COLLEGE STATION, TEXAS FRIDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1961

Number 18

Information Head Retires

Bishop Clements, right, director of the A&M news bureau, retiring after 14 years with the College Information Office. Here he is presented a certificate of appreciation by President Earl Rudder. In private ceremonies held in the president's office, Rudder praised Clements for his "many years of loyal and efficient service to the college." Clements is a widely known Texas newspaperman.

Law School Test Slate Announced

Bulletins of information and application blanks for Law School Admission Tests to be given this year have just been received, according to Dean Frank Hubert of the School of Arts and Sciences. These tests, which are required by a number of law schools as a prerequisite to admission, are given under the supervision of the Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey, and will be given in Texas Nov. 18, Feb. 10, April 28, and Aug. 4.

All four examinations will be given at the University of Texas, Southern Methodist University, and the University of Houston. The tests will also be given here April 28. In order to take the tests, however, Hubert pointed out that the candidate's application blank, with a fee of $10 must be received in Princeton, New Jersey, by the Educational Testing Service not later than Oct. 21 for the examination to be given Nov. 18, not later than Jan. 13 for the examination of Feb. 10, not later than March 31 for the examination to be given April 28 and not later than July 7 for the examination Aug. 4.

Highway Chief Wants Applicants

Major J. W. Elliott, commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety's 46-county Waco region, announced that the department is taking applications from persons interested in law enforcement work. The deadline for applications to take the next entrance examination is Oct. 20. Qualifications necessary for selection includes males between the ages of 21 to 35, not less than 68 inches or more than 76 inches in height. The applicant must have been a resident of Texas for one year prior to application and be a United States citizen. He must have a high school education and be of good moral character and habits. A conviction for any felony automatically disqualifies. The examinations to select recruit patrolmen will be given in Waco on Oct. 24 and in Austin on Oct. 25.

San Antonio Dance Slated

The San Antonio A&M Club will sponsor a dance for Aggies and their dates Saturday night after the Trinity football game, Aggie Park, at the corner of Loop 410 and West Ave., is the site for the dance. Tickets will be available at $1.50 per person at the door. An orchestra will be present and refreshments will be served.

CSC Hears Study Findings

Hannigan Asks Student Aid

Dean of Students James P. Hannigan addressed a meeting of the Civilian Student Council last night in the Memorial Student Center, presenting questions which the Century Council is facing in the coming years.

Members of the CSC were asked to make suggestions toward the solution of various problems which the Century Council is working on.

One of the primary questions discussed was, "What is the responsibility of the college toward the student other than academic?"

Other discussion involved recent organization of day students, which will not be completed until next week. CSC president has appointed a committee to work with this problem.

Members of the committee are Bob Hugh, chairman; Edward Todd, Charles Dyer and Jason Edgington.

Schwenk urged that any student interested in working with this committee contact its chairman or any of its members. Also available is William Breazeale, civilian counselor for student affairs, whose office is located in Puryear Hall.

Another committee of the CSC is corresponding with other schools in the Southwest Conference, investigating the selling and cost of date tickets.

Objective of this investigation is to determine whether or not the price of date tickets can be lowered from the present rates.

Another of the present projects being taken up by the CSC is an effort to improve laundry service. Carried over from last year, the project at present entails investigating specific incidents of mis-handling by the college laundry.

Juniors Planning TWU Reception

Plans for a reception for A&M and Texas Women's University juniors have been announced by Junior Class President Paul Barrett.

The reception has been set for 6:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 20. Exact location of the reception will be announced next week, Barrett said. The function will precede the A&M-TWU dance also scheduled for that night.

Since this will be a junior class function all A&M juniors are invited, Barrett said. If an A&M junior is dating a Tessie classified other than a junior, she also is invited.

Barrett said rooms with linens will be furnished at TWU for $1 the night of Oct. 20.

State BSU Meeting Set Next Weekend

Several A&M students are expected to attend the vast Texas Baptist Student Union Convention in Dallas Oct. 20-22.

The local students attending the annual parley will be part of more than 2,500 students from 65 colleges and universities throughout the state anticipated for the meeting.

The convention is designed this year to emphasize the application of Christianity in a world in crisis, according to W. F. Howard, student work director.

Principal speaker at the weekend gathering will be Dr. George K. Schweitzer, chemistry professor at the University of Tennessee and research radiochemist for the Atomic Energy Commission's Oak Ridge research program.

Schweitzer will speak on the relationship between the church and science during the convention's Saturday morning session at Gaston Avenue Baptist Church in Dallas.

Other principal speakers for the meeting include Dr. J. W. MacGorman, professor at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Fort Worth; Dr. Ralph Langely, pastor of the Willow Meadows Baptist Church in Houston, and Dr. T. A. Patterson, executive secretary of the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

Langely will bring the keynote address on the convention's theme, "A Living Church in a Revolutionary World."

During a special Saturday evening missions emphasis session, Southern Baptist missionaries from Japan and Southern Rhodesia will address the convention. They are Charles L. Martin of Japan and Mr. and Mrs. Milton E. Cunningham of Africa.

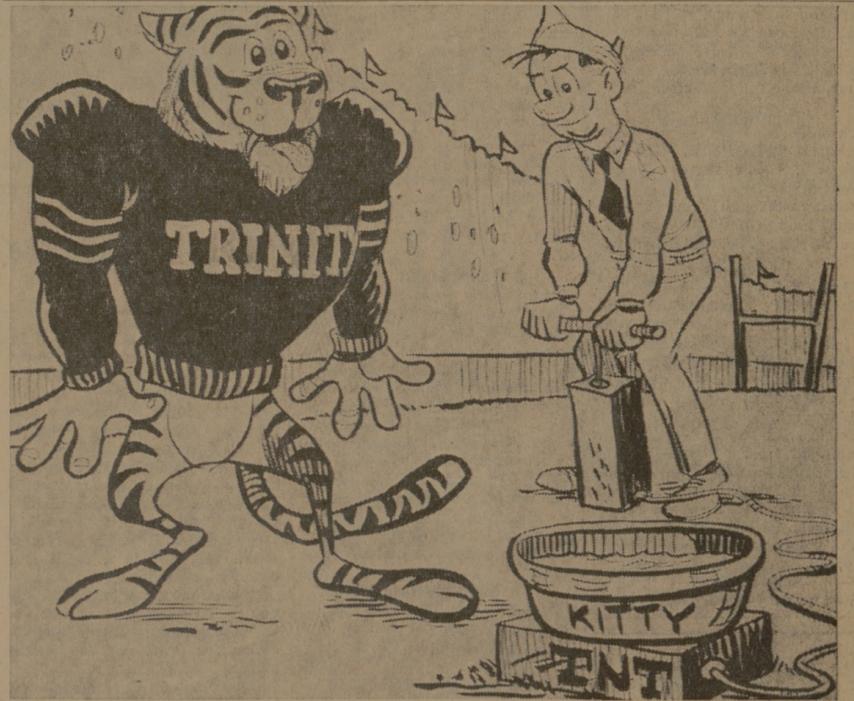

Special music during the meeting will be presented by both a 70-voice state Baptist Student Union choir, and the "Project Understanding" 16-voice choir that toured the Orient representing Texas Baptist students this summer.

Horsley Named Workshop Head

W. R. Horsley, director of the college placement office, is chairman of the workshop on communications for the Southwest Placement Assn., meeting Oct. 11-13 at Shreveport, La.

F. W. Hensel, assistant director of the placement office, is a member of the association's executive committee. Both men are past presidents of the association.

The meeting will include talks from industry, government and college officials. "Changing Manpower Requirements in the Sixties," will be the theme of the meeting.

22 YEARS OF PROGRESS

College Station Mayor Watched Town Grow

By JIMMY WENDLAND
Battalion Staff Writer

The Honorable Ernest Langford has seen many changes in the city of College Station during his 22 years as mayor.

Before its incorporation in 1938 it had no form of government. The first city council, of which Langford was a member, took office in February, 1939.

The delay was due to an interpretation by the Attorney General of a statute of the Texas Constitution (written after the Civil War to eliminate "Carpetbaggers" from office) that officers of the state could not hold two offices.

Reserve Squadron Slates Training

Easterwood Airport will be the site tomorrow and Sunday of the regular monthly weekend unit training assembly of the 9412th Air Force Reserve Recovery Squadron activated July 1.

Purpose of the 9412th is to provide safe landing sites for USAF aircraft returning home from missions in the event of war. Military planners anticipate that home stations might be destroyed and that aircraft would then require predetermined alternate fields.

Two hundred men are called upon by the recovery squadron to provide aircraft support facilities. The new reserve program is designed to lessen the consequences of a nuclear attack and to aid in the reconstruction of the Air Force capability after the attack.

Under the new Air Force Reserve Recovery program, the reserve recovery unit locally would provide emergency landing facilities and sites for continued operations. Recovery units at these emergency sites would furnish communications, crash and rescue service, refueling, transportation, medical care, food service, emergency maintenance, billeting and a security force.

Several local officers have been named to head the various sections within the recovery squadron. They are:

Lt. Col. W. O. Davis, Maj. J. L. Rumfield, Maj. G. A. Davis, Maj. G. O. Hoffman, Maj. R. E. Miller, Maj. R. C. Qualtrough, Capt. H. D. Pope, Capt. B. J. Bland, Capt. Calvin Reese and 1st Lt. H. L. Meredith.

Several of the council members were also on the A&M faculty.

A new attorney general was elected and he amended the ruling that they could hold two offices but only receive pay from one source. This opened the way for the new council to serve, after writing into the by-laws that they would serve without pay.

In addition to serving as mayor, Langford was head of the Division of Architecture 27 of the 30 years he spent as professor here. Since September of 1957 he has served as Archivist of A&M.

College Station now boasts a population of 11,396 and has 2,200 utility connections. The city owns the distribution system, buys water and electricity from A&M and Bryan and pays rental for the firefighting services of the college.

For a city which could not claim a paved street when it was incorporated, it now has in addition to many paved streets, two sets of traffic controls, one at the East Gate and one at the northeast corner of the campus which alone are valued at $25,000.

The manufacturer sold the equipment to the college at cost. They in turn sold it to the city who furnished material to the college who installed it. So its actual cost was a fraction of this value.

On commenting about the relationship with A&M Langford said, "The city and the college cooperate, I think, very amicably."

One factor which might contribute to this wonderful relation is the fact that five of the six councilmen are employees of A&M. They are C. W. Landis, professor in the Department of Health and Physical Education; J. A. Orr and J. H. Sorrels, professors in the Department of Civil Engineering; D. A. Anderson, Head of the Research & Education Department of the Texas Forest Service, and Antonio Rosprim of the Department of Poultry Science.

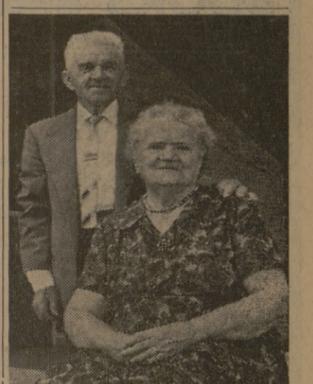

Rosprim is the latest A&M employee being elected in April 1961. Serving with him in Ward III is A. P. Boyett. These members average over seven years of experience in their council positions.

Others in the city "Family" are City Manager Ran Boswell; City Secretary K. A. Manning, and City Attorney J. L. Sandstedt, assistant professor in the Department of Business Administration.

Approximately 40 local city employees are headquartered at the attractive city hall at 101 N. Church St. The building was completed in 1947 to replace the space which had previously been rented over Southside Food Market.

Langford feels College Station is the finest little city of any college town. He said, "We have no manufacturing and we don't want any. We just want to keep it a college town."

Golden Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Rohloff (known as Mr. Cholly and Mom) to hundreds of A&M students during the depression) will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday with a special service at our Savior's Lutheran Church, College Station. An open house will be held for the Rohloff's in the Lutheran Student Center at 3 p. m. "Mr. Cholly and Mom" came to A&M in 1936 to help care for Houston Aggies who were finding things pretty tough during the depression. The pair cooked, mended socks and in general helped many Houston Aggies make it through A&M. The Rohloffs were married in 1911. Mr. Rohloff worked for the college 18 years as a watchman in the dining halls. He retired in 1957. They live at 702 Eagle Pass in Bryan. The couple never had any children of their own, but claim "all these boys at A&M."
