New Cutting Area

This map, drawn by Cartoonist Jim Earle to help Slouch and Squirt find the new bonfire cutting area may help you too. Head Yell Leader Jim Davis said the best way to reach the new area is follow the road behind the stacking area (drill field behind Duncan Dining Hall) to the flashing yellow light at the intersection of the road with Highway 6. Turn right on the highway for about three miles or until you see the Sinclair filling station on the left. Turn left at the station and go down that road for one mile. The entrance to the cutting area will be marked, Davis said. Juniors and seniors are urged to be in the cutting area as much as possible this week to start cutting wood, the yell leader said.

DANCE SET DEC. 2

Thanksgiving Deadline Nears For Mrs. A&M

Entries in the Mrs. Texas A&M Contest should be in by Thanksgiving, according to Mrs. Jean Vaught, president of the Aggie Wives Council.

The selection of Mrs. Texas A&M will be at the annual dance sponsored by the council. Set for Dec. 2 in the Memorial Student Center Ballroom, the dance will feature the music of the George Vincent Sextet from Sam Houston State College.

Mrs. Vaught said any wife of a currently enrolled A&M student is eligible to compete in the contest. Any campus club or organization is allowed to sponsor a contestant. She added that husbands would be able to sponsor their wives, also.

The entry fee is $2. The winner of the contest will receive a cup and a bouquet. The Bryan-College Station Chamber of Commerce is donating the cup and the Aggie Flower Shop is giving the bouquet.

The first runner-up will receive a $15 permanent from Lady Fair and the second runner-up will receive a gift certificate from Beverly Braley.

Any Aggie wife wishing to enter the contest should contact Mrs. Vaught at VI 6-6109 or 801 Fairview in College Station.

Mrs. Vaught said that contestants could wear either long or short formal during the dance and judging.

Tickets for the dance are $2 per couple. They are available from any wives club member and will be on sale at the door.

The affair will begin at 8:30 p.m. and end at 11:30 p.m.

Millican Lake Site Revealed

FORT WORTH (AP)—The U.S. Corps of Engineers announced Tuesday the selection of a site near Navasota for a reservoir with a total storage of 3,179,900 acre feet.

The reservoir, to be known as Millican Reservoir, farthest downstream of any of the proposed sites along the Navasota River, would provide a conservation pool of 2,359,800 acre feet for water supply.

Some 770,000 acre feet would be for flood control. Cost of the dam is estimated at $65,700,000, with local interests paying $41,325,000 of the total cost for water conservation storage.

Farm-City Week Opens Tomorrow

American agriculture will be in the spotlight throughout the Lone Star State this week as Texas joins other states in observing National Farm-City Week.

Farm-City Week has officially been set for Nov. 17-23, but according to Dolph Briscoe Jr. of Uvalde, Texas Chairman of Farm-City Week, many communities have already begun activities designed to show the interdependence between urban and rural neighbors, and the contributions of each to the strength of our nation.

Expert Calls 'Total Picture' Necessary

Architects must learn to appreciate the total picture of urban design or ultimately accept partial responsibility for continued decline of beauty in our cities, an authority on city planning declared here yesterday.

Norbert H. Gorwic of Wayne State University told architecture students the modern architect has abdicated his responsibilities in building design by failing to realize that relationship among buildings is as important as the building itself.

Gorwic was speaking at the third in a series of Architecture Guest Lectures sponsored by the Division of Architecture. An associate professor of urban planning at Wayne State University in Detroit, Mich., Gorwic has specialized in urban planning and redevelopment of business districts.

"The modern architect faces a special challenge—he has to overcome both a habit of the mind and natural human vanity," Gorwic said.

"He must stop looking at his building as being the center of the universe. He must be prepared that, for the good of the townscape, his building will often have to act as a background or foil—not always as a star stealing the show," he added.

Gorwic pointed to the ageless beauty of Piazza di San Marco in Venice and the Champs Elysees in Paris where the buildings are not alike but have unity with each other in proportion with the streets and landscaping.

He is director of the "Detroit Tomorrow" project and project director of the University City Master Plan for Detroit.

The architect has had experience in England in the field of urban planning. He is co-author of the "London Master Plan" and was a technical officer for the London county planning council before going to Detroit as a city planner.

Bids Set For 14 Courts

The recent razing of the old Little Gym building does not mean the end of handball activity on the campus, Howard Badgett, manager of the Office of Physical Plant, has announced.

The Little Gym, which housed the college's handball courts, was torn down to make room for the new outdoor, Olympic-type swimming pool now under construction just west of the P. L. Downs Natatorium.

Badgett said an area in DeWare Field House has been set aside for construction of 14 handball courts. Construction bids will be opened Nov. 17, and work is expected to start shortly after Dec. 1.

Architect plans show the courts to be built on a new "floor" in DeWare, to be supported by a steel framework 25 feet above the existing basketball court. Four courts will be situated on each side, over the bleacher area. Six more will occupy the area above the present basketball court.

The courts are to be official size and mechanically air conditioned, with ducts in the walls to allow air ventilation.

The courts would serve the physical education program, intramurals and off-hour play, just as the others did, according to Carl E. Tishler, head of the Department of Health and Physical Education.

Tishler added that the new courts will enable the department to increase the size of its classes and get more students into the handball courts.

Many students used the old courts as a means of getting exercise later in the evenings and during the day. The new courts will mean that more students can take advantage of the facilities.

Travel Group Approved; Seeks 'Active' Leaders

The recently approved "Aggie Travel Club" is hunting for leaders.

The Memorial Student Center Council okayed the organization Monday night with a basic purpose to broaden the education of A&M students by making available information as to summer employment with opportunities of travel, organized tours to Mexico, Canada, points inside the United States, and trips abroad.

"We've got the approval, now we need some good, strong leaders," said Mike Schneider, council president. "We would prefer to have juniors and sophomores in order to keep some continuity in activities next year."

Appointments for interviews can be made through the Student

Program Office of the MSC, said Schneider. Appointments should be made before the weekend.

"There is already a great deal of interest in this sort of an activity, so we should be in good shape once we get about eight or nine sharp men to pilot operations," he continued.

Schneider said the name "Aggie Travel Club" is not official yet, but was pulled out of the air at a council meeting.

To operate as a part of the MSC Directorate, the "Aggie Travel Club" would be on equal footing with the MSC's Radio Committee, Camera Committee, Bowling Committee, etc.

Monday night the council withheld appropriating $200 to kick off the club's initial expenses of organization, but indicated that needed funds would be given as the leaders were selected and the organization went into operation.

Schneider said that the goals for this year would be the gathering and releasing of information on summer jobs where the students would also benefit from associating with different people and traveling to new and different places.

Schneider pointed out that many resort areas hire college students during the summers.

Another aim of the club will be the organization of guided tours both in the United States and in foreign countries.

Robert Melcher, staff advisor to foreign students on campus, told an informal organizational meeting last week that there are many foreign students that strike out on their own during Christmas and mid-term holidays to see the United States. He said that a tour of our own country for foreign students would be received very well by visitors and newcomers to America.

Schneider said he felt the "Aggie Travel Club" was definitely needed here, due to the large number of students that are born in Texas, reared in Texas, go to school in Texas, live their lives in Texas and die in Texas without seeing much of America, much less other countries.

In discussing the forming of such an organization, Schneider met with students and staff, as well as travel agency representatives in sessions last week.

Economist Says Collegians Should Be Paid By Schools

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A University of Chicago economist suggested yesterday that students should be paid to go to college.

Professor H. W. Schultz said that such a practice would be one way of ending the waste of students' time and bringing about basic reforms in higher education.

Schultz told the American Association of Land Grant Colleges and State Universities seriously underestimate the value of the time students spend at college.

"How else," he asked, "can one explain the wastage of the time of the students?"

In 1956, Schultz said, the total school cost of higher education in the United States was $3.5 billion. The total earnings foregone by college and university students that year were $5.8 billion.

"But colleges go merrily on," he said, "treating the time of students as if they were a free resource. What is the remedy?"

"Instead of rationing admissions and not economizing on the time of students, one way would be to recruit and pay each student the earnings he will forego while attending college.

"I venture such a procedure, impractical as it may appear, would bring about basic reforms in the use of school facilities—libraries, laboratories and classrooms—in the use of faculty time, and above all a reform in curricula." Lawrence D. Haskew, vice chancellor of the University of Texas asked the association for "just 10 institutions in this country which will invest in the search for better education one-half the money and energy they invest in the search for better pigs and cows."

Haskew said, "One of the things America needs most is a demonstration of what would happen if one public university of high caliber really committed itself to teacher education for one decade."

Appeals Court Orders Judge Briggs To Stop Stickney's Execution Stays

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals issued a writ of prohibition Tuesday ordering Judge Cullen Briggs of Corpus Christi not to issue any more stays of execution for convicted killer Howard B. Stickney.

Three members of the court signed the writ, requested by Atty. Gen. Will Wilson, Harris County Dist. Atty. Frank Briscoe and Asst. Dist. Atty. Sam Robertson.

The order asks Judge Briggs to appear before the court Nov. 22 "to show cause" why the writ should not be granted.

It orders Judge Briggs, who issued the last 10-day stay of execution for Stickney and one before that, to "cease and desist" from taking any further action on Stickney and to refrain from any action in reference to issuing writs of habeas corpus (freedom on bond).

Stickney was scheduled to die last Friday night in the May, 1958 slaying of Mrs. Shirley Barnes.

The writ also set aside the writ of habeas corpus issued by Judge Briggs minutes before Stickney was to go to the electric chair.

UT Mascot-Killers Given Suspensions

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The nine University of Texas students who took part in last Thursday night's kidnapping and killing of Baylor's mascot bear were suspended Tuesday until Feb. 1, 1962.

The five-member faculty and student disciplinary committee also ruled that the students must make complete financial restitution to Baylor University.

The decision was reached at his closed session. The committee and university officials refused again to reveal the identity of the nine confessed culprits.

Other restrictions put on the students include a provision that they will be on disciplinary probation for one semester if and when they return to school after the beginning of the new semester next February.

Dean of Student Life Arno Nowotny said attorneys first came to him last Friday with the fact that the youths had killed the mascot. He said "I did not want to give the information out then because of the game coming up Saturday." Texas defeated Baylor 33-7.

Nowotny confirmed the mascot's death Monday.

The dean said none of the nine students was a member of the football squad or held any campus office.
