Peace Corps Topic Discussed At A&M

"It is essential that interest be generated in the Peace Corps on the nation's college and university campuses in a much greater capacity than has thus far been shown," a representative of the State Department said Friday in a meeting of various faculty and administration representatives.

Herbert Hoffman, representative of National Peace Corps Headquarters, arrived on the A&M Campus at noon Friday, the first stop in an intensive investigatory tour of Southwestern colleges to obtain suggestions for generating interest in the organization, on the local and national level.

Of prime basis for discussion during the meeting was a poll taken by The Battalion in April for the New York Herald Tribune, in which 22 students leaders and scholars were interviewed.

Hoffman was interested in seeing how the Peace Corps concept was being accepted at A&M, and the results of this poll showed 18 of the 22 as having had good general knowledge, four had done intensive research on the subject, and one of these had applied for enlistment in the Corps.

Basic policies against the Peace Corps were discussed, including the enlistee's having no pay except for bare necessities, where college graduates in the United States will be generally offered in excess of $400 a month as salary upon graduation.

"We are looking for people with a basic skill, who are able and enthusiastically willing to go into these underdeveloped countries and not only demonstrate this basic skill, but work at it for two years, living under exactly the same conditions as their native counterparts," said Hoffman.

From this statement, it was deduced that an appeal to the Peace Corps must be aimed at lesser-classified students than graduating seniors.

"The Peace Corps is basically a nuts and bolts policy working at the grass roots level; where the United States has been making a major mistake is in diplomatic relations only with the highest echelon of governmental officials. Peace Corps workers are to live, eat, and work with the people of the country where they are sent," said Hoffman.

"The advantages of joining such a program are really much greater than they seem at first glance; people in the Peace Corps can receive an invaluable education working with lesser developed countries in this manner, and when finished, will have a much fuller understanding of the 'pulse of the people' there," he added.

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Air Force plane will fly to France Friday at twice the speed of sound to commemorate the 34th anniversary of Charles Lindbergh's solo flight to Paris.

Lindbergh flew from New York to Paris in 33½ hours on May 21, 1927.

A B-58 bomber will fly nonstop from Carswell Air Force Base, Tex., and reach Paris in an estimated five hours and 55 minutes. A group of aviation enthusiasts had hoped Lindbergh would make the anniversary flight with the Air Force. But friends of Lindbergh said he was unwilling to come out of retirement for the commemoration.

Final Review Saturday To End Corps Year

The final Corps of Cadets review of the year is on tap Saturday afternoon with the annual Final Review on the main drill field in front of the Memorial Student Center.

Over 50 cadets will assume command positions in the annual last-of-the-year shift that places juniors in the tentative positions they will hold next year.

In addition the promotion order released Tuesday by the Department of Military Science and Tactics included for the first time the names of tentative sergeant majors for corps, wing and brigade staffs.

The new cadet officers will take command after an initial review that will serve as the official farewell for graduating seniors.

Then the Corps of Cadets will re-form for a second review, with the new officers in command. Also all freshmen, sophomores and juniors will automatically assume the class privileges they will hold next year.

New tentative commanders revealed in General Order No. 11 are:

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Cuban underground leader Manuel Ray announced Wednesday that large-scale sabotage will be resumed in Cuba.

At the same time, persons close to Ray reported that his organization, the People's Revolutionary Movement, was withdrawing from the revolutionary council that spearheaded the unsuccessful Apr. 17 invasion.

The development came as 10 prisoner emissaries of Fidel Castro returned here from Washington expressing hope that some 1,200 invasion captives would be freed in return for American tractors as offered by the Cuban Prime Minister.

Ray, whose group rivals the more conservative Democratic Revolutionary Front, headed by Antonio de Varona, said his organization has re-established contact with Unidad Revolucionaria, which directed extensive sabotage inside Cuba before the invasion.

"We want everyone to come, so members of the class who don't have boots or who do not have dates this weekend are also invited," Waddell said.

The theme for the dance will be "boots, boots, and more boots," according to Waddell.

Waddell said any junior and his date who wishes to help decorate for the dance should come to Sbsa Dining Hall Friday at 8 p.m.

Class Of '62 Ready For Boot Dance

The Class of '62 will celebrate their becoming seniors at the annual Boot Dance Saturday in Sbsa Dining Hall from 9-12 p.m.

Cost of the dance will be $3 a couple for members of the Class of '62; parents will be admitted free, according to Class of '62 President John Waddell.

Tickets are now on sale at the Cashier's Window in the Memorial Student Center, or they may be purchased at the door.

Music for the event will be furnished by the Bennie Prause Orchestra. Prause, from Cuero, played here earlier this year for the Civilian Dance during Civilian Student Weekend.

Waddell said the dance will be semi-formal; girls will wear short formal or cocktail dresses and members of the Class of '62 will wear Class 'A' summer with boots if in the Corps, or suits and ties if civilian.

"We want everyone to come, so members of the class who don't have boots or who do not have dates this weekend are also invited," Waddell said.

The $3 registration fee is good for both of the sessions and is payable at the Campus Security Office.

Registration Open For Summer Cars

Students planning to attend summer school sessions may begin registering cars if they know their summer camp address.

The $3 registration fee is good for both of the sessions and is payable at the Campus Security Office.

Diplomas, Bars Awarded Saturday

Over 900 graduates will be awarded diplomas and gold bars as they attend the commencement and commissioning exercises to be held Saturday in G. Rollie White Coliseum.

The graduates will be given their sheepskins at 9 a.m. and will receive their commissions as Army or Air Force 2nd lieutenants at 1:15 p.m.

Dr. Andrew D. Holt

Dr. Andrew D. Holt, president of the University of Tennessee and international educator, will be commencement speaker.

Holt was born in the west Tennessee town of Milan on Dec. 4, 1904. He earned his bachelor's degree at Emory University in Atlanta and went on to receive both his Master's and Doctor's degrees from Columbia University in New York.

After serving as an elementary teacher, high school teacher, demonstration school principal, college professor and high school supervisor for west Tennessee, Holt was elected president of the National Education Association. This is considered by many to be the highest honor America's million teachers can award upon a member of their profession.

In 1950, Holt joined the faculty of the University of Tennessee where his contribution to the development of the university advanced him to vice president and then president of the university.

Holt has received many international, national and regional honors in past years. He was chairman of the U. S. Delegation to the World Organization of the Teaching Profession at Berne, Switzerland, in 1949, and also attended that organization's meeting in Ottawa, Canada, in 1950. Holt served as a delegate to the White House Conference on Children and Youth in 1960 and as a member of the Council of Advisors of the U. S. Commission of Education.

Gen. Frederic H. Smith

Gen. Frederic H. Smith, Jr., commander-in-chief, United States Air Forces in Europe, will deliver the commissioning address and present commissions.

Smith was born at Fort Monroe, Va., June 30, 1908. He attended the United States Military Academy at West Point and graduated as a second lieutenant of Field Artillery, June 13, 1929.

His first assignment was that of student officer at the Air Corps primary and advanced flying schools at Brooke and Kelly Fields, located near San Antonio. After receiving his wings he was transferred to the Army Air Corps in 1930.

Smith served as both a flying instructor at Kelly Field and senior aeronautical inspector for the Panama Canal, Canal Zone, before being appointed as operations officer of the 36th Pursuit Squadron in late 1939. In less than two years from this time he became commanding officer of the Eighth Pursuit Group and by the end of the war he was commander of the Fifth Fighter Group.

He has served in practically every theater of operations during his career and in 1959 he was named to his present post.

Some of Smith's decorations include the Legion of Merit, Distinguished Service Medal, Oak Leaf Cluster, Air Medal, Army Commendation Ribbon, Asiatic Pacific Campaign Medal, National Defense Service Medal and the American Campaign Medal.

The schedules for the Commencement and Commissioning exercises may be found on Page 6.

Faculty Members Cited For Distinguished Work

Seven A&M faculty members were recognized with $1,000 awards for distinguished achievement Tuesday.

The awards, presented by James W. Aston, president of the Republic National Bank of Dallas and president of the Association of Former Students, went to Dr. John Q. Anderson, professor of English; Dr. W. C. Banks, professor of veterinary radiology and supervisor of the clinical diagnostic laboratory; Edwin S. Holdredge, professor of mechanical engineering; Dr. John P. German, professor of electrical engineering, all for distinguished achievement in teaching.

To J. W. Amyx, professor of petroleum engineering, for distinguished achievement in individual student relationships; J. Roy Quinby, superintendent of Substation No. 12 at Chillicothe of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, for distinguished achievement in research, and to Jack H.

Lewis, county agent for Kaufman County of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, for distinguished achievement in extension.

Nominations for the awards were made by students and faculty members and selections were made by a faculty committee. The award for distinguished achievement in extension marks the first time an award of this type has been given.

JOHN Q. ANDERSON

Anderson joined the Department of English in 1953 as an instructor. Because of his superior ability, he was promoted through ranks to full professor in 1959. An authority on American literature, his strong record of scholarship is demonstrated by his numerous articles and three books.

A thoroughly dedicated teacher, Anderson puts his all into his teaching efforts in such a way that students maneuver to get into his classes. In addition to his regular teaching load, he conducts a non-credit course in "Great Ideas."

W. C. BANKS

A graduate of A&M with a Doctor of Veterinary Medicine degree in 1941 and a Master of Science in veterinary pathology in 1952, Dr. Banks is a recognized authority (See FACULTY AWARDS Page 3)
