

'Ivy League No Longer Attractive

By The Associated Press
 NEW YORK—The top Ivy League football player of a decade ago thinks Ivy League football isn't what it used to be in his day—just like any old grad.
 But when Dick Kazmaier says that, you have to listen.
 It was only a decade ago that he twice won All-America honors playing for Princeton as an offensive halfback in the platoon days. He's a keen, intelligent observer, and for most of the past 10 years he has been close enough to the Ivy League scene to see what's happening.

 In 1959 Ivy experts voted him the league player of the decade.
 Dick returned to the sports world today in a new role. He has just been made president of a group that has a big string of bowling establishments through the South. In it he will be associated with such sports figures as golfers Sam Snead, Jay and Lionel Hebert and Walter Burkemo, and Mayo Smith, former Cincinnati and Philadelphia baseball manager.

 Getting back to football, Kazmaier said:
 "Let's face it, Ivy League football no longer is attractive to the general public. They'll still get some good players, and they'll get the alumni and the students in the stands. But the way they're running things, Joe Fan just isn't interested."
 "Actually, the Middle Atlantic teams, like Rutgers, Bucknell, Delaware and some of the others, play just as good football as the Ivy teams now. It never used to be that way."
 Kazmaier cites the Ivy League ban on spring practice, rules restricting the activities of coaches and a few prohibitions enforced by the schools separately.
 "I criticize them on some points, but I'm 100 per cent in favor of most of their policies," he said.

"I believe a football player should be admitted just like any other student and should be treated like any other student. I don't think he should get any financial help unless he can earn it in studies."
 "But they handicap players by not allowing enough time to learn the

Vikings Stock 36 Veterans; NFL Wrestles With Schedule

By The Associated Press
 NEW YORK—The Minnesota Vikings today were busy stocking their new National Football League roster with 36 veterans while the league wrestled with its scheduling problems.
 The Vikings had until noon to complete their selection of 36 veterans from the 96 made available by 12 other clubs, Dallas, the 1960 addition, excepted.
 General Manager Bert Rose said he will announce the names in groups of six or nine as the "old" clubs have a chance to notify the players. He said it would be mid-afternoon he would have the first group.

 Coach Norm Van Brockent scout Joe Thomas spent most of the night with the selections. They two blackboards in a hallway for the names of the players, the other for the five men.

Jack Thomas Joins A&M Football Staff

Mississippi Southern assistant football coach Jack Thomas has resigned his position to accept a similar post at A&M, it was announced yesterday.

Thomas will assume the duties of line coach vacated when Matt Lair departed and went to Texas Tech over the Christmas holidays.
 Earlier Ty Bain moved from Kilgore High School to take over the duties vacated when Willie Zapalac accompanied Lair to Lubbock.

The 35-year-old Thomas is a native of Luling, Tex., and has coached at Southwestern Louisiana, Trinity, Victoria Junior College and Seguin High School.

He moved to Mississippi Southern three years ago. Southern athletic director Reede Green has said Thomas' replacement will be named before the beginning of spring training on the Hattiesburg, Miss. campus, Feb. 1.

Thomas' resignation will become effective Jan. 31.
 Bain, who is 43, compiled a 63-28-3 record as head mentor at Kilgore for nine years.

He began his coaching career in Jasper after graduating from Texas Tech. He only stayed at Jasper one year after a 5-5 season.

The following season he moved to his hometown of Mexia, where in three years he compiled a 30-6 record, won three district championships and advanced to the state finals once.

With the completion of the staff all is in readiness for the beginning of spring training Feb. 18.

Head Coach Jim Myers' charges will practice 20 days before the completion of the training grind in the Mar. 18 "Spring Game."
