

Natural Science Conferences Announced

Undergraduate research conferences to be held at four of the state's outstanding centers of scientific research during the 1960-61 school year, have been announced by Dr. Charles LaMotte of the Department of Biology, state program director.

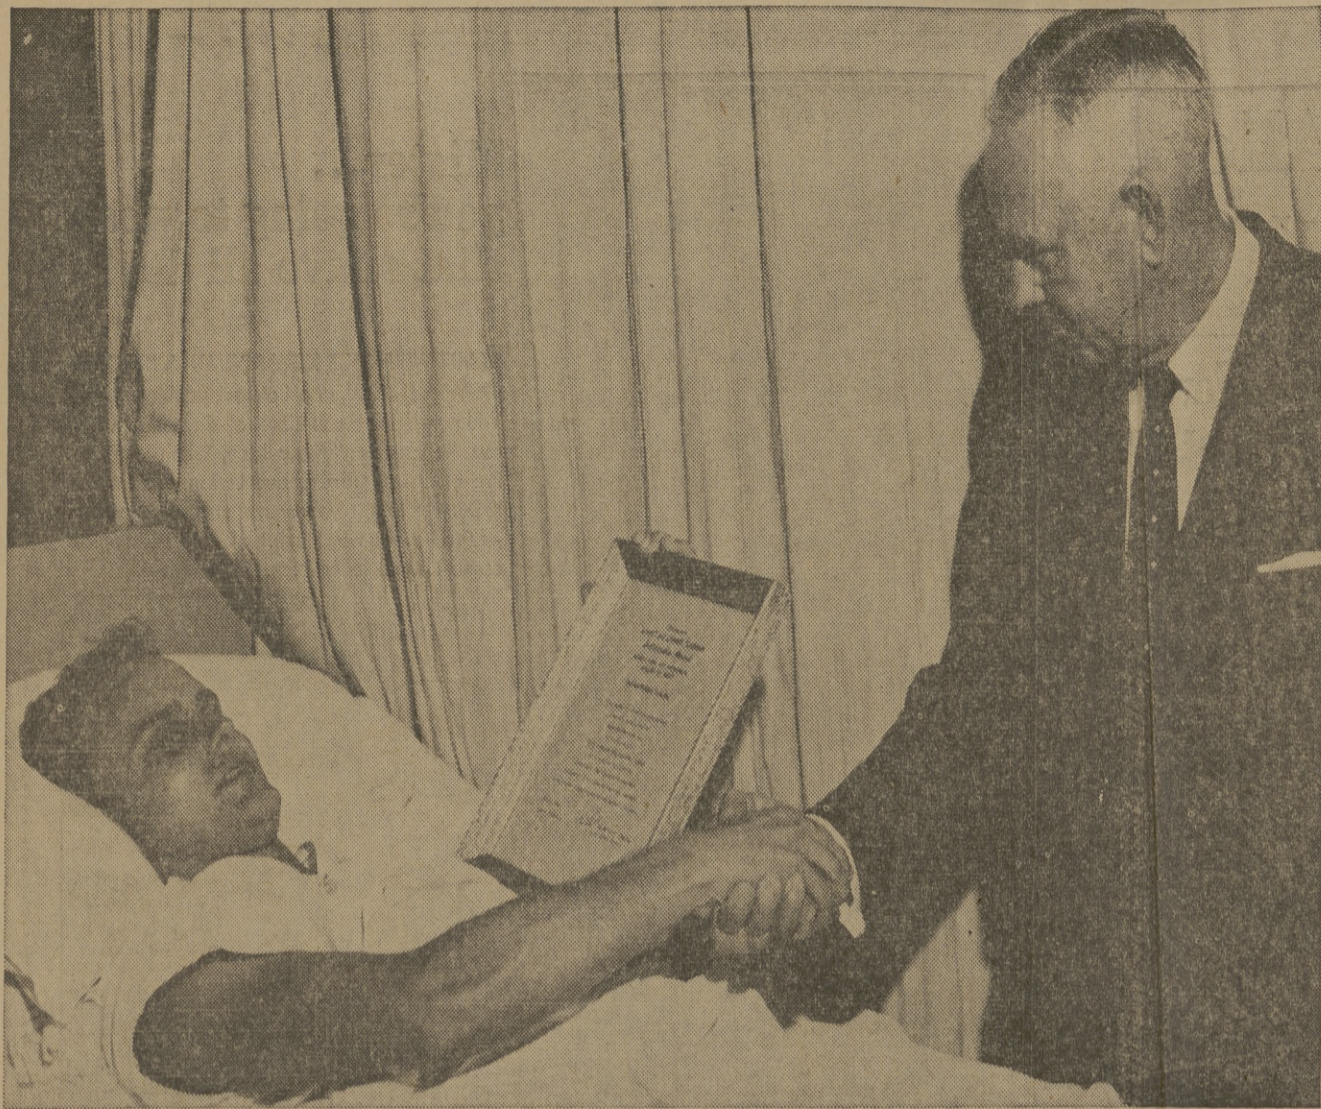

Telegrams and brochures are being distributed from College Station to all of the accredited junior colleges of the state and to senior colleges not offering extensive graduate work, for this, the second of a series of such conferences, Dr. LaMotte says.

These conferences have been made possible by a grant to the Texas Academy of Science by the National Science Foundation.

One of the conferences will be held at A&M Mar. 20-21. The others will be held at the University of Texas, Feb. 9-10, Texas Tech, Mar. 9-10, North Texas State College and Texas Woman's University, Denton, Mar. 16-17.

More than 300 promising science students from 70 or more of the state's colleges are due to participate. Each conference will be a two-day program, stressing the nature, significance, requirements and rewards of present day research in the natural sciences.

Most of the 311 students who participated in similar conferences last year are continuing this year into more advanced phases of their preparation for teaching and research in a great variety of medical, biological and physical science fields, Dr. LaMotte says.

Wins Scholarship

Herber D. Mills, of Dallas, a senior majoring in building products marketing, is the winner of a $400 scholarship from the Elliott Bay Lumber Co. of Seattle, Wash. Mills, abed in a Bryan hospital, receives the scholarship from Dennis Jackson of the lumber company. Mills is recuperating from a recent hunting accident. He was selected by faculty members of the Division of Business Administration on the basis of scholarship, leadership and interest in building material industry.
