Miller will be discussion leader.
Dr. Walker holds the Bachelor of Science, the Master of Business Administration, and the Doctor of Engineering degrees from Harvard, the latter being earned in 1935. He holds honorary Doctor of Laws from Temple University, Lehigh University, Hofstra College, Lafayette College, and the University of Pennsylvania; honorary doctor of human letters degree, Elizabethtown College; and Litt. D., Jefferson Medical College.

Dr. Miller was appointed Provost of Michigan State University in 1959 and is chief academic officer of the school. He previously had been director of the Michigan Co-Operative Extension Service since 1955, and vice president for Off-Campus Education since 1959.

Since 1958 Dean Aldrich has headed the University of California's Division of Agricultural Sciences. He presides over agricultural teaching programs on four campuses, over the state-wide Agricultural Experiment Station, and over the Agricultural Extension Service.

A&M Research Technologist Writes Paper

Marion D. Arnold, research technologist of the Texas Petroleum Research Committee, Texas A&M, is the coauthor of two papers to be presented at the forthcoming annual meeting of the Society of Petroleum Engineers to be held in Dallas, October 1961. More than 2,000 engineers are expected to attend the meeting.

The two papers presented by Mr. Arnold are "Estimation of Reservoir Anisotropy from Production Data" and "Laboratory Studies of the Effect of Reservoir Fluid Properties and Stage of Depletion on Oil Recovery by Water Flooding."

Presentation of a technical paper at the annual fall meeting is considered to be one of the high honors accorded to a petroleum engineer. Arnold is the only student who has been selected for presenting two papers at any annual fall meeting in the past 10 years.

ROUND AND ROUND

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—School officials are studying plans for a school that looks round but isn't. The building would have many sides, 400 in fact, each seven feet long, to avoid having to install curved glass.

Coaching School Time Approaches For Texans

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Writer

Less than three weeks away is the start of the football season. No, it won't be training or playing but it will be the Texas coaching school and that's when they start thinking about football and begin preparations for it.

The twenty-ninth annual clinic will be at San Antonio Aug. 7-10. It's returning to the place where it first saw the light of day—in 1933. Sixty-five coaches gathered in the Alamo city for this new venture. D. X. Bible, then coach of Nebraska, was the first instructor. In fact, he was the only one.

When this year's coaching school is held at San Antonio 3,100 coaches are expected to enroll. That will be seven more than the all-time record set last year at Dallas.

The coaching school is sponsored by the Texas High School Coaches Association, which was founded at Houston in 1930, with the late Johnnie Pierce of Corsicana as the guiding light. It was three years later that the coaches got up enough nerve to put on a school. Two years after that they started the all-star football game. In 1946 the all-star basketball game was inaugurated.

Today the Texas coaching school is the largest in the world. It has a "faculty" of top football, basketball and track coaches of the country. And this year it returns baseball to the curriculum, with Bobby Bragan, the former big league manager and now assistant to the general manager of the Houston Club in the National League, as the lecturer.

Baseball was dropped for several years because of a lack of interest. It was embarrassing to have a baseball expert show up to lecture and nobody come out to hear him. But the coaches decided they had been missing something that should be important to them, and they returned the diamond sport to the curriculum.

With more than 600 schools playing baseball in Texas it is a wonder that it was dropped from the school's courses in the first place. It is hoped that with its return there will be sufficient interest to warrant an all-star game.

Golf had been put on the coaching school schedule but it will not be this year because the clinic was cut to four days. The reason for this was that most of the high schools start football practice on Monday, Aug. 15, and by closing the clinic on Thursday instead of Friday, as usual, the coaches will get a chance to return home and have Saturday and Sunday to prepare for the start of training.

Lecturing on football will be John Bridgers of Baylor, Frank Broyles of Arkansas, Blanton Collier of Kentucky and Claude Gilstrap of Arlington State. Harold Bradley of Texas and Frank McGuire of North Carolina will handle basketball. Johnny Morris of University of Houston will lecture on track and Weaver Jordan of Baylor will discuss athletic training.

The all-star squads will arrive in San Antonio on Saturday, Aug. 5, and begin workouts on Monday. The seventeenth annual basketball Aug. 9, with O. W. Follis Lamesa coaching the North and Hal Lamgame will be on Wednesday night, bert of Spring Branch handling the South. The South won last year at Dallas but still is well behind in the Series. The North has ten victories to six for the South.

The twenty-seventh all-star football game is scheduled Thursday, Aug. 10, with Joe Golding of Wichita Falls coaching the North and Pete Ragus of Corpus Christi Miller the South. Here, too, the South could use a victory. The series now stands fourteen victories for the North, nine for the South and three ties. The South hasn't won one since 1953.
