

Razorbacks Rally Past Cadets For 15-8 Win

By LARRY SMITH
Battalion Sports Editor

Strains of another fourth-quarter defeat filled the Ozarks last Saturday afternoon as the Aggies fell to a rallying Arkansas Razorback team which scored in the final 57 seconds to win, 15-8.

It was the second time in two weeks that the star-crossed Aggs were leading going into the final period only to lose. At TCU the Horned Frogs drove 98 yards in the last eight minutes for a game-winning field goal while at Fayetteville it was a 90-yard march by the Hogs in only four minutes which spelled defeat.

Last season, the Aggies didn't yield a single point in the final period of play, while this year it has been just the opposite. LSU, TCU and Arkansas have come from behind in that quarter to down the hapless Aggs.

Ags Played Near-Perfect
The Hogs out-played the Cadets statistically almost 3-1, but it was the near-perfect play of A&M that kept them in the contest until the final minute. The Aggs never drew a penalty the entire game, never had a pass intercepted, and only lost one fumble (that being in the final 15 seconds of the game).

It was the tremendous line play of the Razorbacks that put the Aggs in the hole most of the afternoon. The game was 21 minutes old before the Aggies could make a first down. Sam Byer slammed 10 yards over left tackle for the mark.

Even though the Razorbacks did out-gain A&M, the Aggies capitalized on their mistakes, which were numerous until the final march to the winning TD. The Hogs lost two fumbles and had three passes intercepted. Sophomore halfback Travis Reagan performed brilliantly as he stole the three aeriels and almost went all the way on the second theft.

Hog Linemen Contained Aggs
On the ground the quick-charging Hog linemen contained the Aggies' power end sweeps which worked so well against TCU. Up the middle it was a different story as Byer, Lee Roy Caffey and Rogers bulled for 78 yards and accounted for all but 13 yards of A&M's rushings yardage. Arkansas picked up 234 yards rushing and averaged over four yards a carry on the ground.

Punting specialist Babe Craig really got a working out as he punted 10 times for a respectable 39.1 average.

"We just couldn't move the ball which is evident by the number of times I had to kick," said Craig. The play that seemed to break the Aggies' back came with only about four minutes remaining in the game. The Hogs were on their own 10-yard line and faced third down and needing 10. After two of the best receivers in the SWC, Lance Alworth and Jimmy Collier, had dropped passes right in their hands, the Aggies appeared to have stalled Arkansas, but on that fatal third down play, Alworth took a double reverse from George McKinney and threw his third pass of his college career. It was complete to Paul Dudley for 36 yards and placed the ball on the Arkansas 46-yard line. Nine plays later the Hogs scored the winning points, much to the delight of the homecoming crowd. On Alworth's surprise pass, Reagan said:

"I knew Alworth had the ball, but I didn't see Dudley sneaking down the sideline until it was too late. Gosh, that play's going to bug me."

Reagan Raced 51 Yards
Arkansas would have had another touchdown right before the half but Reagan stole the ball from the outstanding Alworth and raced 51 yards before being angled down by Billy Moody.

The play that put the Aggies ahead took place mid-way in the third period when Russell Hill jumped on a McKinney fumble on the Arkansas 11-yard line. Four plays later, Caffey banged over from one yard out to make the score 7-6 Arkansas.

Coach Jim Myers gave the "go" sign and John Erickson passed to Bobby Huntington for the two points that almost spelled victory for the win-hungry Aggies.

Outstanding on defense for the Aggies was tackle Buddy Eilers, who made five unassisted tackles, most of which were at critical moments. George Hargett played well, too, as he made six unassisted tackles from his safety position.

The Razorbacks are almost impossible to defeat in November as the Aggies will relate and are even tougher in the hills. They have won 13 straight games in the month of November, but the one last Saturday was one of their toughest.

Intramurals

F-1 and Law Hall are the new upperclassman champions in their respective classes in intramural basketball. In the finals, played last night in G. Rollie White Coliseum, F-1 defeated Sqd. 6, 59-35, and Law Hall overran the Hart Hall civilians, 48-18.

Semifinal games in Class B football will be played today. Sqd. 5 will meet Sqd. 8 and Sqd. 4 will play Sqd. 3.

Inability to rebound against the towering men of F-1 spelled defeat for Sqd. 6 in basketball last night. They fought hard, with Doug Felps scoring 19 points and Jim Schnabel standing out on defense. High-point man of the game was Raymond Stancil of F-1 with 27.

Dale Hudspeth of Law Hall scored 19 as Law routed Hart Hall for the civilian crown.

In yesterday's quarterfinal football Sqd. 5 beat B-1, 9-0, to secure its berth in the semifinals. Sqd. 8 eliminated A-3, 14-0; Sqd. 3 shut out A-2, 14-0, and Sqd. 4 handled E-1, 20-0.

Aggie Cross-Country Edged By Cougars, Howard Payne

Aggie cross-country runners were barely edged out of second place in the Texas Invitational Meet held in Austin last Saturday, finishing third behind Howard Payne and the University of Houston.

The teams and their scores were Houston (56), Howard Payne (69), A&M (70), SMU (91), Texas (98), and Abilene Christian (105).

E. L. Ener, a junior from Jasper, placed third for the Aggies behind John Lander of Abilene Christian and Pat Almond of Houston. Both Lander and Almond placed in the NCAA meet last year which was won by the strong Houston team. By staying close to them, Ener established himself as a strong contender for top honors in the Southwest Conference.

Saturday the team will travel to Brownwood to compete in a four-mile meet sponsored by Howard Payne. In addition to the host school and the Aggies, the meet will consist of Abilene Christian, Texas, SMU, and St. Michaels University of Albuquerque, N.M.

So far this season the Cadets have entered eight meets, taking first place in five and placing high in the other three.
