

Three Seniors Win Insurance Certificates

Three A&M seniors were awarded certificates last Wednesday by the Insurance Institute of America.

The certificates were awarded to William R. Crenshaw from Westlaco, Jerry W. Rogers from Athens and Larry J. Valigura from Caldwell by M. L. (Red) Cashon '53 who represented the Brazos County Association of Independent Agents.

A certificate was also mailed to Springs whose National Guard unit was mobilized earlier this year.

To be eligible for a certificate, the candidate must pass three 3-hour written examinations with a grade of 70% or better.

This program is sponsored locally by the A&M Insurance Society and the Brazos County Association of Independent Agents.

Course Set Before Meeting

A Dec. 4-14 course in modern techniques in activation analysis has been scheduled in the W. T. Doherty Petroleum Engineering Building to precede the international conference on Modern Trends in Activation Analysis here Dec. 15-16.

Principal instructors for the first course will be George Leddicott, Oak Ridge National Laboratory; Dr. Derek Gibbons, United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority; Dr. Vincent P. Guinn, Shell Development Co., and Dr. Richard E. Wainerdi of the Department of Petroleum Engineering.

The larger conference is expected to bring together nearly 150 scientists from throughout the world to discuss latest trends in chemical analysis through use of nuclear activation. Sponsoring the conference is the Activation Analysis Research Laboratory in cooperation with the International Atomic Energy Agency and the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission's Division of Isotopes Development.

The science of activation analysis involves bombarding materials with nuclear particles and measuring the kind of radiation they give off. The radiation indicates what materials are made of. Wainerdi, a member of the conference organizing committee and head of the A&M Activation Analysis Research Lab, said, "Research in activation analysis is, at present, following two main trends: radio-chemical separations methods and non-destructive instrumental methods."

Gibbons, conference chairman and associate head of the A&M research facility, said, "The bringing together of internationally recognized leaders in the field at an international conference will permit extensive discussion of these two modern approaches so they can be contrasted and compared to the mutual advantage of each."

The technique of activation analysis was discovered by Baron Von Hevesy in 1936. Between that time and 1957, approximately 250 papers were published concerning activation analysis. In the period 1957 to 1960, more than 250 additional papers have been published, indicating the increasing interest in the field.

The last international conference devoted solely to activation analysis was a symposium held by the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna in 1959. Several lectures were devoted to the technique at a conference on Uses of Radioactive Isotopes in the Physical Sciences and Industry held in Copenhagen, Denmark, in 1960.

The first area chosen for development by Peruvian leaders is east of Lima, the capital, across the mountains into the interior. There new farm and pastoral communities are to be created, new roads and railway links built and hydroelectric works installed.
