

M-W Tilt Ends Drills

After many days of grueling practice, the A&M football team has something to look forward to for a change, since tomorrow marks the last day of spring drills that will be climaxed by the Annual Maroon and White Intra-squad game.

The contest will take place at 4 in the afternoon on Kyle Field, following the triangular track meet between A&M, Rice and LSU.

The White team seems to be a slight favorite since they will have seven men who held down top positions at the conclusion of spring drills.

Fullback Sam Byer and converted halfback Lee Roy Caffey, are probably the biggest reasons for choosing a favorite in the game. Last season they both ran from the fullback slot and were tabbed by many as the best 'one-two' fullback punch in the Southwest Conference.

The only sophomore on the Whites will be Jim Linnstaedter, who was the number one Fish quarterback last season.

Sophomores hold down two backfield positions for the Maroons. Jerry Rogers will be at fullback and George Hargett who is quite speedy will be at left halfback. Ronnie Brice who is also quite "fast with his feet" will be the signal caller for the Maroons and the backfield will be rounded out by veteran Bob Caskey.

At center for the Maroons will be Ray Kubala who is the only sophomore lineman on either of the first teams.

Pacing the Maroon line will be Wayne Freiling and Joe Eilers who both started most of the 1960 season.

Coaches for the Maroons will be Tom Ellis, Travis Hughes and Jack Thomas while Elmer Smith, Bobby Drake Keith and Ty Bain will take over duties for the Whites.

Tri-Meet Features Rice, LSU, A&M

A&M will host its first and only track meet of the year tomorrow on Kyle Field at 1 p.m. as Rice and Louisiana State University will be on hand for the triangular affair.

The Aggies started fairly strong this season in their opening meet at Fort Worth, but since they have only placed first in two events. Gail McDaniel pole-vaulted 12-3 in a triangular meet with Texas and the University of Houston and the same meet James Daniel tied for the high jump with 6 1/2.

In the last couple of meets A&M has been hampered with injuries. Two of their top sprinters, Eugene Dornak and Ed Williams haven't been up to par because of leg trouble. Both men are doubtful for tomorrow's meet.

One edge that A&M will have over the other teams is the fact that LSU will be competing in its first meet of the year and the meet will be Rice's second. Tomorrow will be the Cadet's fourth appearance of the year.

Also Rice has had some trouble with injuries this year and won't enter all the events.

The field events will get under way at 1 tomorrow and track will start at 1:30. Leading off the running events will be the 440-yard relay and the mile relay will end the meet at 3:30.

A&M's next meet will be with Lamar Tech and Northwestern Louisiana at Beaumont March 25.

'Student' Players Blamed For Most Losing Seasons

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF Associated Press Sports Writer

When a team fails to win it invariably is accused of playing the "students." The quipster, with tongue in cheek, is subtly insinuating that the school isn't paying its athletes.

Actually, the athletes are just as much students as those not on athletic scholarships. The difference comes from the fact that the scholarship holder gets his way paid through college. He gets the extra consideration because he not only does everything the regular student does but spends a lot of time helping build the athletic treasury.

Anyway, Southern Methodist University is now planning to play the "students" in spring sports. There won't be any more athletic scholarships for track, golf, tennis, baseball and swimming—at least until the financial picture improves.

The spring sports cost too much money without anything coming in.

This cost brought a deficit in the athletic department for the first time since Matty Bell, the athletic director, has been connected with Southern Methodist. He has been there 25 years.

Southern Methodist has been handing out 180 scholarships a year with 90 to 100 for football, 15 to 20 for basketball and the remaining 60 to 70 going to the spring sports. It's those 70 that will be lopped off. A scholarship at Southern Methodist costs $1500 per year. So SMU will be saving $105,000.

The fact of the matter is this: football isn't bringing in enough money to pay its own expenses and support the spring sports, too. The past season, when Southern Methodist didn't win a game, attendance was away down.

Bell attributes some of the fall-off to pro football since Dallas has two teams that get 20,000 or more for each game. Of course, the SMU football record would indicate that it might not have drawn

'T' Association Has Tickets

Tickets for the track meet and football game tomorrow can be purchased from members of the "T" Association or at the gate of Kyle Field.

Also a ticket booth is set up in the Memorial Student Center by members of the Association.

The price is $1 and even though there is some question about the admission of children, one "T" member said, "We'll probably let the little kids in free."

Fish Take On 'Horns Today On Kyle Field

Looking for their second win of the season and second straight victory, the Aggie Fish baseballers take on the ever-tough Texas Shorthorns this afternoon at 3 p.m. on Kyle Field.

The Fish won their first game as they humbled the Allen Academy Ramblers here last Monday, 12-2. Last year's Fish lost only one game and that loss was to the hands of the Shorthorns.

Fish Coach J. B. Carroll said that his men are ready for the 'Horns and also that the Fish's pitching has been shaping up much better in the last few days.

Dave Johnson and Chuck McGuire, two Fish basketballers, are just about in shape as they were late reporting to the baseball diamond. Both are top-notch performers, Johnson at shortstop and McGuire a pitcher.

Texas is expected to have two fine pitchers and a good bit of power, but all other details will have to be learned on the field today.

Next week the Fish will play three games, two of them on the road. Tuesday they journey to Waco where they will try the Baylor Cubs. The next day, Wednesday, they go to Houston where they play the Rice Owls (this game has been moved up a week because of a Rice vacation). Friday the Fish will play Allen Academy in Bryan.

The starting lineup for the Fish is the same as it was against Allen last Monday except Richard Beller will start on the mound.

Intramurals

Three events were played in intramural sports yesterday before the rains came.

In Class A Volleyball, Sq. 6 edged G-1, 2-1; and F-1 blanked H-2, 2-0.

In Class C Volleyball, Milner Hall edged Leggett, 2-1.

In Class A Tennis, Sq. 3 slipped Sq. 5, 2-1; Sq. 12 swept past Sq. 17, 2-1; Sq. 7 won over D-2, 2-1; H-1 took 1-2 by forfeit; Sq. 4 edged B-2, 2-1; and C-1 won over F-2, 2-1.
