ity in the field of veterinary radiology. His numerous technical articles in the field have done much to further the science.

EDWIN S. HOLDREDGE

Holdredge has been with the Department of Mechanical Engineering since 1939, except for a period with the Tennessee Eastman Corporation at Oak Ridge from 1944 to 1946. He holds the Bachelor and Master of Science degrees from the University of Tennessee.

Holdredge introduced the concept of fluid mechanics which is a required course in many engineering departments at A&M and at other colleges and universities; he is a proponent of the philosophy that all engineering should be taught and understood on the basis of fundamentals and he has designed and built a passive analog computer which is used by graduate students as a means of solving complex problems in heat transfer and fluid mechanics.

JOHN P. GERMAN

German, a member of the electrical engineering staff since 1958, is regarded by students and fellow teachers alike as a thorough and meticulous teacher who spares no effort in preparing and effectively presenting the subject matter of his courses.

He has a variety of academic and professional experience. He has worked as an engineer with Dallas Power and Light Co., North American Aviation, Hughes Aircraft Co. and Convair. He holds the Bachelor and Master of Science and Doctor of Philosophy degrees from the University of Texas.

J. W. AMYX

In addition to his outstanding work as a professor of petroleum engineering, Amyx has served significantly in many student activities. He is noted among students for his helpful, but patient manner in advising on various problems.

He is a member of the Memorial Student Center Council, faculty sponsor to the Petroleum Club, advisor to Tau Beta Pi Chapter and to H Company of the Second Brigade, and a member of the Engineer Magazine Advisory and Engineering Faculty Advisory committees.

J. ROY QUINBY

Sorghum genetics and breeding have been for many years the chief interest of Quinby. His research in this area led to the use of male sterile techniques for the production of hybrid sorghum seeds. This technique has produced several outstanding varieties which have saved as much as $45 million to Texas farmers each year. The male sterile techniques has been widely adopted by commercial seed companies throughout the country.

JACK H. LEWIS

As county agricultural agent for Kaufman County since 1956, Lewis has provided creative leadership in implementing a total educational program, involving and benefiting the rural and urban population of Kaufman County.

He has successfully established demonstration programs on 50 farms in 12 communities of the county. He has been instrumental in reapportionment of more than 6,000 acres of unwanted cotton acreage, and has vitalized the county 4-H program to include 18 clubs with more than 50 organization and subject-matter leaders, in addition to many other distinguished achievements.

Retiring Faculty Members

Five A&M faculty members were honored Tuesday on the occasion of their retirement from teaching. Receiving the certificates were (left to right) Robert B. Bossler, professor of petroleum engineering, retiring after five years; Dr. James H. Bass, professor of history and government, retiring with 21 years of service; President Earl Rudder, who made the presentations; Dr.

Robert L. Hunt, professor of agricultural economics and sociology, retiring after 34 years; and Thomas W. Leland, professor and head of the division of business administration, retiring after 39 years of service. Not shown is Dr. Ivan B. Boughton, professor of veterinary pathology, retiring after 29 years of service.

Kingston Trio To Break Up, Claim Conflict of Interests

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Why would three young fellows take the ax to a golden goose that has been bringing them a million dollars a year?

That's what folks have been asking since the announcement that the Kingston Trio is breaking up. The news came with a terse "conflict of interests" explanation, which didn't explain much.

The split is puzzling not only because the Kingstons are one of the greatest successes in recent show business, but also because they have always displayed the greatest of affability onstage.

The major issue appears to be this:

Dave Guard, crew-cut leader of the trio, wants to aim toward better music.

That's what folks have been asking since the announcement that the Kingston Trio is breaking up.

Handsome Bob Shane and stubby Nick Reynolds, plus the trio's bearded manager, Frank Werber, want to stick to the pop songs that made them famous.

Speaking from his Palo Alto home, Guard said: "Our problem is a matter of ambition—where we want to go and how we get there. I want to make good music. The other two aren't dedicated musicians. I feel very strongly about this; otherwise I wouldn't be turning away a huge guarantee."

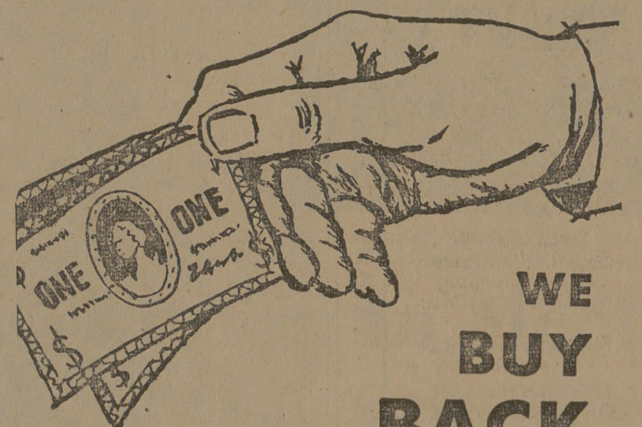

Speaking for the other camp from his San Francisco office was manager Werber: "It's a matter of selection of material. Dave feels his whole interest is music, and he is very scholarly about it. The other two are more happy-go-lucky. They'd rather do the simple

Military Magazine Publishes Article By History Professor

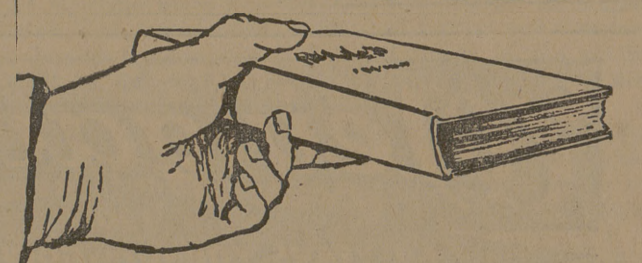

A short article "Corporal Hesse's Medal of Honor," by Dr. Allan C. Ashcraft, assistant professor of History, appears in the May, 1961, issue of Military Review, a publication of the U. S. Army Command and General Staff College.

After the surrender of the Federal forces at San Antonio under

Maj. Gen. David Twiggs in February of 1861, Corp. John C. Hesse at San Antonio was among the headquarters enlisted men who was retained as prisoners after most of the federal officers and men were paroled and allowed to return to their homes until properly exchanged.
