

Area Teachers Being Mailed Meet Invites

This week hundreds of schools and colleges in the southern half of Texas will receive their annual letter from the Internal Revenue Service inviting their teachers to assist in the 1961 program of "Teaching Federal Income Taxes." Invitations this year are being extended to colleges of commerce, business administration, and agriculture.

R. L. Phinney, District Director of Internal Revenue, Austin, announced today that the 1961 program is expected to exceed substantially the 1960 participation. College deans and junior and senior high school principals will receive, along with their letters of invitation, a worksheet on which to consolidate requests from their teachers, and an order card with which to place their school orders.

Instructional material is in a handy Teacher's Kit containing Teacher's Manual, blow-ups, and instructions for completing returns. Student handbooks, furnished in quantities requested, follow the Teacher's Manual closely and problems are keyed to the manual contents. All materials are free of charge.

"Teaching Federal Income Taxes" has been endorsed by Dr. J. W. Edgar, Commissioner of Education, and is especially adaptable to courses of accounting, bookkeeping, civics, mathematics, and vocational agriculture. Completion of these tax studies teaches students the importance of this civic responsibility, where their tax dollars go, and permits them to prepare their own returns for income from summer jobs and to help their parents with their returns.

Phinney urges teachers to contact their principals now and place their orders for their kits and students workbooks. Materials will be distributed during January to coincide with the income tax filing period. However, instruction may be given at any time during 1961 at the discretion of the teacher.

Inquiries about the "Teaching Federal Income Taxes" program should be addressed to Internal Revenue Service, Austin, Texas.

GOP Blamed For Steel Unemployment

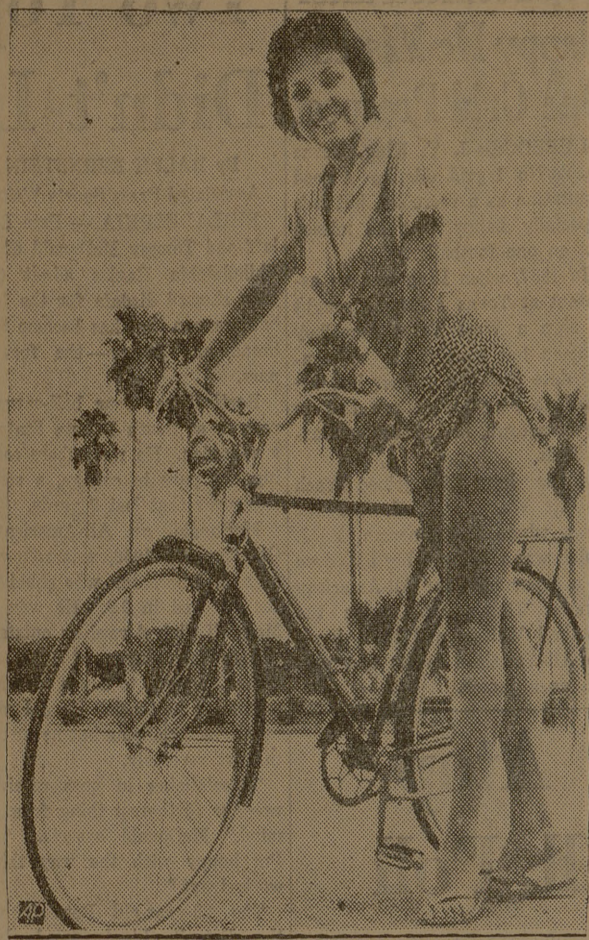

By the Associated Press
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—Sen. John F. Kennedy, speaking Monday before the United Steelworkers Union Convention, said the Eisenhower administration was to blame for joblessness, including 100,000 steelworkers.

The convention later endorsed the Democratic presidential nominee.

Won Okay
Kennedy won the endorsement although he rejected a 32-hour work week proposal advanced recently by David J. McDonald, steelworkers union president. McDonald urged the 32-hour week as a means of spreading unemployment.

The tamed, smiling Kennedy received an ovation as he appeared before the 3,000 delegates who represent the union's half million members.

The steelworkers reportedly are still bitter over President Eisenhower's use of a federal injunction to halt their 116-day 1959 strike at what they regarded as a crucial stage.

Prize Bike

Last Friday was the Mexican equivalent to our July 4, and was celebrated this year by the first international bicycle race. Riders started at Monterey, Mexico and crossed the finish line at Harlingen the following day. Waiting for the winners will be a number of prizes, one of which is shown here—the bicycle, not Beebe Esparza. (AP Wirephoto)

Need Money? Buy A Printing Press

Need some money? Buy a printing press!

With this thought in mind, two Aggies did buy a press and are now in the specialty printing business at North Gate.

J. D. Davidson, senior personnel administration major from Dumas and Alberto W. Saldana, senior accounting major from Hebbronville decided to go into business for themselves during the summer, and through luck and shrewd business ability, were able to acquire a Platen printing press and a large assortment of type at a minimum price.

Davidson, who has had three years' experience in the commercial printing field, one year in his home town of Dumas and two years working for a printing firm in College Station, will do all the typesetting and more technical details involved in printing job orders.

Saldana's Duties
Saldana will handle the book-keeping end of the business, and will also produce a specialty of the shop, embossing, which creates a raised surface on stationery.

The pair of printers have named their shop the Robbia Printing Co. after a face of type known as "Dela Robbia," which they will use on many of their stationery orders.

"We have a large selection of type right now, and should be able to give the customer just about what he might want in the way of specialty printing," said Davidson.

Their work will include Christmas cards, business cards, wedding invitations, and personalized stationery at special prices.

Outfit Goals
"We hope to print up outfit stationery before the year is out; our special rates on stationery are open only to students," said Saldana.

Their embossing work, or raised lettering on stationery can be done in all colors, including gold. Also,

Davidson said they have lined up orders with three large paper companies in Texas, and will be able to offer a person anything he might want in the way of paper for any specialty job.

"Since we've opened the Robbia Printing Co. on Sept. 5, we have already received more orders than we can handle at present. Right now, we have to handle the business on a strictly part-time basis, and in several weeks we should be fully set up.

"We've ordered more type, and a new embossing machine is on the way. I had to turn down an order for 100,000 wrappers the other day for a large company in Bryan, because we don't have the equipment to handle that kind of volume.

Specialty Work
"Our product is specialty job work like wedding invitations and stationery, and a student can hardly handle a full printing business and a full degree plan at the same time. Since both of us hope to graduate someday, we have to keep the business on a part-time basis, except on the weekends," said Davidson.

Davidson and Saldana thought at first they would have some trouble finding a location for their printing business, but were again lucky when they had an opportunity to lease the shop where Floyd's Radio Shop, two blocks east of the Post Office at North Gate, used to be.

All orders from fellow students can be taken at the proprietors' room, Walton Hall, H-13, said Davidson.

"We're not actually printing money at the shop, but from the looks of things, our investment might indirectly print us up more money than we ever thought we'd have at A&M," he added.

Murchisons Ousted From Big Company

By the Associated Press
MINNEAPOLIS—The brothers John and Clint Murchison Jr. of the Texas oil family Monday were ousted from the board of Investors Diversified Services, Inc., mammoth Minneapolis-based investment company.

Onetime controllers of the firm, they were accused by current controlling interests of obstructing the work of the board and with refusing to disclose personal trans-

Adequate Protein Interest Behind Research Program

Universal interest in assuring adequate protein for populations in the future has prompted research at the Texas Engineering Experiment Station to produce a high-protein cottonseed meal suitable for human food uses. The work is being accomplished in cooperation with Cotton Research Committee of Texas.

In this work at the Station's Cottonseed Products Research Laboratory both modification of processing and upgrading of the meal or cake are being attempted, according to A. Cecil Wamble, manager of the Cottonseed Products Research Laboratory.

In the research prepressing has given 50 to 55 per cent protein from cottonseed from many parts of the South. Also, prepressing of coarse cottonseed meals has resulted in much removal of gossypol with the oil.

In the work also coarse cottonseed meals have been found to withstand much storage if of good quality and not too high in moisture.

actions between themselves and persons who dealt with the IDS and its subsidiaries during the time they headed the firm.

Through an attorney representing them at the special stockholders meeting Monday, the Murchisons labeled these charges "misleading".

Removed by Vote
They were removed by a vote of 320,812 shares to 101,977. The vote against them included 277,472 shares held by Alleghany Corp., which owns 48 per cent of the IDS stock and controlling interest. IDS manages the investment of some three billion dollars. The Murchisons obtained control in 1955 but transferred a large block of voting stock to Alleghany last winter as a result of a stockholder suit against Alleghany.

Recently it was revealed Murchison interests and close associates had bought about 150,000 additional common shares of Alleghany, a move regarded as a possible counter attack to get a change in Alleghany and IDS operations.

The Murchisons maintain the ouster action was intended to deprive them of access to certain records.

As part of their fight with Alleghany, the Dallas brothers have filed suit in federal court in New York to set aside last winter's settlement under which control was transferred to Alleghany, the holding company which also operates the New York Central Railroad.

In their statement read to stockholders by R. J. Leonard, St. Paul attorney, the Murchisons accused Randolph Phillips, New York financial consultant, of obtaining his position on the IDS board through a conspiracy to commit fraud against the courts.

THE BATTALION WEEKEND

Ballroom and is set to conclude at 12:30 a.m. The Guion performance Saturday afternoon will be at 2. Admission charges of $2 per couple for the dance and $1.50 per person for the concert will be charged.

Special Committee
The special dance committee, headed by Benny Wadsworth, is sponsoring the dance. This committee is another subdivision of the MSC Dance Committee.

The Junior Class reception is scheduled "to bring the class together in an informal meeting," according to the class president, Malcolm Hall.

Hall said last night the John Williams Combo will play at the reception, which is set for class members, dates and parents in the MSC Ballroom from 2-5 p.m.

Hall added several faculty members have also been invited to the reception, which is a project of the class officers.

Seminar On Group Representations Scheduled Weekly

A seminar in the theory of group representations is to be held each Friday from 3 to 5 p.m. in Room 228 of the Academic Building.

The first meeting will be held Friday, Sept. 23.

The seminar will be based on "Representations of the group of rotations of 3-dimensional space and their applications," by L. M. Gelfand and Z. Ya. Sapiro in the American Mathematical Society Translations, and is a translation of the original Russian article.

Anyone interested in the seminar should contact E. R. Keown, Room 119, Academic Building.

But by far the biggest highlight of the weekend has to be the grid battle which will be Tech's official baptism into conference grid warfare.

The Lubbock school, which was officially admitted to the conference in 1956, has waited four years to get going in the prestige-filled Southwest Conference and promises to be exceptionally high for the clash.

The Aggies, on the other hand, have been edged by Tech the last two years in extremely close games and are also due to be high for the game.

The Farmers also made a most impressive opening last Saturday and, with the poor showing made by the other conference teams, promise to be a darkhorse squad of opportunists.

In all respects, a big weekend is coming up, no doubt about it.
