

Fish Roster Sports Four Familiar Names

When the Aggie Fish take the field against the TCU Wogs Wednesday night, four of Coach Hank Foldberg's varsity footballers will be watching the game with more than normal interest.

Ken Caffey, a halfback like brother Lee Roy, stands four inches shorter at 5-11 and 40 pounds lighter at 180.

The younger Byer, Tommy, gives up four inches and 30 pounds standing 5-10, 190. Tommy, like Sam, will also be running from the fullback slot.

Ted, the latest member of the Sparling clan to hit Aggieland, comes the nearest of the four to resembling his older brother, John. Ted has a slight advantage in both weight and height, checking in at 5-11, 160, while John sports a 5-10, 155 frame.

The fourth member of the family pairs is Charles LaGrange, quarterback from Rio Grande City. Charles and brother Ross could pass as twins in facial features and, though Charles is 20 pounds lighter (180), both stand 6-1.

Tech And Texas Start Race, Other 5 Play Outside SWC

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Writer
Texas and Texas Tech, who according to predictions are about seven places apart, get the Southwest Conference football race on the road Saturday while five other league members hit the inter-sectional trail.

Texas is supposed to easily live up to its high and mighty rating but only one of the five meeting foes from the outside are expected to win.

IT COULD BE the blackest week for the league in inter-sectional strife in a long time.

Rice, down to a sophomore at quarterback because of injuries to key men before a game has ever been played, tries mighty Louisiana State at Baton Rouge. The Owls are expected to be two touchdowns away from an upset.

Baylor, licking its wounds from a 19-0 shutout at the hands of University of Houston, hosts Pittsburgh, and although playing its first home game of the season, is figured several points in arrears.

Southern Methodist, which hasn't beaten anybody since October of 1961, plays Southern California, which beat highly rated Duke last week. This game will be in the Cotton Bowl, where the Methodists last won one.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN will be in Miami for a clash with Miami University in the Orange Bowl. The Christians, fortunate to emerge with a 6-3 decision over Kansas last week, are picked to lose by a touchdown to the team that whipped Pittsburgh two weeks ago. But chances of winning this one are better than the chances of Rice, Baylor and Southern Methodist. Arkansas, which showed the best ball club in the league on opening night, plays Tulsa at Fayetteville. This is the only one that the league is favored to win.

The conference started its inter-sectional campaign last week by taking three out of five. There seems little likelihood of it coming close to repeating the trick Saturday.

The other member of the conference, Texas A&M, plays neighboring University of Houston at Houston. The Aggies are mild favorites to win and revenge the Baylor upset of last week.

Olympic Games Up For Grabs Decision Comes Next Month

CHICAGO (AP)—The 1968 Olympic Games, probably the greatest of all prestige sports events, are up for grabs.

Russia failed to put in a bid, to the great surprise of most observers, when the International Olympic Committee met in Moscow several months ago. It had been assumed the meeting would pave the way for awarding the Games to the Soviets.

The decision on the site must be made next month when the IOC meets in Nairobi, Kenya, Africa.

At least seven American cities are considering making a bid, but by Olympic rules the United States Olympic Committee must decide on only one and endorse its invitation.

Avery Brundage, international Olympic president, said that Portland, Ore., San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit and New York are in the running. Probably the Los Angeles bid is the strongest. The 1932 Games were held there and were highly successful.

Mexico City and Buenos Aires are among the foreign cities eager to get the 1968 Games.

Mexico City can point to the 1955 Pan-American Games as proof of its ability to stage a big show, as well as demonstrating that the 1½ mile altitude does not materially hurt performance.

Cadets Favored By 3 Points Against Houston's Cougars

By VAN CONNER
Battalion Sports Editor
Let's hope the AP sports writers are as right this week as they were the last. Coach Hank Foldberg's Cadets are favored to edge the surprising Houston Cougars by three points in Rice Stadium Saturday night.

To be sure, the Ags will be up against nothing as fierce as the powerful LSU Tigers they bowed to last weekend. Houston is a small team, with only a few heavy men in the forward wall. What they lack in size, however, seemed to have been made up for with desire in the Cougars' 19-0 upset win over Baylor last week.

Houston Coach Bill Yeoman, who played football at West Point with Foldberg, will start six sophoms, three of them in the backfield. 165-pound senior quarterback Billy Roland will be the only starter in the backfield with more than one varsity game's experience.

Standout senior fullback Bob

Brezina was sidelined in the Baylor contest and probably won't see much action.

Cougar center Ken Chancellor and formidable tackle Pete Nikirk, both 225-pounders, will add experience and heft to the Houston line. Milton Perkins, 205-pound end voted most valuable lineman in the Baylor game will also bolster the U. of H. line.

Foldberg reports the Aggies in fine physical condition for the inter-sectional contest. No one has been lost since before the LSU game. Tommy Meeks, Lee Roy Caffey and Keith Huggins are not back in the lineup yet. Senior Jim Linnstaedter, who suffered a mild head injury in Baton Rouge is in fine shape and will play Saturday.
