'Role Of Research' Treated At Talks

Texas Agricultural Experiment Station's annual staff conference began today in the Memorial Student Center with the theme "The Role of Research in Relation to Adjustments in Agriculture."

1970, mobilizing our resources for the future, mobilizing research and extension resources on problems of the blacklands, significance of agricultural adjustments on farm family life, research in action on agricultural adjustments—the interdisciplinary approach and A&M's "long-range study and you."

President Earl Rudder, Dean of Agriculture R. E. Patterson, Lewis and numerous staff members will speak during the three-day meeting.

Out-of-state speakers include Noble Clark, associate director, Agricultural Experiment Station, University of Wisconsin; J. H. Southern, chief, Rural Development Branch, Economics Research Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, and Pearl Swanson, assistant director, Iowa Agricultural and Home Economics Experiment Station, Ames, Iowa.

The annual banquet for research staff members is scheduled tonight. The Rev. W. P. (Bill) Deatherage, pastor of the Second Christian Church in Houston, will be the speaker.

Catholic Aggies Meet Tonight

A&M Knights of Columbus will begin their Columbus Day observance with a chiliburger social for Catholic students tonight at 6 p.m. at St. Mary's Student Center, according to Ray Stermer, grand knight.

Edwin Gunter, executive assistant to Texas State Council Knights of Columbus, will speak briefly on "Catholic Student and Higher Education."

Stermer also announced that Supreme Knight Luke E. Hart, head of the million-member fraternal benefit society of Catholics, will speak Thursday at 6 p.m. on radio station KORA on "The Spirit of Christopher Columbus."

At Dedication Ceremonies

On hand at the dedication ceremonies last night of A&M Consolidated School District's new College Hills Elementary School were Superintendent of Schools Taylor Riedel, College Hills Principal Mrs. C. K. Leighton and J. B. Hervey, president of the district's board of trustees. (Photo by Benny Gillis)

Aggies Vie For Cash

A&M journalism students will be vying for $40,900 in fellowship awards in the second annual William Randolph Hearst Foundation journalism awards program, which opened Oct. 1.

In the first program last year, Bob Roberts, '61, won a $550 fellowship as he tied for ninth in the overall listings. Roberts' winnings also brought $550 to the A&M Department of Journalism.

This year seven rather than six monthly contests are scheduled by the foundation. Scrolls and fellowships are awarded the top five finishers in each of these monthly contests, with the 10 top overall finishers receiving medallions and fellowships.

The seven monthly competitions are news writing, October; sports writing, November; editorial writing, December; news writing, January; feature writing, February; news writing, March, and interpretive writing, April.

Monthly fellowship prizes are $200, first place; $150, second place; $130, third place; $120, fourth place, and $100, fifth place.

In addition points will be awarded during the monthly contests, with the 10 students receiving the highest number of points winning medallions and fellowships.

These fellowships in the overall contest are $2,200, first; $2,000, second; $1,700, third; $1,500, fourth; $1,400, fifth; $1,300, sixth; $1,200, seventh; $1,100, eighth; $1,000, ninth, and $800, tenth place.

The school attended by each overall winner will be awarded merit grants equal to the value of the fellowship received by its student.

Entries here, preferably clippings of already published articles, may be submitted to Delbert McGuire, head of the Department of Journalism. Two entries will be entered by the college each month.

Only journalism or pre-journalism majors in the nation's 48 accredited schools or departments of journalism are eligible for the contests.
