Student Jobs As Janitors Under Study

The Student Life Committee of the Student Senate has begun a study of the possibility of students holding positions as janitors in dormitories and class rooms.

According to College Station businessman J. E. Loupot the practice is not new but was formerly used here. The move now would offer employment to over 300 student seeking part-time jobs.

A tentative plan calls for the replacement of current janitors with students on a trail basis. The present employees will not be dismissed, but replaced when they resign.

Water, Sewer Operators Due To Meet Here

A thousand water and sewage plant operators from municipalities and industrial plants across Texas will convene here March 11-16 for the 44th annual renewal of one of the nation's most unique educational ventures.

The meeting is the Texas water and sewage works short school, organized during World War I to help water and waste disposal plant operators enhance their efficiency as public servants.

As part of the State Health Department's program of operator certification, the short school is conducted in the do-it-yourself tradition. Operators use their own time and pay their own way to the course to qualify for official certification for competency.

The instruction is offered free, with the faculty supplied by the State Health Department, the Engineering Extension Service and the Texas Water and Sewage Works Association.

All instruction is tailored to keep city and industrial plant personnel abreast of their field and to instill in them a sense of the public health importance of their work.

All states and several foreign countries are now conducting similar courses along the lines first established in Texas.

SWC Officials Take Lie Detector Tests

Alleged 'Fixing' Probe Continues

Southwest Conference basketball referees were reported at the Department of Public Safety office in Austin Monday to tell a polygraph lie detector if they are involved in the alleged "fixing" of SWC basketball officiating.

According to Abb Curtis, supervisor of SWC officials, "All of them wanted to take the test. It will be up to the Department of Public Safety to give out any results."

Curtis also said he didn't know exactly how many officials took the test, but "it's nearly all of them." The Department of Public Safety said it would turn the results over to Curtis and conference officials. A DPS spokesman said the department was in the position only of granting a request.

Testing comes as a result of word last Friday that several officials are suspected of "fixing" and accepting bribes. No players or coaches are thought to be involved.

New York Post Sports Columnist Gene Roswell started the uproar with a column in which he said gambling bookmakers "are having headaches with the hoop shenanigans reportedly coming out of the Southwest Conference . . . the point spreads move like water and most books won't carry their action."

The Dallas Morning News said Friday it has learned at least two game officials apparently are involved in the investigation, with one game drawing the most attention.

Both the Department of Public Safety and the Federal Bureau of Investigation disclosed later in the day Friday that they are looking into the reports.

"The matter has been brought to our attention and is under investigation as a matter of course," said Col. Homer Garrison of the Department of Public Safety.

The FBI said it does not release information on possible investigations until charges are filed.

In Dallas Friday, Howard Grubbs, executive secretary of the Southwest Conference, said he knew of no foundation for such reports. "As far as I know, the officials are just as good people and as honest as we can get. I have complete confidence in them."

The Dallas Times-Herald said an unnamed out-of-town federal agent confirmed the investigation. The newspaper quoted him as saying, "You understand we can't comment on this because we're dealing with real pros."

The paper said the Department of Public Safety has been investigating the reports for several weeks. It quoted one unnamed official investigative source as saying, "It looks very bad."

Jazz Trio Talent Show Bound

TWO TESTS PER SENIOR

Graduate Exams Set March 24

All seniors who plan to graduate in May will take the Graduate Record Examination Saturday, March 24, according to the Office of the Dean of Instruction.

Dean of Instruction Dr. William Graff said this is in accordance with an earlier decision of the Executive Committee and will be a requirement of all graduating seniors.

The purpose of the institutional testing program is to evaluate the academic excellence of A&M. To do this, the Graduate Record Examination must be given to each senior class over a period of several years.

Although the ordinary cost to the individual is $15, the cost will be born by the college for the testing fee. Seniors will have the same services and privileges as participants in other types of Graduate Record Examination programs, and may request that their scores be forwarded to any prospective graduate school that they so desire. Results will be available before the end of the spring semester.

The examination will consist of an aptitude test and an achievement test. The aptitude test is further divided into verbal and mathematical aptitude while the achievement test is an advanced test in specific fields such as biology, chemistry or history.

The places of testing will be the Chemistry Building and the Biological Sciences Building. The scheduled time will be from 8:30 - 12 noon, and 1:30 - 5:00 p.m. March 24.

All seniors are asked to pick up their specific room and building assignments from their respective departments at any time between 8 a.m. March 20 and 5 p.m. March 23.

Students may not be admitted after the examinations have begun at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, March 24. The aptitude test will be given in the morning and the advanced test in the afternoon.

The Counseling and Testing Center will be in charge of the administration of the examination.

People lined the streets all the way along the seven-mile parade, route, literally thousands upon thousands, hoping to catch a piece of candy or a favor from the ever-generous float riders.

Six hours of precision drills later, the tired but still smiling group in white began making preparations for the ball tonight. They received applause all up and down the parade route with their intricate rifle and marching maneuvers.

Going into tonight's battle Coach Bob Rogers' Aggies have compiled a 14-9 season record and an 8-5 mark in SWC play.

With a victory over the Bears, who are doomed for the SWC cellar, the Aggies will end up in third place in the conference behind Texas Tech and SMU.
