

California's Higher Education Poses Discussion Tomorrow

Recent developments in higher education and graduate instruction in California will be the subject of a talk by a University of California professor tomorrow at 8 p.m.

Dr. Byron R. Houston, professor of plant pathology and dean of the graduate division of University of California, will address the A&M faculty, staff, students and the general public.

The talk will be presented in the Biological Sciences Lecture Room.

Houston has served a dual role as professor and dean since 1958 on the Davis campus. He is known by his colleagues as an outstanding general plant pathologist, having contributed to knowledge concerning virus, bacterial, fungal and physiologically induced disorders of plants.

In 1951, he helped discover the virus nature of the yellow dwarf disease of gramineous plants. Until then losses were recognized world-wide but numerous fallacious concepts as to cause were held.

The impact of his discovery has been such that some 100 related research reports have been made in the past 10 years.

Furniture Design Competition Attracts 16 Aggie Contestants

Sixteen A&M students have submitted original furniture designs in a $4,000 international furniture design contest sponsored annually by the cotton industry.

They are John T. Hargis, G. M. Nelson, John R. Hampton, Clint Noack, Lee E. Dodson, D. R. Brants, Charles E. Still, Joe C. Mills.

Edgar A. Marshall Jr., Thomas A. Stafford, Larry Claycomb, James G. Amis, Robert Hoyt Redwine, James C. Gleason, Cameron Alread Jr. and Dan Ogden.

They will be competing against professional furniture stylists and student designers from 19 other colleges and schools. Selection of four prize-winning designs will be made Dec. 15 at the Biltmore Hotel in New York City.

Winners, who will receive cash awards of $1,000 each, will be announced Jan. 8 during a press luncheon at the American Furniture Mart in Chicago.

An exhibit of outstanding designs, including the winning entries will be displayed at the Furniture Mart for the thousands of furniture buyers and sellers attending the winter market. At least two contestants from previous years have sold their design ideas to furniture manufacturers.

The Furniture Design Contest is sponsored by the National Cotton Batting Institute and the National Cotton Council of America to encourage the creation of furniture designs employing cotton batting as filling material.

Graduate School Receives Thirteen More Fellowships

The A&M Graduate School has awarded 13 additional graduate fellowships totaling more than $90,000 by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

This brings the total to 42 graduate fellowships authorized for A&M, Dr. Wayne C. Hall, dean of Graduate Studies, said in making the announcement.

The grants will be awarded prior to September, 1962, at which time they become effective. Three of the fellowships were approved for each of the fields of industrial education and oceanography and meteorology, two each for plant virology, grass cytogenetics and breeding and animal husbandry and one for physics. Applications for the fellowships must be received by department heads concerned prior to Mar. 1, 1962, Hall said.
