

CADET SLOUCH by Jim Earle

"... When it rains like this, I get th' feelin' I should be workin' on th' bonfire!"

— Sound Off —

(Editor's Note: This letter was received in connection with the speech given last week by William J. Ellena at one of the meetings of school administrators. It is a copy of the one sent to Ellena.)

Dear Mr. Ellena:

I have read a report of the address you made to some five hundred school people at Texas A&M.

It is surprising that educated men such as yourself have surrendered your individual initiative to the school of one-world socialism, central control and the loss of all individual responsibility. For a thinking American to advocate federal aid to education is beyond my comprehension.

This country has been built on individual responsibility, and not on the socialistic trend of transferring all problems to some bureau in Washington. People such as you have lost all of their individual responsibility and want to train all future generations in their own mold with this insidious federal aid to education program.

Statistics do not verify the claim that local school districts have failed to fulfill their obligations. This is merely another method of Keynes Socialism to destroy this republic.

You state that "federal control is not dangerous, but some of it would be eminently desirable." How naive can you be? Federal control means the loss of individual freedom for students, teachers and local school officials. It means that future generations will be robots for the glorification of the Washington bureaucracy. As the father of six children I hope and pray that my child will never settle for the minimum standards of morals, responsibility, integrity and ideals as held by many of the bureaucrats now in Washington. If they do not rise above this crowd of robots I will be very disappointed.

Horse Management Starts June 30

Texas' rapidly expanding Quarter Horse industry will focus its attention soon, on an event which will become an annual affair.

It is the first annual Horse Management and Training Short Course June 30-July 1 in the Memorial Student Center at Texas A&M.

The conference is open to the public and is sponsored by the American Quarter Horse Association and A&M's Animal Husbandry Department and School of Veterinary Medicine.

F. I. Dahlberg, professor of animal husbandry and program chairman, said talks and panel discussions will cover a wide range of topics, including horse breeding, feeding, health, breaking and training, conformation and a report on the 4-H Horse Program in Texas.

Short course registration will begin at 8 a.m. Friday. The morning program features an inspection of horses to be sold the next day, and a visit to the large animal veterinary clinic on the campus. The sale of A&M registered Quarter Horses is set for 11:10 a.m. Saturday.

Dr. A. A. Price, dean of the School of Veterinary Medicine, will give an address of welcome at the opening session at 1:30 Friday afternoon. D. C. Kraemer, animal husbandry instructor, will discuss the estrous cycle of ovulation and time of breeding, semen evaluation and storage, and natural and artificial breeding.

Others appearing on the opening day program and their topics are Dr. A. M. Sorenson, Animal Husbandry Department, "Pregnancy Diagnosis, Gestation and Fetus Development;" Dr. H. E. Redmond, Veterinary Medicine Department, "Diseases Affecting Reproduction;" Prof. Fred Hale, Animal Husbandry Department, "Principles of Feeding Horses;" Dr. J. K. Northway, King Ranch, "Feeding Goals for Growth and Development and Feeding Mares and Stallions."

Others are Dr. R. D. Turk, Veterinary Medicine Department "Internal and External Parasites;" Garford Wilkinson of Amarillo, American Quarter Horse Association, "Horse Interest is Growing." "Question The Experts" is the theme for the Friday night program. Dahlberg said this meeting will give everyone an opportunity to ask specific questions related to the previous discussions. Panel members will be A&M specialists and Dr. Northway.

Starting Saturday's program will be a talk on immunization, sanitation, symptoms and treatment by Dr. B. M. Cooley of the Veterinary Medicine Department.

Other talks that morning will be a discussion on inheritance in horses and systems of breeding, by Dr. T. C. Cartwright, A&M geneticist. Dr. W. M. Romane, Veterinary Medicine Department, will use motion pictures to illustrate a discussion on common lamenesses of horses. Dr. W. C. Banks of the same department will discuss the values of radiographs in certain equine lamenesses.

Following the horse sale, short course members will hear Bob Gray and Billy Steele of Houston discuss the 4-H Horse Program in Texas. Gray is 4-H Horse Club leader and publisher of The Texas Horseman magazine. Steele is assistant county agricultural agent.

Selecting and judging performance and halter classes will be outlined by H. Calhoun of Cresson, rancher, Quarter Horse breeder and AQHA-approved judge.

Other attractions of the final meeting are horse training pointers—restraining, moving stubborn horses, loading on trailers, by John Carter, Bryan horse trainer; trail-roping horses, by Amye Gambelin of Tivoli; the art of gentling young horses, training to lead, saddling and first riding, use of hackamores and bits, and training cutting horses, by Carter and Charles Cascio, Tomball horsemen.

Further short course information can be obtained by writing to Professor Dahlberg, Animal Husbandry Department, Texas A&M College, College Station, Texas.
