

Put On Their Running Shoes

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor
Best way to cover a baseball game is from a radio booth with ex-catcher Joe Garagiola and Harry Caray, the St. Louis Cardinal broadcasters.
Garagiola is the poor man's Yogi Berra, he says. They were neighbors in St. Louis but Joe was smarter. He left the catching profession sooner, became an after and before dinner speaker and telecasts regularly. Last year, Yogi quit the tools of ignorance

Here's how Garagiola and Caray report a game between the Cards and Dodgers:
Harry C.: "Thad Tillotson is on the mound for Los Angeles. With a name like that he could be the new Rifleman."
Joe G.: "I can see it now—'The Saga of Sherman (Roadblock) Jones' as played by Thad Tillotson. It's a good thing his catcher isn't Cub Moe Thacker. That would be a real thong thwister. (Thad is now with Spokane.)"

"Here's Yogi Berra's ghost writer."
This writer: "It wasn't Yogi who called Cincinnati's ballpark a dump during the last World Series. Garagiola gave him that idea. Joe asked if left field reminded him of any other park, and Yogi said 'Yeh, the dumps where we played as kids in St. Louis.'
"Yogi was only making a comparison about Cincinnati's left field rise, a place he had seen only once in an exhibition game years ago. In the St. Louis dumps if you went back too far for a fly ball in left field you'd wind up in the fresh garbage."

Tragic Death Of Benny (Kid) Paret Even Stirs Up Texas Boxing Followe

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Writer
The death of Benny (Kid) Paret from injuries suffered in a New York ring last March has had reverberations wherever there is boxing.
Texas has more boxing than most any section yet never has had a death. But that didn't prevent the Paret affair from having a profound effect on this state's boxing setup.
Alton Erickson, state commissioner of boxing and wrestling, says every effort is being made to prevent a repetition of the New York happening although it appeared to be something that couldn't be helped.
But there are many ways that a fighter can be seriously injured or killed without the rules being violated. It is with the idea of exploring all the angles and taking steps to plug up the holes that has prompted Erickson's campaign.
He has just instituted the three-knockdown rule in Texas. This means that a fighter is through when he has been knocked down three times because he may have been so bemused by the hammering that he can't properly protect himself thereafter.
Ring doctors are being cautioned to be extra careful in their examinations so that all fighters are in top physical condition before being allowed to enter the ring.
Other things, such as making the padding even more substantial than ordinarily expected, are being invoked.
Erickson asks for suggestions on ways of improving the conduct of the game. He feels that the rules are adequate but if they can be improved he's all for it.
Corlis Holt, sports editor of the Port Arthur News, thinks the rules of boxing in Texas are archaic. Confusing would be another word for it. For instance, one page says the promoters shall not permit any contestant to participate unless he is examined "within two hours prior to entering the ring, by a licensed physician."
Another page reads: "Six hours before entering the ring all contestants must be given thorough medical examination."
Adding more confusion, it says on another page that if a fighter fails to show up, a substitute may be named without his being examined by merely stating in writing that he is physically fit. Why not give the sub a physical examination, too?
Even a referee can be substituted. The rule books says if a referee fails to show "some person of proper authority present at the match" may name a referee. Who the person of proper authority shall be is not explained.
Holt criticizes the fact that qualified substitutions can be made for fighters and referees. Further suggestions that a motor, judge, referee, manager second should have to go through a kind of test that would let them know their business is responsible. He adds that a fellow must pay to take positions are all the qualifications now required.
There's this rule: "No smoking shall be prohibited in arenas, and every possible effort must be made to eliminate smoking in arenas." This seems to be a smoking must not be allowed there will be no violation possible effort is made to do it even though the effort
