifying rounds shot Saturday, July 9, the entrants will be formed into flights for Sunday's competition, said Penberthy. Winners in each flight will receive an intramural medal. To enter dormitory students may register with their intramural manager and students not living in college-owned housing can enter at the pro shop at the course, Penberthy said. Students may enter as late as Saturday, July 9, when they must shoot their qualifying round. The Intramural Department will pay the green fees for both the medal and the qualifying round. Joe Fagan, manager of the course, will serve as tournament manager, according to Penberthy.

Little League

by Russell Brown

Rain stalled action in American League South play last week as the league opened its second half of play. Again, as in the first half, two quick victories by the Orioles have boosted the Birds into the first place slot in the loop.

Thursday's action found the first-half cellar-dwelling White Sox rise up and slap down the high-riding Senators, 13-9, on the strength of a six-run sixth inning. John Skrabanek weathered the Senator storm to take his initial win of the campaign against two losses although he was rocked for 10 hits while walking four and striking out nine. Joe Williams took his third straight defeat as the Sox unloaded eight hits in the final inning, 14 during the contest.

Williams also walked four and whiffed two. Skrabanek took hitting honors with three hits, two doubles, in four trips, driving in four teammates. Every Sox player hit safely except shortstop Jim Butler. Milton Moore crashed his first homer and Walter Varvel crossed up an intentional walk by slamming a triple from the left-hand batter's box to lead the losers.

Rained Out Tilts

Friday and Saturday action scheduled between the Red Sox-Senators and White Sox-Orioles were canceled by the deluges of rain in Central Texas. The tilts will be played at a later date if they have a bearing on the standings.

Monday the Senators rebounded from the licking and bounced the Red Sox, 7-3 behind Walter Varvel. Jimbo Robison absorbed the loss but six errors in the first three innings netted the Senators seven unearned runs and the victory. The first big threat by the Sox came in the sixth when they picked up three runs on two hits and two errors but Varvel settled down to whiff the final two foes for the victory. Varvel's two singles led the Senator attack while the Sox were only able to manage four singles off Varvel.

Orioles Win

Tuesday the Orioles began their second half play with a bang, slapping the White Sox, 12-2, with Willie Edmonds picking up the win. The winners picked up a run in the first before exploding for eight runs on six hits and one Sox miscue in the second to ice the win. The Birds completed the rout against Duke Butler with three more tallies in the third. Edmonds pitched runless ball until the sixth when three walks and a balk gave the losers their only two runs. Edmonds whiffed 14 while walking 10.

Davis Homers

Wednesday saw Oriole catcher Jerry Davis pound a fifth inning homer to give the Orioles a 6-5 win over the Senators. The circuit clout was Davis' first since June 9 and his sixth of the season. The blast gave Dennis Chaney his third win against one loss and stopped loser Howard Nelson's bid to pick up his fourth straight win. Walter Varvel cracked a third inning homer to cut the Oriole lead to 5-4. Four hits combined with four Senator errors gave the Orioles five quick runs in the second inning and set the stage for Davis' blast.

The Sens had scored two in the first, and one each in the second, third and fourth to knot the count at 5-5 but couldn't push across the tying marker in the sixth. Two double plays helped the Birds.

Entomologist To Attend Meet In Austria

Dr. Perry Adkisson, A&M College System entomologist, will attend the 11th International Congress of Entomology, in Vienna, Austria, in August. The congress meets every four years and is attended by entomologists from over the world. According to R. D. Lewis, director of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Adkisson will participate in a symposium on "Pest Status and Preventive Entomology." Adkisson will present a paper on the influence of irrigation, fertilizer and insecticides on pest populations in the United States, Lewis said. Adkisson, a native of Blytheville, Ark., received his bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Arkansas and his doctorate from Kansas State University. The National Science Foundation, through the Entomology Society of America, has provided a grant to cover air travel to and from Vienna for Adkisson and several other American entomologists.
