

MOVIE go ROUND

Palace
Through Saturday —  "X-15" Some unknowns and untalented star in Frank Sinatra's production of the somewhat stale story about the test pilot's wife who wants hubby to settle down and thus stay "alive." But hubby's having none of that. He's got guts, that one. So she cries and he flies. Then she cries some more and he flies some more. And so on.

Queen
Through Wednesday — * "Twist Around the Clock" Chubby Checker, whoever he is, and a bunch more like him imitate drunks who have taken off running, only to find their feet nailed to the floor. There is some noise related, perhaps, to singing, and a romance is thrown in as plot.

Campus
Through Saturday — * "Bachelor in Paradise" As the hanky-panky-minded bachelor, Bob Hope punctures many a suburban ego with his ever-sharp tongue.

Queen
Through Wednesday —  "The Comancheros" Portraying a Texas Ranger of yesteryear, John Wayne dashes about the country like crazy. He slugs and shoots and kills almost everybody. And when he's in trouble, the cavalry arrives just in time and mops up the surplus scoundrels. Good old cavalry, huh Mr. Wayne.

Circle
Closed until the weather lets up.

Skyway
Saturday only — "Sword of Sherwood Forest" and "Yellowstone Kelly" and "A Fever in the Blood" All unreviewed.

Guion Hall
Saturday only — * "Butterfield 8," and  "The Time Machine" In "Butterfield 8," the screen adaption of John O'Hara's novel by the same title, Elizabeth Taylor portrays a high class call girl. Lawrence Harvey, as the high class married man, does most of the calling. Eddie Fisher plays around with portraying the female protagonist's brotherly-inclined friend. "Machine" is full of underground monsters, beautiful young virgins, and "other such supernatural creatures."

Guion Hall
Saturday only — * "Ada" Previously reviewed.

Queen
Through Wednesday — * "Twist Around the Clock" Chubby Checker, whoever he is, and a bunch more like him imitate drunks who have taken off running, only to find their feet nailed to the floor. There is some noise related, perhaps, to singing, and a romance is thrown in as plot.

Culture, Controversy Lacking in Batt

Editor
The Battalion:
We are enclosing with this letter a copy of The Rice Thresher, the students newspaper from Rice University, along with a question. Why can't we have in The Battalion more features that deal with cultural development and controversial issues?

It seems to us as if almost every article in The Battalion deals with only the cold, hard facts about the events on campus with an occasional article about world affairs thrown in to "keep everyone informed as to what is happening on the outside." Although reporting the facts is an important service of a student newspaper, it should also serve as a sounding board for student opinion on campus controversies.

It is that the intellectual atmosphere outside the classroom on this campus is so sterile that there are no controversies or is it that the college and military officials suppress anything that has a slightly controversial angle?

We personally believe that it is a combination of the two because if one were to form an opinion based upon what he reads in The Battalion he would think that this is the most peaceful campus in the world. Unfortunately this is almost too true. As an example recently the Student Senate went into the committee of the whole thus excluding all visitors and the press so that it could discuss a somewhat controversial issue without incurring "unfavorable publicity."

Possibly the Corps is the reason for the lack of intellectual curiosity. It seems if everyone is so obsessed with making the fish "sharp" that they forget that anyone can become a trained parrot, but it takes a mature mind to be able to think and to analyze and then to form an opinion.

Navy Plans 3-Year Hitch

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy announced Thursday it will try out a program under which men may enlist in the Navy for three years-one year less than the present minimum.

At the same time, the Navy said it will allow men who had been released from duty or discharged for more than three months to re-enlist for either two or three years. Until now they could re-enlist only for four or six years.

The experimental program, which the Navy said is intended to meet "the increased readiness posture of the Navy and the nation," will remain in effect until June 30. In a statement, the Navy said it "still encourages all young men to stay in high school and graduate."
