

Ag Peace Corpsman Leaving For Assignment

Bud H. Driver Jr., probably the first bona fide Peace Corps member from A&M, will leave his training post at the Gila River Indian Reservation soon to travel to South America, said Dr. Dan Russell, liaison officer for the corps here.

Driver, who graduated last year majoring in English, is one of the 61 corps volunteers being trained at Arizona State University for a mission to Colombia, S.A.

He lived a week on the Indian reservation to become acquainted with a different culture from that of his own. Driver and other trainees just completed an intensive study course at ASU to prepare them for foreign service.

Peace Corps studies for the two-year Colombian mission include Spanish, industrial arts, agriculture, first aid, physical conditioning and the history and politics of the United States and Colombia.

TO UNSNARL TRAFFIC Kennedy Asks Aid For City Plans

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy asked Congress Thursday for $500 million over the next three years as a first step toward helping cities unsnarl traffic facilities outmoded by mushrooming suburbs and growing use of autos.

And Kennedy held out hope that air, rail and bus travelers can enjoy bargain rates by recommending that Congress remove federal control over minimum intercity fares. This was the highlight of his call for a drastic overhaul of what the President describes as "a chaotic patchwork of inconsistent and often obsolete" laws and rules governing transportation.

Kennedy said he is convinced "that less federal regulation and subsidization is in the long run a prime prerequisite of a healthy intercity transportation network."

The chief executive's 10,000-word message spelled out his solutions for pressing problems "burdening our national transportation system, jeopardizing the progress and security on which we depend."

He ignored former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's recommendation for creation of a government department of transportation. The message, canceled last year and delayed this year, is the last of several Kennedy has sent to Congress detailing his proposals for the nation.

Chairman Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., of the Senate Commerce Committee, which handles legislation in this field, said some of Kennedy's proposals were controversial but that the message represents a step forward.

"For the first time in many years the administration has demonstrated its concern about our national transportation system and has taken an affirmative position on ways to improve it, both from the point of view of the carrier and the shipper," he added.

Kennedy asked Congress to make available $100 million during the fiscal year starting July 1 as the first installment of his $500-million program to help cities untangle their traffic problems. The money would be made available to public agencies in the form of direct grants to be matched by local, nonfederal contributions.

The President also asked Congress:
1. Provide federal loans to ban mass transportation by moving the time limit on the million loan authorization last year.
2. Authorize for three emergency grants for mass transportation undertakings.
In addition to calling for removal of federal controls on minimum intercity passenger fares, Kennedy urged that the law be removed from minimum bulk cargo and agricultural fishery products.
These three, he said, "are the most critical—and essential—problems of unequally unequal regulatory curbs on transportation."
Kennedy spoke of encouraging experimentation in the passenger field but did not spell out exactly where bargain rates might be offered. In the airlines, however, he said change might be started gradually or temporarily.
Kennedy suggested that Congress make certain there are safeguards to prevent removal of minimum rate controls from "predatory, discriminatory trade practices or rate reflecting monopolistic practices rather than true efficiency."
The President repeated his proposals for tax changes in transportation field and again on Congress to take operating subsidies from the domestic trunk air carriers.
