

Profs To Study Program

The Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology is one of three departments of its kind in the United States to be selected to evaluate the U. S. Department of Agriculture's market development program abroad this year.

The other two departments selected are those of Purdue University and the University of Minnesota.

Dr. Tyrus Timm, head of the department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology, said the purpose of the evaluation is to determine the effectiveness of market development projects under Public Law 480 concerning cotton, wheat, sorghum, soybeans, soybean products and poultry.

He said the study will attempt to develop a conclusive answer to a question of whether or not, and to what extent and why, the goals of the market development program in Italy have been achieved or are likely to be achieved.

Dr. Randall Stelly, professor of agricultural economics and a member of the staff of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, has been named to conduct the evaluation. He will leave College Station for Europe about Aug. 26.

Accompanying the professor will

Nelson To Conduct Three-Day Seminar

Dr. Bardin H. Nelson, professor in the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology, will conduct a three-day seminar entitled, "Developing Perspectives and Utilizing Motivation" at the 1960 Texas Farm Bureau Institute.

Dr. J. E. Kirby of College Station, a graduate assistant in the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology.

After a week of consultations in Washington, D. C., the two A&M representatives will spend eight days in London to observe U. S. agricultural commodities on display at the London Food Fair. Then they will stay a week in Paris for conferences at the European headquarters of the International Cotton Council.

After three months in Italy evaluating the program, they will spend a week in Brussels conferring with personnel at the European Economic Commission headquarters concerning the European Common Market development. They will return to College Station late in December.

Stelly was born in Southwest Louisiana. He received his B. S.

degree in agriculture at Southwest Louisiana Institute, M. S. degree in agricultural economics at Texas A&M and his doctorate at Louisiana State University.

His experiences include employment as market analyst with Converted Rice Inc., of Houston and as an agricultural economist with the United States International Cooperation Administration in the Far East. Since joining the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at A&M in 1956, Stelly has been leader for research in dairy marketing economics.

As part of the evaluation and to take advantage of opportunities for additional market research abroad in the interest of Texas agriculture, Director R. D. Lewis of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station has approved a companion research project to which Stelly also will give leadership.

3,600 Texans Attend School With U.S. Help

DALLAS—(AP)—Uncle Sam's college loan service helped approximately 3,600 Texas students in the last school term.

Texans borrowed a million and three-quarter dollars in the 1959-60 school period.

The largest number of loans went to freshmen.

"That is one of the best features of the program," said Leonard Nystrom of Dallas. He is regional representative for higher education of the Department of Education.

"Most private loan plans through universities don't offer help to freshmen because there is always some doubt about whether they'll continue their education," Nystrom said.

Nystrom said presumably all the 1,154 high school seniors receiving such loans in Texas would have had a difficult time getting enough money to attend college.

"This is no give-away program," Nystrom emphasized. "Students can borrow a maximum of $5,000 during their college careers and pay it back over a 10-year period beginning a year after completion of their studies. The low 3 per cent interest rate begins to accrue at the beginning of the repayment period."

To encourage more students to teach school, the program will cut up to 50 per cent the amount the students have to pay back if they teach as much as five years.

High school June graduates can apply with the college they plan to attend for the federal loans.

Students who have a good chance to make a successful college career and who actually need the money are being encouraged to participate in the program," Nystrom explained.

E. E. McQuillen, executive director of the Development Fund, is in charge of the loans at A&M. McQuillen's office is on the third floor of the YMCA and applications for the loans can be made there.

A&M Educators Prepare For Foreign Study

J. E. Kirby, left, graduate assistant, and Dr. Randall Stelly, professor, both of the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology, make plans for their trip to Italy to study effectiveness of market development projects under Public Law 480. The A&M department is one of three of its kind in the U. S. to be selected to evaluate the U. S. Department of Agriculture's market development program abroad this year. Dr. Stelly and Kirby will leave for Europe about Aug. 26 and return to College Station in December.

Texas' Poet Laureate Writes for Enjoyment

KINGSVILLE (AP)—The Poet Laureate of Texas is a retired dentist who gets as much of a kick out of seeing his poem in a county newspaper as in a slick magazine.

Most Texas Poets Laureate are retiring persons and seldom heard from. Not so in the case of the reigning chief poet, Van Chandler of Kingsville.

It's not only that Chandler figures the art of poetry is advanced by getting the word around that Texas has a poet laureate. He frankly doesn't mind seeing his name in print. "Any writer who says he doesn't get a thrill out of it just isn't being honest," Chandler says. Chandler is a good public speaker. He accepts invitations at the drop of a hat, and varies his speech according to whether he is speaking to high schoolers, college students, a service club or other writers.

He has traveled thousands of miles carrying on the "business" of his office. He made a personal appearance at a Dallas banquet, on

The area of Labrador, once considered and later disproved as a part of Greenland, is half a million square miles.

College Gets $16,300 Grant For Laboratory

A&M has received a National Science Foundation grant of $16,300 for a civil engineering basic research laboratory in the field of soil mechanics.

The grant was matched by A&M, a requirement of the recipient by the foundation. The only other school in Texas to receive a grant was Rice University in Houston.

Spencer Buchanan, professor of soil mechanics and foundation engineering in the Department of Civil Engineering, said he believes the laboratory will be the only one of its kind in the nation and will be a tremendous boost to engineering research activities at the college.

He said the laboratory will primarily be for doctoral and post doctoral candidates conducting soil mechanics research.

The building will be air conditioned and equipped with the most modern research tools developed to date. Facilities will include gyratory compaction equipment, repetitive loading triaxial shear testing equipment, temperature and humidity control rooms for storage of undisturbed soil samples and individual office rooms.

Wisdom

One of our old teachers used to say, "I can lead you to knowledge, but only God can give you wisdom."

And how right he was. A string of diplomas and degrees does not make a man wise. Many of the wisest never had a formal education.

For knowledge is the accumulation of facts. But wisdom is the ability to apply a few facts — perhaps only one — to a life-situation.

We know a distinguished scholar who has written volumes on ecclesiastical architecture. And we know an elderly widow who told her grandchildren, "Churches ain't made to look at!"

And the scholar — earnest Christian that he is — humbly bows to the wisdom of the widow!

For whether it be a cathedral or chapel, the Church cannot enrich our lives until reverently we enter its portals to worship and serve God. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL ... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
