COLLEGE STATION, TEXAS THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1960

Number 133

Near 2,000 Fish Expected By Sept. 12

Near 2,000 freshmen will invade the A&M campus Sept. 12 for the annual New Student Orientation Week beginning Sept. 13 and closing Sept. 17.

First Assembly

The first general assembly for the new students will be held Tuesday night at 7 in G. Rollie White Coliseum. C. H. Ransdell, assistant to the dean of the School of Engineering and chairman of the New Student Orientation Committee, will preside at the meeting.

Assemblies Wednesday

Wednesday will be devoted to assemblies of the freshmen, according to their academic majors. All agriculture majors will meet in the Memorial Student Center Ballroom with Assistant Director of Agricultural Instruction R. C. Potts in charge.

Division of Architecture Head T. R. Holleman will meet with all architecture majors in the Biological Sciences Lecture Room. All arts and sciences majors will meet with Associate Dean of the School of Arts and Sciences G. W. Schlesselman in Guion Hall.

Business administration majors will meet with Division of Business Administration Head T. W. Leland in the Chemistry Building Lecture Room.

Assistant Dean of the School of Engineering Ransdell will meet with engineering majors in G. Rollie White Coliseum.

Pre-veterinary medicine majors will meet with Dr. E. D. McMurtry, assistant to the Dean of the School of Veterinary Medicine, in the Veterinary Medicine Building Auditorium.

At the general meetings the students will hear an address by the presiding faculty member and will then be sub-divided into groups to meet with advisers from the respective departments.

Wednesday night another general meeting will be held in G. Rollie White Coliseum. J. Gorgon Gay, general secretary of the YMCA and coordinator of campus religious life, will be in charge. At the meeting ministers of the local churches will be introduced and the freshmen will be invited to attend open houses at all the churches, following the meeting.

Thursday morning will be occupied with a continuation of meetings started Wednesday with departmental advisers.

Registration for classes will begin Thursday afternoon for those students with less than 15 semester hours of college credit. This registration will continue through Friday morning.

There are no formal activities scheduled Thursday evening.

Friday afternoon at 1:15 a general assembly for all new students will be held in White Coliseum. James P. Hannigan, dean of Students, will be presiding. Talks on "Student Life at A&M" and "Student Activity Programs" will be given.

At 3 Friday afternoon all cadets will remain in White Coliseum for a meeting with Commandant of the Corps of Cadets Col. Joe E. Davis. Talks will also be given by Professor of Air Science Col. Charles E. Gregory and Professor of Military Science and Tactics Col. Frank L. Elder.

Useful Tips To Graduates Going to Work

(Editor's Note: The following article was written by R. N. Hilkert, vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank in Philadelphia. Hilkert gives his advice to the student graduating from college and going to work. Being a successful businessman, Hilkert's tips may well prove valuable to the young college graduate.)

You are about to join a business organization. Consider these things:

- (1) You have certain needs and desires.
- (2) Company has its requirements.
- (3) Your desires and company requirements must be harmonized; if not, something must give.

The alternatives are:

- (1) You must modify your desires to fit company requirements.
- (2) Company can modify its requirements to fit your desires.
- (3) You can take your desires and go elsewhere. This idea may originate with you, or come as an insistent suggestion from the company.

In reviewing the field, it seems easier for you to modify your desires than for the company to modify its requirements. Companies are funny that way.

Somehow they lack the flexibility to tailor-make their requirements to meet the desires of new employees. Though you may be filled with management ideas, and basting at the seams with modern knowledge, you will best serve yourself by appearing as a learner rather than as a management consultant.

Having come from a fine school, full of management knowledge, and perhaps the kingly of your college class, you may be shocked to find that the company makes sad mistakes and grossly violates the principles you have learned.

Some day, you may have the chance to set them straight; meanwhile, bide your time.

Don't create the early impression that you are just the guy the company has been looking for, and that it is lucky you arrived before it was too late. They may reluctantly decide to struggle along a few more years without you.

Be alert, inquiring, observing, and with a spirit of humility. Then they will welcome you.

This leads to another problem you should recognize. While you may have been hired as a potential manager, you will have to work with many men who will never become managers.

Many will have been with the company for years, and they are essential and valuable. They can make you or break you.

You cannot ride roughshod over them to advance your career. (See TIPS on Page 3)

Brazos Valley Bracing For Labor Day Safety

Join State Groups In Avoiding Death

By ROBBIE GODWIN
Battalion Managing Editor

Bryan and College Station radio and television stations and the Bryan-College Station Chamber of Commerce teamed up with similar organizations in the state this week to begin their drive toward safer highways over the Labor Day Holiday weekend.

Over the three-day period, Radio Stations WTAW and KORA and KBTX-TX will sponsor the "Drive Lighted and Live" campaign, reminding drivers in the area to turn their lights in the daytime to show they are complying with driving safety laws.

They will be joined by radio and television stations over most of the state, whose reminders helped reduce the number of Fourth of July and Christmas holiday deaths by 18 per cent.

In addition, volunteers from the local Jaycees will set up their "Safety Watch". Beginning at noon on Labor Day, they will set up their stand at the roadside park just north of Bryan, serving free coffee to travelers as they wind their way homeward.

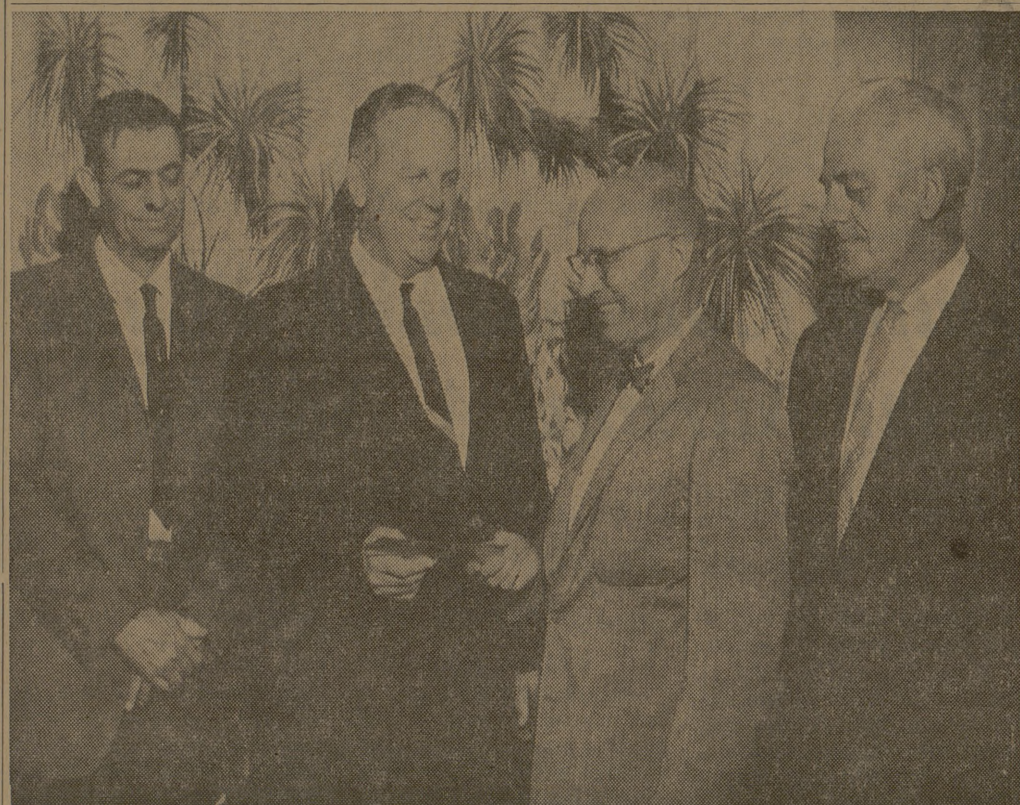

Chamber of Commerce president Ralph Record said:

"Our move enjoyed success over the Fourth of July Weekend. We had about 250 people take advantage of our offer, stopping for free coffee. Since the idea has caught on statewide, we hope more people will take advantage of it this holiday."

Enthusiasm over the Jaycee plan throughout the state is high, according to W. F. Leonard of Dallas, vice-president for traffic safety of Texas Safety Association. More and more states are joining the Texas groups, with Georgia, New Mexico, Arizona, Mississippi and Alabama taking part in the move.

Joining these two groups, the Texas Council of Safety Supervisors has enlisted the support of the trucking industry to set up the Holiday Road Patrol. Participating cars and trucks will carry signs with that wording, and will assist drivers in trouble at no cost. They will take no part in police work and will not be involved in law enforcement.

Pinnell was co-author of a paper which received the Highway Research Board Award of Merit in January. He joined the faculty of the Civil Engineering Department in June of 1958. He was formerly a member of the Texas Technological College and Purdue University before coming to A&M.

Graduate Fellowships

A&M has received a grant for $8,400 from the Humble Oil and Refining Co. of Houston. The grant goes for three graduate fellowships in 1960-61 in the fields of petroleum, civil and mechanical engineering. The check was presented to President Earl Rudder by H. Dayton Wilde, Humble's University Relations Counselor. In making the presentation for the 13th time for Humble, Mr. Wilde said, "may I say that Humble is happy to sponsor these fellowships and is well pleased with the results." HOLIDAY TOLL SET AT 29

Texans Urged To Prove Death Guessers Wrong

"It is possible to prove the statisticians wrong."

So said Maj. W. J. Elliott today as he reviewed the Department of Public Safety's prediction of 29 deaths for this Labor Day Weekend holiday.

"We not only want to prove the statisticians wrong, we want to prove that they overestimated by a substantial number how many people would be killed on our streets and highways."

Maj. Elliott added that for the past ten years the Texas death toll has averaged over 32 people killed each Labor Day weekend. He added this Labor Day could be another holiday filled with sudden death and violence unless the traveling public determines to exert an all-out effort against traffic accidents.

"This weekend, as during other peak traffic periods, all our traffic law enforcement officers will be working extra duty in an effort to apprehend law violators before they can cause trouble," Maj. Elliott added.

Col Homer Garrison Jr., director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, said:

"We hope the driving public will help this Labor Day weekend to prove that we have overestimated the number of traffic fatalities that will occur in the three-day period."

Garrison said some 125 extra patrolmen from the department's other uniformed services will join the regular Highway Patrol force in attempting to halt traffic law violations.

The department's statistical service shows excessive speed over the posted limits was involved in 10 of the 14 rural fatal accidents during the holiday last year, and drinking was involved in seven of them.

Thirty died in motorcides in 1958, 27 in 1959.

'Watch Out Below': Cautious Statement

By The Associated Press

DALLAS, Tex. Sept 1—The cry, "Watch out below," is not one of arrogant warning in a little group Charlie Amacher has been instructing to swim this summer.

It is a precautionary statement before Ann Phillips and Kathryn Ann Wilson dive into a pool. For both are blind.

Amacher, a YMCA instructor training the children on his own time, reports that the children are not afraid of water.

Needed Confidence At first they were cautious, but Amacher, with patience and understanding, gave them the needed confidence.

Amacher says the girls are more eager to learn than children without their handicap. And like all children, once they are in the water they don't like to leave the pool.

They have no difficulty finding the shore once they are in the middle of the pool. They simply follow sounds, usually Amacher's voice.

Amacher also gives the girls trampoline lessons once a week. Little Ann is able to do a back flip with the assistance of a safety belt.

Activities Blessing The mothers of the girls say the activities Amacher has taught them are a blessing, because they are unable to take part in many other recreations.

Ann is a twin, and her sister is Lynn who takes lessons along with Ann and Kathryn. Ann lost her sight shortly after birth. Kathryn and Ann attend public school and their schedule is the same as other children's except for braille classes.

Ann's parents are Mr. & Mrs. Norman G. Phillips. Kathryn's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wilson.

Tigers Top Choice in 19-AA

By RUSSELL BROWN
CHS Correspondent

A & M Consolidated's Tigers, sporting the beefiest crew in the school's history, are pegged to grab off top honors in District 19-AA this fall.

The bengals have been going through two practices a day since Aug. 15, starting date for fall practice for Class AA teams. They have been knocking heads since Aug. 17. Progress was pretty slow for the first stringers in scrimmage sessions as the red-shirts ripped gaping holes in the Tiger defenses until Tuesday night.

To Bellville

Tuesday found the Tigers in Bellville against the number three team in Class AA, and the team that trounced the Bengals 29-0 in the District 21-AA championship game to live up to expectations, outlast year. There the Tiger crew be-manning the Brahmas defensively and adding new twists to the hard-running Split-T football.

Logan had senior quarterback Condly Pugh and junior signal-caller Russell Welch going to the air and the two came through with some good completions. This coupled with the charging blasts by squadman Frank Hagger and two-letterman Vic Clark, 190-pound tackle switched to fullback, gave the Big Red a tough time.

"We've still got a long way to go, but I was well pleased with the scrimmage with Bellville," said Tiger Coach Ed Logan.

Problem of Depth

Depth problems seemed to face Coaches Logan and Jack Churchill, but the second unit has been pressing for the white jerseys all season.

"We'll be able to use that second eleven quite a bit this year," continued Logan. "They've been hitting good."

Pugh (175) and Welch (155)

have been running from the man-under spot, Cyril Burke, 165-pound junior letterman, John Pedigo, 150-pound senior letterman, Hagler (170), and Pugh have seen action at halves; and Clark, and Hagler have been running at the fullback slot.

"Both Brown and Hagler could break into the starting line-up this year, and others on the second team will give the white-teams a run for their money; there's plenty of keen competition," summed up the Tiger mentor.
