97 PER CENT IN Chest Drive Lacks $400

The United Chest drive is now within three per cent of their overall goal of $15,150. Dr. Dale F. Lepper, chairman of the drive, reported last night that $14,750 has come in so far, leaving only $400 to be picked up.

He said all divisions had reported, but several checks were still expected in, thus boosting the accounted for 97 per cent.

Lepper had this to say concerning the overall aspects of the drive: "The drive this year has gone as it has in the past, but things are just generally slower financially than they were last year. There were no real weak spots in the drive. The election may have slowed down things a bit, but that slump has now been overcome."

Expresses Hope
Lepper expressed the hope that since December pay checks would be in soon, the needed total may be met.

The drive opened Nov. 1 and was scheduled to close Nov. 15. Because the amount collected was so insufficient the drive was extended until the difference could be brought in.

Last year's drive surpassed its set goal.

The drive committee kicked off efforts this year with the slogan "One day's pay, the united way."

About 75 committee members worked during the campaign.

Sub-chairmen for the drive are John C. Calhoun, campus; H. E. Burgess, city drive; and I. H. Lloyd, federal agencies.

The team captains designated by these chairmen are John E. Denison, R. H. Davis, R. L. Hunt, Michael Krenitsky, Wayne Stark and Ran Boswell. Also Don Dale, Mrs. John Q. Hays, Tom E. Prater, John H. Pruitt, Mrs. Charles Richardson, W. T. Riedel and T. E. Whitely. Also Homer A. Adams, Jack Bradshaw, O. B. Briggs, J. M. Hendricks and Leonard J. Watson.

Marine Corps Officer Team Due Next Week

The Marine Corps Officer Selection Team, headed by Capt. F. L. Tolleson, will be set up in the Memorial Student Center from 8 a.m.-4 p.m., Monday through Friday, next week. This will be the last time this semester the team will be here, so all interested students are urged to make use of this opportunity to talk to Capt. Tolleson.

Feelings Vary On Possible Name Change

Controversy raged thick and heavy yesterday with the revealing a study is underway to possibly change the name of A&M.

Students were quick to take one of the two sides and most seemed impatient to air their views.

Which of the two sides holds the majority among the student body is difficult to determine, with indications showing a fairly even split.

Those in favor of the study and eventual change of the name indicated prestige as their most prominent motive. They were inclined to believe the name "College" hurts the college attraction, both to prospective students and faculty and staff members.

Those opposed to a possible change reported they did not like the changes in tradition that would result and the old traditions, especially school songs and yells, that would be done away with.

Without a single exception, however, everyone expressing his views to The Battalion agreed A&M is actually a university and no longer a college.

As one said, though, "I just can't imagine this place as anything but Texas A&M. It just wouldn't be the same, no matter what else happened."

'UNsung HEROES'

Final Stage Set For Naming 'Mrs. Texas A&M' Saturday

One of Aggie land's "unsung heroes" will be honored Saturday night when Mrs. Texas A&M will be chosen from a field of 32 entrants.

She will be named at a dance to be held at 8 p.m. in the Ballroom of the Memorial Student Center.

The Aggie Wives Council is sponsoring the affair.

The dance features the music of the Aggie land Combo. Tickets are $2 per couple and they may be purchased at the door.

Mrs. Jean Vaught, chairman of the evening's events, said the dance was not limited to Aggies and their wives, but only couples would be admitted.

Mrs. Vaught said that the Bryan-College Station Chamber of Commerce would donate a cup to the title winner. The Aggie land Flower Shop is to give a bouquet to the winner also.

The runners-up will be given certificates for use at Beverly Braley's Women's Wear Shop and Lady Fair Beauty Shop.

Listed as judges for the contest are representatives from Lester's Women's Stores and Tino's Hair Stylists. Also named were M. J. Purgerson and Virginia Erickson. A member of The Battalion editorial staff will also be on the panel.

Mrs. Vaught pointed out that all the money made from this dance will be given to some Brazos County charity at the end of the semester. She said that books for school libraries and retarded children's programs have been past council projects.

Pictures of 16 of the candidates are printed on Page 5. The other 16 candidates will be portrayed in tomorrow's edition of The Battalion.

Speaker Urges Lenient Loans

Commercial lending agencies should become more liberal and understanding with their credit or else farmers and ranchers will seek and find other sources of loan money.

This advice was handed out here by Frank Schuster, a Rio Grande Valley farmer and one of the speakers at the 10th annual Texas Farm and Ranch Credit School for Commercial Bankers, which ended yesterday.

Schuster said more credit understanding applies especially to farm mechanization, a subject on which many bankers need education.

He said commercial bankers need to place more emphasis on what a machine can do for a farmer instead of basing most or all of their loan decisions on the farmer himself.

Bankers are particularly reluctant to make loans on specialized equipment, the speaker said. He cited the case of a spinach machine costing $6,000. No loan could be obtained, but after the implement was finally purchased, it saved many times its original cost in labor expenses.

Schuster, a past president of the Valley Farm Bureau, advised that farm machinery should be "tailored" to do certain jobs. Mechanization is one of the best ways to successful farming.

The farmer said he did not agree with current widespread opinion that farms must become bigger to survive.

'Don't Buy Theory'
"I don't buy the theory that we have to get bigger in this business if we want to stay in it. But we do have to get better," Schuster said.

The bankers conference this year was dedicated to Charles N. Shepardson, founder of the school and now a member of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System, Washington, D. C.

The founder was on hand to receive a plaque of appreciation presented in behalf of the school by Sam Rowe, chairman of the Bankers Advisory Committee and vice president and agricultural officer of the Alvin State Bank at Alvin. Shepardson started the school 10 years ago when he was Dean of Agriculture. The school is designed to keep commercial bankers up to date on the latest policies and developments in the field of agriculture and their impact on banking. It is sponsored by A&M and conducted by the Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology.

The program's main banquet speaker, Earl Coke, vice president of the Bank of America in California, described ways the bank is attempting to "penetrate" further into agriculture in his home state.

He said California banks consider agriculture essential to the overall economy and strive to stay oriented to it. The Bank of America now has a branch in each of California's counties.

Coke, a former assistant to Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson, said bank officers are taking agriculture short courses and are urged to go into the field, meet farmers and learn their problems.

Used by Banks
Men especially trained in agriculture, he said, are being used by banks as appraisers and budget makers for farmers.

One of the greatest problems, the speaker said, is to stay modern with constantly changing farm and ranch conditions.

Coke described cheap insurance programs the Bank of America is sponsoring. One is a life insurance program which protects both the farmer and bank. Another is a crop and livestock insurance system.

Looking to the future, Dr. Richard Johnson, chairman of the Department of Economics and director of the Graduate School of Banking at Southern Methodist

Sixth Meeting Opens Wednesday

The Sixth Student Conference on National Affairs—centering on the theme "The Tasks for the Free World: Problems and Opportunities in the 60's"—will get underway Wednesday, Dec. 7, at 8 a. m. in the Memorial Student Center.

The proposed program for SCONA VI breaks this central theme down into five sub-divisions for informal round-table discussions: "The Lesser Developed Lands," "The Communist Challenge—Free World Response," "World Disarmament: Ideals and Realities," "Mobilization of Knowledge and Resources," and "The Americas."

Principal Speakers
Invited as principle speakers to address the Conference and participate in the round-table discussions are the Hon. Dudley Crawford Sharp, Secretary of the Air Force; Ambassador Horace H. Smith, State Department Advisor to the Commander of the Air University; The Hon. Aziz Ahmed, Ambassador of Pakistan to the United States; and the Hon. Thomas C. Mann, Assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American Affairs.

The round-up speaker for the Conference will be William P. Hobby, Jr., managing editor of the Houston Post.

SCONA VI, an activity of the Memorial Student Center Directorate, is the outgrowth of an idea begun in 1955 by several student leaders. The purpose and aims of the first Student Conference on National Affairs in 1955, was the same as the aims of every SCONA since—"to give the students of the South and Southwest an opportunity to learn and appreciate the complexities of America's Foreign Policies."

SCONA I
SCONA I was an informal conference (See SCONA on Page 3)

This play is very unusual in that the only props used are a stepladder, stools and one table. Thornton Wilder tries to make the audience visualize the scenes as they unravel before it and is very successful in doing this.

The cast of players is as follows: Bob Adams, stage manager; Angela Wallace and Blair Perryman, Emily; Bob White, George; James Riggs, Mr. Gibbs; and Molly Martin, Mrs. Gibbs. Admission will be 75¢ for adults and 50¢ for children.

Venezuelan Troops to Move on Students

CARACAS, Venezuela—President Romulo Betancourt yesterday ordered evacuation of Caracas University, where die-hard leftist students have carried on an armed uprising against the moderate socialist government. The university had been spared police intervention as a traditional academic sanctuary.

Groups of young students seized a technical school on the university grounds at the beginning of the outbreak last Friday and from their dominant position have been sniping at loyal army troops who came within range. Observers said the students appeared to be armed with machineguns.

Apparently only the traditional Latin-American respect for universities and churches as places of refuge and asylum prevented Betancourt from acting earlier to meet the persistent student threat.

The president has charged that Communists are behind the student violence, and hope to replace his government with a regime like Fidel Castro's in Cuba.

Federal Courts Pound In Integration

NEW ORLEANS—Federal judges hammered down all Louisiana barriers to school integration yesterday, then approved a 12-year stair-step plan of integration for Dallas public schools.

Bitter demonstrations by New Orleans housewives, trying to block white children from attending integrated schools, grew in scope and intensity.

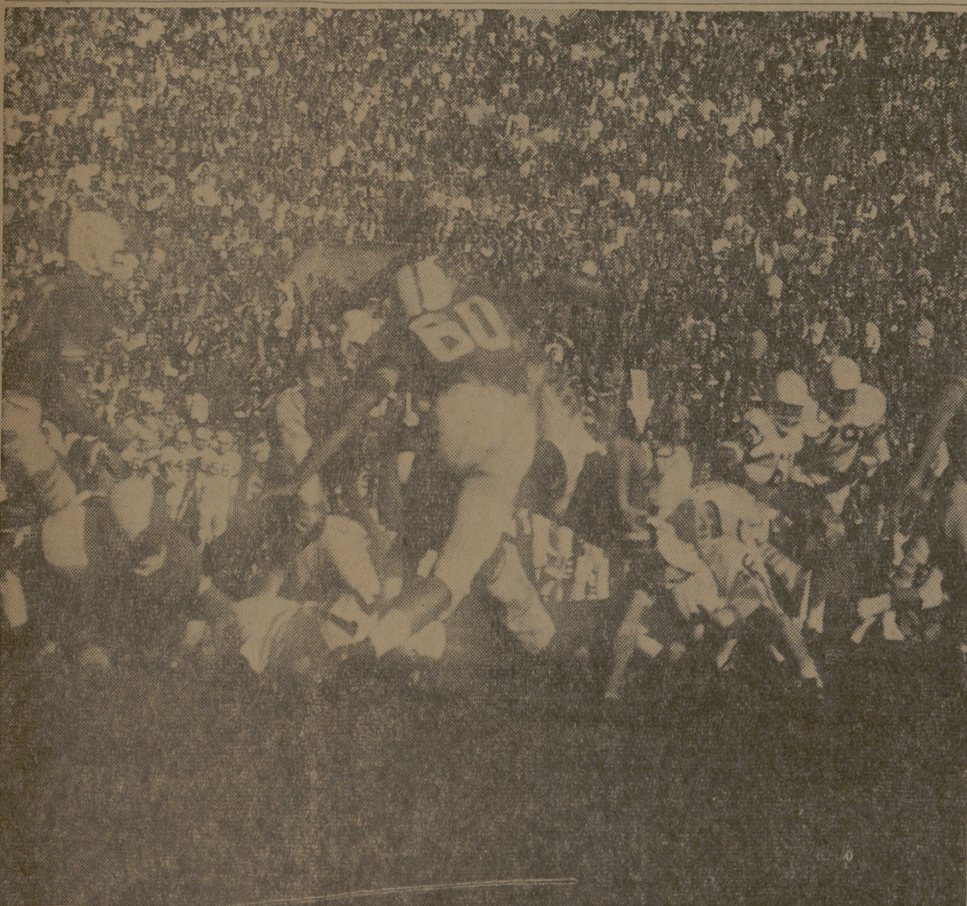

Police had to protect one mother whose child is one of two still attending the William Frantz school.

U. S. Protest Shooting by Cuban

WASHINGTON—The United States yesterday vigorously protested as wanton and unprovoked the shooting of a U. S. Embassy staff employe by a Cuban army officer in a Havana night club Nov. 19.

The State Department announced that Daniel M. Brad-dock, U. S. charged d'affaires in Havana, had formally protested the shooting of Ernest Wayne Henderson of Pasadena, Calif., who was wounded seriously. A note delivered to the Cuban Ministry of Foreign Affairs by Braddock also called for punishment of Capt. Jorge Robreno-Mariegos for what was described as a brutal and unwarranted attack.

classic in Austin last Thursday. Sims led all ball-carriers with a net of 83 yards gained. A white arrow points to the ball.
