

Looking Back...

At This Week

Aggies Choose New Sweetheart

A 14-man student selection committee named Miss Lynn Parks this year's Aggie Sweetheart at Texas Woman's University in Denton last weekend. The winner is a sophomore household arts and science student from St. Joseph, La. She also is president of Capps Hall, a former Redbud Princess and the Texas "Make-it-Yourself with Wool" contest winner. Miss Parks' selection came after two full days of activity at TWU. The Aggie delegation attended formal and informal dances, picnics and luncheons while in Denton. In addition to Miss Parks' selection, Chuck Nichols, '63 from Big Lake, was named Mr. Congeniality by the TWU delegation.

Champus Chest Plans Set Up

Plans for this year's Campus Chest drive were announced Wednesday by Ken Stanton, chairman of the Student Senate welfare committee.

An $8,000 goal, aimed at "a dollar from an Aggie for an Aggie," has been set up for the drive.

The drive will be conducted Oct. 29-Nov. 2.

Donations will be handled by commanding officers in military dorms and by dorm presidents and floor and ramp representatives in civilian dormitories.

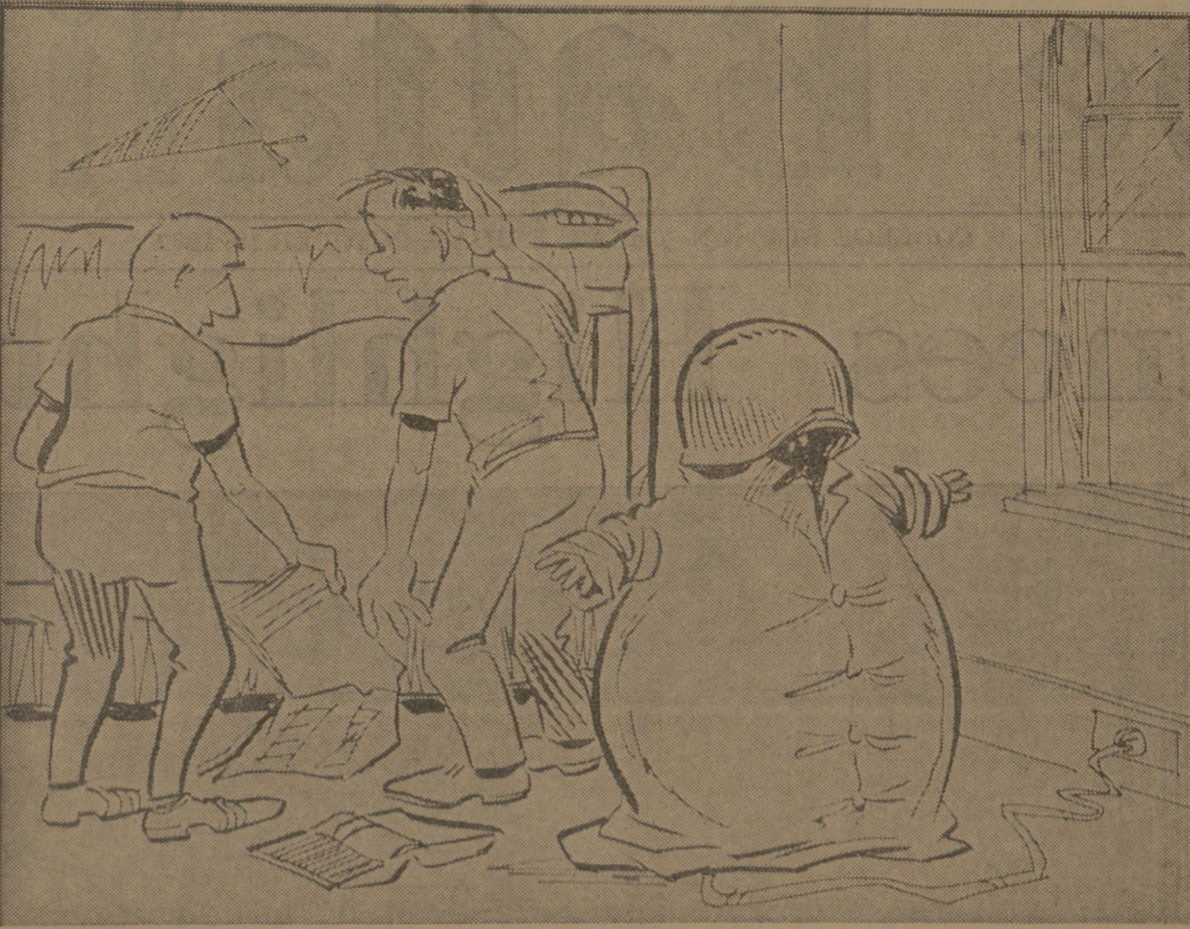

Tubs will also be scattered around Kyle Field at the TCU and Arkansas football games.

Student Poll Favors Cox

A student opinion poll by The Battalion this week showed a majority of A&M students may favor Republican Jack Cox in the Texas race for governor.

Only 18 students were polled, with Cox holding a slight edge. The Breckenridge oilman was favored by 50 per cent of the students polled. 40 per cent favored his opponent John Connally and ten per cent were undecided.

The largest portion of students polled were of voting age, but only a little more than half were qualified voters. Two-thirds of the qualified voters expect to vote in the Nov. 6 election.

... it's gotta be here somewhere—you just don't lose an electric fan in a room this size!

FREEDOM DISAPPEARING

Through The Wall—Still A Problem

By CARL HARTMAN
BERLIN (AP) — The United States and its Allies will do all they can to keep road, rail and air routes open to West Berlin but getting through the wall into Red-ruled East Berlin is a different matter.

West Berlin, 110 miles inside Communist territory, must get its supplies from the West. People living here want the right to move in and out freely. That is what is meant by the catchwords of "viability" and "free access."

On the other hand, the Allies claim the freedom to move into East Berlin as a matter of right but it's a freedom that's full of holes already, and may disappear any day.

The United States sent in tanks to back up its rights. The Soviets brought in tanks of their own. That was hailed as a victory for the West because it showed the Soviets were still responsible for Berlin, but the Communists won the point about identification. The U. S. command simply ordered American civilians not to drive over in official cars.

The right disappeared for Maj. Gen. Albert Watson II, the U.S. commandant in Berlin, last March. The Communists barred him after he had barred the Soviet commandant from the U. S. sector.

For Western military vehicles the freedom began to disappear Oct. 6 — the day border guards blocked a British ambulance from going to aid a West Berliner shot on the Communist side of the wall. The West protested, but that was all.

Other U. S., British and French military cars still drive through without question. Soldiers in uniform still stroll freely across the line.

Busloads of tourists make regular circuits every day. Visitors from West Germany go in on foot by car, in subway and elevated trains, to rendezvous with friends and relatives from the East.

But all this is on Communist sufferance. The only way to reach East Berlin from the West is through West Berlin. To emphasize their control of East Berlin, East German border guards make close checks of all civilians. They insist on inspecting passports, search cars and make visitors sign a statement of all money and valuables they bring in.

The Western nations feel they can do nothing about this. They have had no real power in East Berlin since 1948.

Some people wonder why the Communists don't take a few more slices off the Berlin salami. They could bar Western military traffic entirely from East Berlin, or require foreign visitors to get visas in advance. These developments are often predicted.

The Soviets may be holding back because they fear Western reprisals. The West could prevent the Soviets from coming to West Berlin to guard their war memorial or the Nazi war criminals in Spandau Prison.

LONG LAKE NO SHORTAGE
AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Teachers nearby Coventry High School heard a new reason for a boat being delayed in getting to Ron Sarisky, a candidate student council president, rowboat as a prop in his campaign. The other day, teachers, he decided to row boat to school across Long Lake a shortcut.

However, a morning fog in on the lake, the young man explained, and navigational delays delayed his arrival probably.

PEANUTS

YOU MEAN YOU'RE GOING TO SEND THE SAME FORM LETTER TO THE GREAT PUMPKIN, SANTA CLAUS AND THE EASTER BUNNY?

WHY NOT? THOSE GUYS GET SO MUCH MAIL THEY CAN'T POSSIBLY TELL THE DIFFERENCE...

I BET THEY DON'T EVEN READ THE LETTERS THEMSELVES! HOW COULD THEY?!

THE TROUBLE WITH YOU, CHARLIE BROWN, IS YOU DON'T UNDERSTAND HOW THESE BIG ORGANIZATIONS WORK.
