Senate Study Due On SWC Student Group

Discussion, and possibly a vote on ratification, for the newly proposed Southwest Conference Student Association are on tap Thursday night in a regular meeting of the Student Senate in Room 3-D of the Memorial Student Center.

The Senate agenda, mailed to members Tuesday, did not specify a vote on ratification. Student Body President Malcolm Hall had reported last Friday that the Senate would vote to ratify the new organization's constitution.

Six of the eight SWC schools must ratify the constitution before the March 15 deadline. Student governing bodies will vote at each school for or against ratification. Maurice Olian, president of the Student's Association of the University of Texas, has been named temporary chairman of the association. Another University student, Ronnie Cohen, was named temporary secretary-treasurer by delegates at a meeting in Fort Worth Feb. 17. A&M was not represented by a voting delegate at this meeting.

The association, if ratified, will meet twice yearly, once in September or October in Dallas, and once in February in Fort Worth.

Each school will have only one vote, but may send three delegates to general conventions, including the student body president of each school or his representative.

As it is now set up, the association will have three executive officers, who will not have a vote. The chairman and secretary-treasurer will both be appointed by the individual schools on a rotation basis.

Four other items are included on the Senate agenda for Thursday's meeting.

A vote is due on a proposal introduced Feb. 15 to hold student services each Sunday morning in the All-Faiths Chapel. James D. Carnes, representing the Interfaith Council, told senators that programs would be presented by cadet units and civilian dormitories exclusively for students.

Further discussion is also due Thursday on the possibility of adding additional concession machines and coin-operated machines to student dormitories.

Student Life Committee Chairman Kenneth Joyce reported Feb. 15 that Dean of Students James P. Hannigan has requested a retraction from the Senate on the possibility. The machines, if placed in dormitories, will be there on a trial basis.

Two other items of new business are on the Thursday agenda. One is the formulation of plans for the annual Blood Drive later in the spring, and the second concerns the possibility of holding a "Carroll Broussard Night."

A&M's all-time basketball great will play his last game as an Aggie in G. Rollie White Coliseum Tuesday night against the Baylor Bears.

Astronauts Set Houston Move This Summer

HOUSTON—(AP)—Lt. Col. John Glenn and the nation's six other astronauts will be moving to Houston this summer.

This was the announcement made Tuesday night by the chief spokesman for the astronauts, Lt. Col. John Towers, public affairs officer for Project Mercury.

Powers had said earlier the astronauts probably would be here in June but that the exact timing would depend on when Glenn's long delayed orbital flight could be carried out.

The nation's long range space program is to be planned and developed at a $90 million manned space research center the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is building here. NASA already has several hundred employees here and expects to have about 1,500 by June. Laboratory personnel already are occupying temporary quarters in five Houston buildings.

Powers spoke Tuesday night before the Men's Club at St. Luke's Methodist Church.

He said the United States could definitely profit under a system of American-Russian cooperation in outer space.

"True, general international cooperation is the best way to conquer space," he said. "A collective brainpower effort would bring faster and better accomplishments."

But, he said, the United States wants some answers to questions about Russia's space accomplishments.

He said such questions include how Russian astronaut Titov got sick.

"Did he drink vodka the night before he went up?" he asked.

Powers said the United States also needs to know how the Russian astronauts landed. There is need also, he said, for a personal view of a Russian spacecraft.

"All we've seen are pictures," he said. "We'd like to examine the material they are made of. And, of course, we'd like to know a little about their 650,000-pound rocket thrust."

CSC Votes To Ask For 12th Man Bowl Of Civilians, Corps

Civilian Student Council members voted last night to request the Student Senate to change the Twelfth Man Bowl so that a civilian team would oppose a corps team, instead of the present Army-Air Force contest.

According to Doug Schwenk, president of the Civilian Student Council, the civilian students in the past have made up about one-half of both the army and air force teams.

In speaking for the civilian students, Schwenk went on to say "Since the Twelfth Man is symbolized by all Aggies we would like to contribute to it openly and not in disguise, as the situation now exists."

Also taken up at the CSC special session was a discussion concerning the establishment of a Student Government and Information Committee.

The purpose of this committee would be to inform the civilian students on the matter of when, how, and why they should become interested in student government at A&M, and to encourage them to seek offices and responsibilities in student government.

Schwenk asked that all civilian students interested in the establishment of such a committee leave a note in the CSC office in the basement of the M.S.C. stating their interest, name, address, dorm and room number.

Regional, Classic Dances Featured

Jose Greco and his Spanish Ballet will be presented at Town Hall Monday night, to be held in G. Rollie White Coliseum with starting time 8 p. m. and reserved seat prices set at $3.50; general admission is $2.

Bringing with him the most talented flamenco dancers in the world, Greco and Company will present an intriguing program of Spanish and Gypsy numbers from all parts of Spain.

Two overwhelming favorites of audiences all over the world are a pair of performers interpreting the dances of their native country, Spain, with great artistry. The two are Gitanillo Heredia and Maribel de Cirez; their popular title is "The Bronze Gypsies."

But the two are only a part of the overall Spanish dance picture, which also includes regional and classical dances.

Five outstanding masters of the Spanish dance will be making their American debuts under Greco's direction this semester. Antonio Monlor, one of Spain's finest classic ballet performers, will be seen after a recent tour of the European continent. Prior to the tour, he was for several seasons the first dancer at the far famed Teatro del Liceo in Barcelona.

Lydia, Torea, Carmen Villa and Mari-Carmen Fuentes also will be celebrating their first season in the Greco troupe. They have previously been featured with such outstanding companies as the Mariemma Spanish Ballet, the Imperio Argentina Company, the Antonio Spanish Ballet, Pilar Lopez company and the Jose Tamayo troupe.

Rounding out the roster of newcomers is Martin Pelta, a Spanish guitarist who has been the subject of a long-time invitation to tour with the troupe, but who has been so busily engaged in concert performances on his own that he has had to defer his arrival on these shores for several years.

Along with regular members of the troupe, including prima ballerina Lola de Ronda, Paco Fernandez, Curro Rodriguez, Juan-Mari Astigarraga (a Basque dancer), Pepita de Arcos, Lupe del Rio and singers Manuela de Jerez and Norina, the new artists are members of the largest company ever to travel under the Greco banner.

Numbers to be presented will include the regional dances, which spring from the different ethnic and folkloric traditions within the Spanish population. The classic dances will present more precise forms, encompassing elements of the folk, gypsy and flamenco styles within the framework of more formalized classical ballet.

Greco is noted as being a favorite solo performer at the White House, having displayed his talents before both Dwight Eisenhower and more recently, President John F. Kennedy.

Robert Boone, student programs advisor, also announced that the Cajun's coming.

'EDUCATION FOR CITIZENSHIP'

California Microbiologist To Open Seminar Friday

Dr. Max Marshall, professor of microbiology at the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco, will be the main speaker at the second of two teaching improvement seminars here Friday and Saturday.

Dr. Lee J. Ashworth, assistant professor in the Department of Plant Sciences and member of the Committee for the Improvement of Teaching in the School of Agriculture, said Marshall is a dynamic speaker and an authority in the area of college and university teaching.

"College Education for Citizenship" is the subject of the two-day session in the Biological Sciences lecture room. The first seminar, held Feb. 16-17, had "Student Motivation" as its theme.

Marshall is a regular contributor to the "Improving College and University Teaching Journal." His professional research areas are milk, bacteriophages, undulant fever, disinfectants, vaccines, serums and skin test products.

The speaker received his BS degree in 1918 at the University of Massachusetts; MS and PhD degrees, 1922 and 1925, University of Michigan; research bacteriologist, 1923-27, Michigan Department of Health; University School of Medicine, 1927; consultant, San Francisco Department of Public Health, 1937-52; Distinguished Visiting Professor, Michigan State University, March-June, 1928.

The seminar session will start at 7:30 p.m. Friday with Dr. Murray Brown, Department of Dairy Science, presiding, and opening remarks by Dr. J. P. Abbott, distinguished professor of English. Marshall's talk will follow.

The next session begins at 8:30 a.m. Saturday. Ashworth will preside and Marshall will make his second talk. At 10:15 a.m. a panel discussion will be held, with Fred Brisson, professor of horticulture; C. W. Crawford, associate dean of engineering; and Dr. H. E. Joham, Department of Plant Sciences as members.

Dr. G. M. Watkins, director of agricultural instruction, will summarize the seminar.

Dr. Benton Storey, associate professor of horticulture and chairman of the Committee on Improvement of College Teaching in Agriculture, said all faculty and staff members and students are invited to the meetings.

Wire Wrap-Up

PARIS—French and Algerian rebel spokesmen agreed Wednesday night that a final round of negotiations to end the 7½-year-old Algerian nationalist rebellion will open soon, perhaps by the end of the week.

In Tunis, Algerian rebel sources said French and nationalist delegates will meet Saturday or Sunday somewhere along the French-Swiss frontier to put the finishing touches to an agreement ending the conflict.

The agreement would provide for Algeria's self-determination and eventual independence.

U. S. News

WASHINGTON—An appearance of U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers before congressional committees investigating his spy-plane flight over Russia was apparently delayed Wednesday night until sometime next week.

The postponement developed when John A. McCone, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, informed the groups he would have to put off a scheduled briefing Thursday on the interrogation of Powers.

McCone said he had not had time to complete his review of a report prepared by the special board of inquiry that questioned Powers.

THOMPSONTOWN, Pa.—The Pennsylvania Limited plowed into buckling cars of a passing freight train Wednesday sending 18 persons to hospitals. Miraculously nobody was killed.

Most of the passengers suffered from inhalation of ammonia fumes from a derailed tank car of the freight train.

WASHINGTON—A White House commission proposed Wednesday a drastic overhaul of work and pay practices on the nation's railroads.

The 21-man panel handed President Kennedy an exhaustive report recommending methods for the railroads to cut off many thousands of workmen it said were not needed to operate moving trains—while meeting their income loss temporarily as they are schooled for new jobs.

The commission agreed in effect with the carriers that they have for years been saddled with "featherbedding" requirements to keep on unnecessary workers. It said some 35,000 firemen on diesel locomotives in freight and yard service serve no useful purpose, and should be gradually eliminated.

Fish Drill Team Third At Laredo

The Freshman Drill Team, A&M's elite freshman marching team, won third in the annual drill competition at Laredo in connection with George Washington's Birthday ceremonies.

Of the six drill teams entered in the competition, A&M's was the only one exclusively freshmen. The first place winner was St. Mary's University, while the Buccaneers of the University of Texas were second.

The team participated in a parade through the streets of Laredo Saturday morning. Then at 2 p.m. the competition was held, followed by the presentation of awards. The teams were graded only on fancy drill, and not on basic drill and personal inspection, as previously planned.

Music Man' Fem Highlights

Jeanne Bal (left) and Elizabeth Allen are only two of the top female personalities who will be here Monday night for the dual performance of "Music Man" in G. Rollie White Coliseum. Shows, featuring 60 performers and numerous other backstage assistants, will begin at 6:30 and 9:30 p. m. The musical is one of the largest hits in the history of Broadway in New York City after 1,376 performances in a three-year period. It was chosen the best musical of the year in 1957 after surpassing records held by "The King and I," "Guys and Dolls" and "Carousel."
