

Progress Noted By Archives Office

The Archives Office, one of the most active and comprehensive in the state, is now in its second decade.

It was inaugurated in August, 1951, under the joint sponsorship of the College and the Association of Former Students for the purpose of gathering and preserving the history of the College.

The office, on the third floor of the Cushing Memorial Library, is administered by a committee composed of faculty members and former students. Robert A. Houze, director of the Cushing Memorial Library, is chairman of the committee.

David B. Cofer, a retired member of the faculty of the Department of English, was the first director. Under his administration many items and documents of historical interest and information were collected, Houze says. He also published five bulletins dealing with the early history and administration of the College.

After retiring Aug. 31, 1951, and being succeeded by Langford, former Head of the Division of Architecture, was named archivist on a part-time basis. Langford's efforts have been directed primarily toward the writing of the histories of the various departments and divisions of the College. Two histories have been completed and published: "The First Fifty Years of Architectural Education" and "Fifty Years of Veterinary Medicine." The first is a brief history of the Division of Architecture and the second a history of the School of Veterinary Medicine.

A manuscript of the history of the Department of Entomology has been completed by V. A. Little and will be ready for publication in a short time, Houze says.

Since the establishment of the Archives Office thousands of items of historical material, such as pictures, papers, letters, clippings, books, scrapbooks, annuals, designs and textbooks, have been collected, indexed and filed.

Since the office has been moved to the third floor of the Library, it is under way for the office to undertake a program of collecting and filing various publications of the College and its divisions.

"The committee will appreciate the cooperation of the various divisions of the College to the end that archives may gather and house all publications which in any way relate to any program conducted by any department or division of the College," Houze points out.

Service Test Applications Now Available

Students seeking a draft deferment should pick up applications for the Apr. 27 administration of the College Qualification Test which are now available at all Selective Service System local boards.

Eligible students who intend to take this test should apply at once to the nearest Selective Service local board for an application and a bulletin of information.

The student should fill out his application, following instructions in the bulletin, and mail it immediately in the envelope provided to Selective Service Examining Section, Educational Testing Service, P.O. Box 586, Princeton, N. J.

Applications for the Apr. 27 test must be postmarked no later than midnight, Apr. 6, 1961.

It will be greatly to the student's advantage to file his application at once. Test results will be reported to the student's Selective Service local board of jurisdiction for use in considering his deferment as a student.

Austin Pastor Speaks Here Next Week

The Rev. Edward V. Long, Pastor of St. Martin's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Austin, will speak on "Man in Revolt" at the All Faiths Chapel on campus Wednesday, Mar. 8 at 7:30 p.m.

"This will be the second of a series of outstanding speakers to be presented in the Chapel," J. Gordon Gay, coordinator of religious life and general secretary of the YMCA, says. The public is invited.

The program is sponsored by the Chapel Committee, the Interfaith Council, the Newman Club, B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation, the YMCA and the Student Christian Federation.

Medlin, Mowlam, Wilson Win Architecture Prize

Paul W. Medlin, Thomas J. Mowlam and Gordon W. Wilson were named winners of first, second and third prizes respectively in the local division of a nationwide Easter Seal Poster Contest yesterday.

The local contest was sponsored by the local chapters of Beta Sigma Phi, a nationwide non-academic sorority. Medlin, a sophomore architecture major living in College View, was awarded $15; Mowlam, a senior architecture major from Corsicana, was awarded $10, and Wilson, a junior architecture major from Baytown, was awarded $5.

Originally, the posters were not made for a contest, but were assigned as a design project in a Graphic Arts class taught by Joseph Donaldson, Jr., of the Division of Architecture. The projects were assigned on Feb. 13 and were due on Feb. 22. After the assignment was made, it was decided to use the posters in the contest. There were 25 entries in the contest. The posters were judged by a five member team:

Mrs. C. M. Jones, representing the sponsoring sorority; Dr. Maurice Futrell from the Department of Plant Physiology and Pathology;

J. H. Hinojosa, Alan Stacell and W. G. Horsley, all from the Division of Architecture.

The posters will be used to promote Easter Seal campaigns in six counties of Texas and might possibly find their way onto the face of an Easter Seal.

"The Civil War" will be the theme of an A&M History Society exhibit planned for the display windows of the Memorial Student Center March 1-15, according to Steve Weiss, an officer in the club.

"We are looking for relics from the Civil War period to add to the exhibit," Weiss said. "Weapons, uniforms, pictures, old letters, even buttons or belt buckles would be helpful."

Anyone wishing to add to the display may contact Weiss or Dr. Allen C. Ashcraft, History Society Advisor.

Algerian, North African Peace Conference Begins

By The Associated Press
RABAT, Morocco—The leaders of Tunisia, Morocco and the Algerian rebel regime went into conference Wednesday night to examine prospects for peace in Algeria and North African unity. Their meeting followed top-level French-Tunisian talks in Paris on Algerian peace.

The North African meeting brought together Morocco's new King Hassan II, Tunisia's president Habib Bourguiba and Ferhat Abbas, premier of the provisional rebel nationalist government of Algeria, and it gave impetus to plans for eventual federation or association for the vast area of Northwest Africa. Such a federation, called United Maghreb, has long been a dream of North African nationalists.

One obstacle to Bourguiba's dream of an independent federation of Algeria, Tunisia and Morocco was reported cleared away in his conference with King Hassan II of Morocco.

"The cloud which had darkened relations between Morocco and Tunisia is ready to disappear," Hassan said after a morning session.

This apparently was a reference to the issue of Mauritania, a desert nation Tunisia recognizes as independent but which Morocco claims it owns. In recent months the issue of Mauritania has soured the once warm relations between the two former French colonies.

Fresh from talks with French President Charles de Gaulle in Paris, Bourguiba now appeared trying to clear the biggest remaining obstacle to a North African union—the Algeria rebellion.

In a broadcast taped in France and sent to Algeria and Tunisia, Bourguiba urged the Algerian nationalist rebels to work with de Gaulle to end the seven-year-old rebellion.

Rebel leaders who have their headquarters in Tunis, Bourguiba's capital, showed interest.
