

SUGGESTIONS

...suggested two petitions, one favoring Texas State University and the other favoring Texas A&M University, be circulated in all Corps dormitories. These petitions would then be presented to the Senate before the bill comes up on the floor.

It was also suggested A&M students write their own senators, favoring either of the two name possibilities or making alternative suggestions.

To facilitate writing, there follows a list of the 31 Texas Senators and their hometowns.

The address in every case would be the State Capital, Austin.

(Editors note—following is a letter written by the three students who made the trip to Austin. It is addressed to the student body, however, opinions expressed in the letter are those of the writers and do not necessarily coincide with the editorial opinion of The Battalion).

To The Student Body:
On the sixth of this month Sen. Bill Moore, '40, of Bryan, introduced a bill into the Texas Senate which would change the name of our school to the Texas State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College. The Bill, Senate Bill No. 302, was run through the Senate Education Committee which approved it and sent it back to the Senate the next day. This bill is now to be voted on by the State Senate next Monday or Tuesday, according to Moore.

Because of the quick action taken on the bill, as well as the serious consequences that will result should it pass, we drove to Austin Tuesday in an effort to see Senator Moore and the co-signer of the Bill, Senator Andy Rogers, '46, of Childress; Senator Ray Roberts, '34, of McKinney; Senator A. R. Schwartz, '47, of Galveston; and Senator George Moffett, '16, of Chillicothe. They are all Aggies and want only the very best for Texas A&M. We saw all but Senator Moffett; in addition we talked to several other Senators and state representatives, as well as to Governor Price Daniel.

Our day in Austin proved several things to us. First of all that the name of Texas A&M must and will be changed; that it must and will include the word "university" and that the state Senate is anxious to do what is best for the school. For the most part the senators have no preconceived ideas about what it should be changed to, except that it include the word "university," and are perfectly willing to accept suggestions for a new name from the students (both present and former), faculty, administration and interested citizens. The Board of Directors of the college has unanimously recommended "Texas A&M University," the Academic Council of the college concurred in this recommendation by a vote of 45 to 10. We three also favor this name. But the outcry heard on the campus against the name "Texas State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College" has not yet been felt in the state Senate. And it must be felt if we are to avoid losing "Texas A&M" in our name forever. If Senate Bill No. 302 is passed, contrary to some beliefs, the undergraduate school will not be called the "Agricultural and Mechanical College," and the name Texas A&M will be lost.

These senators and representatives want you, the student body, to tell them by letter (telegram and telephone what you feel about the name change. They want an indication of your feelings and are asking for it. So regardless of whether you want the name changed or not, or which name you want it changed to, tell your senator about it. And don't just tell him you're opposed to this or that; make a suggestion.

Do it in good taste, and give him reasons to back up your feelings. With all Aggies working together on this, we're bound to work something out for the good of Texas A&M.

Three Professors To Attend Meeting

Three A&M professors will attend a symposium on poultry health Mar. 20-22 at Washington, D. C.

They are Dr. L. C. Grumbles, professor and head, and Dr. C. F. Hall, associate professor, Department of Veterinary Microbiology, and Dr. Price Hobgood, Professor and Head of the Agricultural Engineering Department.

Grumbles will present a paper on "Role of Principal Respiratory Diseases in Air Sac Infection."

AFTER RACIAL DISPUTE

South Africans Quit Commonwealth

By The Associated Press
LONDON—With a stern warning, South Africa decided Wednesday night to quit the British Commonwealth.

The rupture, threatening economic repercussions in the multi-racial group of nations, came over South Africa's racial segregation policies.

The nation's white supremacist prime minister, Henrik Verwoerd, was quoted as telling a Commonwealth conference: "The proceedings at today's meeting which have obligated me to take this regrettable step, in my opinion, mark the beginning of the disintegration of the Commonwealth."

Blaming Asian-African members of the Commonwealth for raising the apartheid issue, Verwoerd mentioned India, Ghana, Malaya and Ceylon.

Verwoerd took the step when the other members insisted on their right to denounce South Africa's apartheid policy.

The decision came after three days of argument by the 11 prime ministers and presidents behind locked doors.

It was a bitter blow to Britain's Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Aware of the consequences of South Africa's withdrawal, Macmillan had toiled in and out of the conference to get a formula acceptable to everyone.

But three leaders of the opposition stood firm—Prime Ministers Nehru of India, John Diefenbaker
