dispute, or the Ecuador-Peru and dispute, to cite a couple) which weaken our economic make and make us hate our own people. We spend innumerable millions of sorely needed dollars in building armies to enforce our claims upon our neighbors.

Today, there is a movement among the young Latin Americans, like myself, a movement toward complete union, not only of ideas, but of nationalities and economics; a movement to melt into one big nation, the Latin American State, each of the 20 countries which today stand apart.

If countries as different ethnically and politically as the Western European countries could find basis for a common market, why can not we, who are of the same race, the same religion and political beliefs, do the same?

Just imagine the results of such union! If we unite the oil from Venezuela, the emeralds of Colombia, the bananas of Ecuador, the coffee of Brazil, the tin of Bolivia, the meat from Argentina and Uruguay, the copper from Chile, the silver from Peru and all the mineral and agricultural resources of South America, Central America, Mexico and the Caribbean, this compact would be of such magnitude that it would have no precedent or comparison.

If we unite, all the millions spent in armies to defend against each other would be used in building and educating our backward country as a whole. A good example is Costa Rica, which outlawed the army in 1956, and today they have the highest percentage of literacy in Central America, and one of the highest in the Continent. Costicans are proud of this fact, and their motto is: "We have more teachers and less soldiers than any country in Central America."

How about the man-power, the geographical position and the political effect that such a union would have? The Latin American country would dominate the Pacific and Atlantic Oceans, and it would separate the world into two parts, because it would control the access from one ocean to another.

If all that hate against each other could be used in helping one another instead of destroying one another, this country would be a paradise, a dream that all Latin Americans hope to achieve someday.

THE BATTALION

'Ladies Man' Entries Grow

Applicants have begun rolling in by leaps and bounds for the "Ladies Man" contest which features a prize of a date with the movie starlet of your choice and a free vacation in Hollywood, Cal. Many seem to have hope that the national contest will host a natural winner, an Aggie, as "Ladies Man of the Nation" title holder, shown through lists of endorsements brought in by the contestants.

The main objective of the contest, which open to all students, is to get a list of endorsements, consisting of signatures and I.D. numbers of endorsers, stating that "These people feel I should be acclaimed 'Ladies Man' of the Campus."

Actual rules for the contest run as follows:

1. Any student is eligible to enter the contest. He must come by The Battalion Office in the basement of the YMCA Building and fill out an entry blank before Tuesday, Apr. 18, at noon.
2. Entrants will then have until May 2 to submit a list of endorsements. An endorsement will consist of the printed name, the signature and the identification card number of any other Aggie. The candidate with the most endorsements wins the right to be known as the "Ladies Man" of the A&M campus.
3. No student may sign more than one endorsement.
4. When candidates fill out entry blanks they must choose, from pictures, the one girl they would like to take out if named national winner.

5. Also required on the form is various personal information concerning the candidate, and a 25-word or less statement on "Why I Would Like This Starlet As a Date."

6. A panel of judges, headed by Jerry Lewis, will select the national winner.

7. Members of The Battalion staff are not eligible for the contest.

Deadline for entries in the contest is Tuesday, Apr. 18, so everyone hurry and enter; you might find yourself at a swank apartment in Hollywood soon!

MY WISH

Three is such a tender age. Sue isn't a baby any more, yet she's a long way from being a big girl.

When I watched her blowing out the candles on her cake, I felt a surge of that certain kind of love reserved for mothers. And, while she made her wish, I made mine.

I wished, first, that I might be given the gift of memory, so that I would never forget a child's point of view—the importance of even the littlest promises, the oldest dolls, the smallest nothings.

I wished that I might be given the wisdom to care for Sue's body, mind, and soul. And I was deeply grateful that I had the Church to help me teach her right from wrong, and to aid me in endowing her with a rich measure of faith, of love, and of tolerance toward her fellow man.

Thinking it over, I guess that my wish for Sue might be called a prayer. Each Sunday, in church, I find myself repeating it.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL ... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
