

Bryan, CS CADET SLOUCH by Jim Earle

Bryan and College Station are featured in the 1960 Annual Report to Stockholders of The Southwestern States Telephone Company.

Two pages are devoted to the Bryan-College Station area in the report.

The report has been mailed to approximately 10,000 stockholders throughout the U. S. and several foreign countries.

Along with the story on Bryan-College Station appears a road map showing 50-mile, 100-mile and 150-mile radiuses from Bryan-College Station, photos of the Central Baptist Church, Brazos County Courthouse, Townsquare shopping center, an attractive home in Bryan, A&M's Kyle Field and an aerial photo of the main campus of A&M.

The report states that Bryan-College Station comprises one of the telephone company's "principal service territories." The economy of the area is described as being based largely on agriculture, light manufacturing and education.

The report states that "a bright future of substantial growth and sound economy is anticipated for Bryan-College Station, based on the trend toward decentralization of industry, the availability of technically trained personnel from their educational institutions and the natural resources of the area."

The population increase in Bryan and College Station is described in the report, as well as the growth of telephone facilities, which has paralleled the population trend.

"The Southwestern States Telephone Company now serves more than 14,000 telephones in Bryan and College Station compared to 6,200 ten years ago."

The report adds "More long distance tolls are handled at Bryan than any other company-operated toll center." The headquarters for the South Texas Division of the company's operations are located at Bryan. G. M. Brennan is Division Manager.

Hydrogen Bomb By Satellite

By ELTON C. FAY
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union's man-in-space feat could bring nearer the time when hydrogen bombing by satellite is possible.

The landing of the man-carrying vehicle in what Moscow refers to as a "prearranged area" is the most recent of a series of demonstrations by both the U.S.S.R. and the United States that objects can be ejected from satellites and brought to earth at designated spots.

If this can be done with a five-ton vehicle carrying a man, and with smaller vehicles carrying animals and instruments, why can't it be done with a thermo-nuclear bomb?

Some U.S. military scientists say the use of satellites for delivering nuclear weapons on earth targets is possible. Soviet weaponeers would be expected to have the same interest in that line of thought.

Considerable improvement in precision would be needed. An "area" into which a capsule is directed actually can be anywhere in several hundred square miles. Something nearer pinpoint aim would be needed even for the massive blast of a hydrogen bomb.

But the fact remains that both the Soviet Union and the United States now have mastered the technique of bringing down packages from satellites on command. The Soviet Union has announced three previous recoveries of orbiting vehicles, carrying dogs and other life.

The U.S. Air Force Discovery satellite series has produced four successful recoveries of capsules, ejected from satellites into prearranged areas. One was recovered from the sea, three have been snatched from the air as they descended by parachute after entering the earth's atmosphere.

The four recoveries were made from 16 satellites which went into orbit. On seven of these occasions, capsules were ejected successfully from satellites, but three of them failed to land near enough to the watching teams for recovery.

Like other details concerning Soviet programs, the scoreboard for successes and failures of its recovery attempts is not known. There have been rumors that at least one Soviet man-in-space attempt failed.

By contrast, U.S. efforts in both missile weapons and space vehicle projects have been reported officially and often in detail.

Israel Proclaims Right To Try Adolf Eichmann

By The Associated Press
JERUSALEM — The prosecutor of Adolf Eichmann proclaimed Israel's right to try him as the killer of millions of Jews, declaring Wednesday: "For this crime there is no atonement, there is no pardon and there can be no forgetting."

Pointing his finger at the bald, former colonel in Hitler's Gestapo, Atty. Gen. Gideon Hausner cried: "It is only possible to believe and to hope that the sons will not carry on the crimes of their fathers and will not be called upon to answer for their crimes. But for him who created these crimes, there is no atonement."

Eichmann scribbled a note on a pad in the prisoner's dock, a cage of bullet-proof glass. Then, he sat cupping his chin in his right hand.

His only display of animation came before the trial's second day began. He exchanged a few words with his German defense counsel, Robert Servatius, through a private microphone.

Servatius is challenging Israel's right to try Eichmann—former chief of the Jewish affairs section of the Nazi Gestapo—for "crimes against the Jewish people and crimes against humanity."

The German lawyer claims that Israeli war crimes law is invalid because it was passed in 1950 after the crime was committed. He says Eichmann was only an instrument of his Nazi masters dragged into the crime and, in any event, it was committed in Europe and not Israel.

"If we do not try Eichmann," Hausner retorted in his argument before the three-judge court, "it is quite possible he will not be tried at all, and a crime without precedent would not be punished."

"Men who are poisonous, who are assassins, may be exterminated wherever and whenever they are caught."

Thus Hausner defended this country's right to try the man its agents hunted for 15 years as the master architect behind Nazi Germany's extermination of an estimated six million Jews.

Hausner listed court rulings in Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Switzerland, the United States, France, Czechoslovakia and Brazil dealing with the "law of territoriality" and establishing the right of nations to prosecute foreign citizens for offenses committed outside their own borders.

Hausner did not complete his reply to Servatius' challenge. He asked for another hour to sum up his plea Friday. Servatius will present a rebuttal.

Chief Justice Moshe Landau, president of the three-judge court, asked the German lawyer to give a "concise answer" and Servatius said he could do it in half an hour.

The trial is in recess Thursday, a new national holiday of "remembrance of the holocaust and heroism." Holocaust is the word Israel uses to characterize the Nazi extermination of more than half of Europe's Jews during World War II.
