

A&M Students CADET SLOUCH To Receive Appeal Letter

Volunteers from Bryan and College Station with Miss Mae Bell Smith as chairman have been working this week at the TB office counting and sorting the Christmas Seal appeal letters which will be mailed by the Brazos County Tuberculosis Assn. to Brazos County residents Nov. 14.

Women helping on this phase of the campaign included Mrs. John Haislet, Mrs. Birdy Alphin, Mrs. Oliver Tucker, Mrs. William Willis, Miss Ethel Grimes, Miss Marianna Grimes and Miss Smith.

In addition to the nearly 8,000 appeals sent to the residents of the county over 5,000 letters will be mailed to A&M students.

BATTALION EDITORIALS Wasn't The Same

It just wasn't the same last Saturday night. The sight of Reveille, Texas A&M's beloved dog mascot, being led around the Band on a leash was met with wholesale disapproval by both students and the general public attending the Texas A&M-Arkansas game on Kyle Field.

Rev's debut in the new, forced role resulted from a recent ruling by the Southwest Conference, stating that a mascot cannot appear on the gridiron without a muzzle or a leash. Rev's answer to the muzzle is a refusal to run.

The ruling was based on an incident reported two years ago when Rev bit a game official and an opposing coach. After two years of deliberation, the Southwest Conference has come down with the sudden ruling prohibiting Rev from roaming the ranks of the Texas A&M Band.

As it stands now, Rev's only appearances on the field will be at non-conference games. Her last outing in that popular and customary role was at the Texas A&M-Trinity game in San Antonio.

The point has also been raised that Rev's appearances without muzzle and leash detract from the performance of the Band. Actually, it adds to it, and there have been no complaints from the members of the Band.

It's too late to do anything about the ruling at this time. But the Southwest Conference has a meeting in Dallas the first week in December. Perhaps a plea or a special appeal could be made to the SWC for a revision of the ruling.

When the ruling was first made official to Texas A&M, The Battalion stated:

The ruling "says nothing of putting hobbles on midget mustangs, muzzles on bears, rings in the noses of steers, or muzzles on razorback hogs." Those hampers would be similar to a muzzle on a dog.

Still the ruling terminates a performance that has been Rev's and her predecessor's for 20 years.

It just wasn't the same. . .

INTERPRETING Fewer Sorry When It's Over

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

Hardly a man is now alive who can remember just what it was like when it began, and even fewer will be sorry when it's all over a week from today.

This campaign began soon after the 1956 election, perhaps even before President Eisenhower's inauguration for his last term.

By the summer of 1959 practically all the Republican politicians knew what they were going to have to do. That fall Nelson A. Rockefeller took some polls and paid some visits and decided he couldn't beat City Hall.

Things were a little bit wider open among the Democrats until the West Virginia primary. When the religious issue failed to outweigh John F. Kennedy's economic promises there, Kennedy joined Richard M. Nixon in running for the presidency rather than just for the nomination.

Things were awfully dull.

When Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson were nominated, at a time when the Republicans were taking it on the chin over U2 and the collapse of negotiations with the Soviet Union, it looked like an unbeatable ticket.

Many people thought that 32 years of mass education would have leveled off religious intolerance, and that West Virginia proved it.

Nixon started behind in the post-convention estimates. But solid organizational work and religion began to tell. He pulled ahead.

Then came the morning-after game of "Who looked best last night?" in a series of four television debates. A lot of people got to "know" Kennedy for the first time and checks indicated a small but firm majority thought he looked best.

The issues developed didn't get very far. Both candidates began making mistakes and, when caught up, were quick to compromise, so that frequently they wound up traveling the same way under banners bearing only slightly different words.

Now, barring some unexpected event, there being no war that either candidate can stop, nearly all the voters are ready to be counted. There is a feeling that Kennedy is ahead. But the religious issue remains an important intangible.

JACK SAVED HIS COMPANY $10,000 ON HIS FIRST ASSIGNMENT

While Jack Trabert was in college he had some definite career ideas. He knew what he wanted—a job with a payoff for good judgment and hard work.

With a B.S. in Business Administration from the University of Nebraska, Jack knew he could look in many directions. And he did. He talked to 20 companies. And then in August, 1957, joined Northwestern Bell, in Omaha, Nebraska.

His chance to show what he could do was not long in coming. On his first assignment Jack came up with answers that made it possible to handle long distance calls made at night in the Omaha area with less force and equipment than was needed under the old system. This resulted in a $10,000 annual saving.

Next, Jack worked on a training and development program for "mark sensing"—a new method for mechanized processing of long distance charges.

Today, Jack has an important role in planning and developing telephone facilities to keep pace with Omaha's ever-increasing need for long distance services.

Jack puts it this way—"If a guy can keep his average up, there are places to go in this outfit. A man doesn't have to wait around for opportunity to knock—he has all he can handle right from the start."

If you want a job in which you're given a chance to show your stuff, and held strictly accountable for your decisions, right from the start—then you'll want to visit your Placement Office for literature and additional information.

"Our number one aim is to have in all management jobs the most vital, intelligent, positive and imaginative men we can possibly find."

GOOD-BY 'TIL NEXT YEAR, O GREAT PUMPKIN!

FAREWELL, FAREWELL, FAREWELL! THANKS FOR EVERYTHING!

* SIGH * WHO AM I KIDDING?

I BELIEVED IN THE "GREAT PUMPKIN"! I REALLY DID!

I BELIEVED IN THE "GREAT PUMPKIN" WITH EVERY FIBER OF MY BEING!

RATS!

IN ALL THIS WORLD THERE IS NOTHING MORE UPSETTING THAN THE CLOBBERING OF A CHERISHED BELIEF!

TRUE!

HOLE IN THE AIR!

A radio message has come to Tim Wade, Alaska bush pilot, from Cliff Lake Camp: "Man badly hurt—need doctor and nurse!"

NOBODY COULD FLY IN THIS SOUP!

GET IN, DOC, IN A STRAIGHT LINE, CLIFF LAKE IS FOUR GLACIERS AWAY!

FOUR GLACIERS?

NO, GLACIER NO. 1

OOP! A HOLE IN THE AIR!

HOW DO YOU KNOW?

BY THE DOWN-DRAFT!

Note: Tim knew a glacier surface always chills the air above it—causing a down-draft.

GLACIER NO. 4!

GLACIER NO. 4! NOW—DOWN THROUGH THE SOUP!

SO YOU ACTUALLY FIGURED OUT WHERE YOU ARE BY DOWN-DRAFTS!

LATER

HE'LL BE OKAY, THANKS TO YOU, YOU FLY WITH YOUR HEAD!
